For two years the people have been studying "politics" as never before, and the significance of many things never and the G.-D. is the ablest advocate before noticed is now being understood. A notable instance in this congress was the speakership fight. It was understood from start to finish to be a conpeople, and while no one expects test of factions-one faction seeking to make the tariff the great political issue for next year in order that Grover Cleveland might be the Democratic as should be done, and while nine men nominee for the presidency, and the other faction opposing Cleveland's nomination and favoring that of D. B. Hill. It was simply a fight having no purpose in view other than that of foisting on the country and people some man, without regard to whether he was acceptable or not. a desire to shirk work. That he might work for his people, he wrote a letter to the senatorial Democratic caucus askstructing the committee on finance to inquire and to report upon the actual expenses of the business of money lending as conducted in the United States by bankers and loan agonts. Referred to the committee on finance. A large number of financial measures > were introduced, and nearly every member of the house has a bill of this character to present. These indicate that there will be an effort to push the financial question forward. At the same time there is every reason to believe that no silver legislation will be enacted during this session.

Mr. Peffer submitted a resolution in-

Senator Manderson introduced a bill to establish postal savings banks and to encourage small savings. The bill authorizes the postmaster general to designate as depositories such postoffices as he may think proper, which shall keep for sale stamps of the denomination of ten cents and one dollar, to be known as and refreshing to the taste, and act postal savings stamps; also postal savings cards, upon which such stamps are to be affixed when sold, the amount of the stamp purchased to be deposited in such banks to the credit of the purchaser as the secretary of the treasury may direct. The bill provides that a small amount of interest shall be paid depositors on their amounts. H. W. AYER.
