

ALLIANCE DEPARTMENT.

Over every land, in every age, Some crowd of creed or human ban Has contrived the right of man.

Let us now some battle power, And those who wrong, exile the knave, While others reign and tollers slave.

Resolutions of Alexander County Farmers Alliance.

In view of the depreciation of property, the scarcity of money and the reduction of at least one third on all products of labor.

1st. Be it resolved, by the Alexander County Farmers' Alliance, now in session, April 13th, 1894.

2nd. Be it resolved, That the Alexander County Farmers' Alliance furnish the means and have a sufficient number of copies of this Resolution printed and sent to the Secretaries of the County Alliances in the state, and one to the Editor of THE CAUCASIAN, Goldsboro, N. C., and also the Editor of THE PROGRESSIVE FARMER, Raleigh, N. C.

3rd. Resolved, That the following Resolution, after being printed, shall be sent to W. S. Barnes, Secy., Treasurer N. C. F. A., with instructions to forward to Secretaries of the different Counties immediately, and those Secretaries to have written or printed copies circulated in every Sub-Alliance in respective Counties, to the end that all citizens of the State of N. C., irrespective of party may become signers of same, and that these names be sent to the State Alliance for confirmation, signed by J. L. Leder, R. F. White, A. L. Watts, H. W. Kelsey, N. S. Norton, P. M. Hamner, W. C. Childers, T. A. Hudson, R. C. Cary, J. W. Price, Thos. Walker, J. F. Crouch, J. T. Christopher, J. C. Bell, J. M. Martin, M. M. Alexander, Thos. Little, T. J. White, G. W. Heiner, C. O. Alexander, J. W. Martin, A. T. Alexander, J. J. Alexander, W. D. Gryder, L. L. Dagenhart, W. G. Gryder.

Chatham County.

Pittsboro, N. C., May 15, '94. Hon. Marion Butler, Dear Sir and Brother—Enclosed please find ten (10) dollars contributed by the Chatham County Farmers' Alliance, to the Folk Monument Fund.

The last meeting of Chatham Co. Alliance was a grand success, both in point of numbers and interest. The Alliance is in better condition than it has been in the past three years.

Willow Branch, N. C., May 7, 1894. Mr. Editor—With your permission we will say a few words for Merchant Mills Alliance, No. 1190. In the first place, while we are not so strong numerically as we once were, what we have is pure gold, and we are now on the up grade.

Secretary Duncan of the National Farmers' Alliance says the order is flourishing now and that applications for charters are coming in rapidly. One application came in from Idaho a few days ago asking for four charters for new Sub-Alliances in that state. He says that about twenty Sub-Alliances have already been inaugurated in South Carolina. The state of Ohio in the last few days has sent applications for one hundred charters.

The Alliance is "marching through Georgia" nowadays. The brethren there have been lying on their backs but they are ready to admit it is better to reorganize.

Greater activity is now being displayed in Alliance circles in Iowa than for two years past. The same is true of Kansas, Pennsylvania, Maryland and numerous other states.

The Texas brethren are pulling

WARING'S PERIL.

By Capt. Charles R. King.

Author of "The Secret of the Secret," "The Soldier's Secret," etc.

Copyright 1893 by J. H. Lippman & Co. and published by the author at 210 Broadway, N. Y.

And all day long the storm beat upon the substantial buildings of the old barracks and flooded the ground about the sheds and stables. In the interval were occasional suspended, several sentries even being taken off their posts. The men with their rifles and bayonets fixed to their rifles, and their eyes fixed on the sentries, and their feet fixed to the ground, and their hands fixed to their rifles, and their hearts fixed to the thought of the man who was in the room.

From this congress the better element of the commissioned force was absent. The names, nationalities and idiomatic peculiarities of speech of the individual members being identical in most instances with those of their comrades in arms in the ranks. "Brax" had announced Miss Lawrence, Kinsey and Dryden to hear what the post surgeon had to say on his return, but cautioned them to keep quiet. As a result of this presentation, the mystery of the situation became known to one of each, and was intensified by two, when it was announced that Private Dawson had attempted to break away out of the hospital after a visit from the same doctor in his professional capacity. People were emptied out on their galleries in the driving storm, and colored servants flitted from kitchen to kitchen to gather or disperse new rumors, not a man was to be seen to make it when soon from dripping with mud and wet, delivered a note to the colonel and took one from him to Mr. Ferry, no more representative of the officer than the present for duty. Ferry in return sent the bedraggled horseman on to the battery quarters with an order to the sergeant and in about fifteen minutes a sergeant and two men, mounted and each leading a spare horse, appeared under Ferry's gallery, and that officer proceeded to occupy one of the vacant saddles and, followed by his party, went clattering out of the stable and splashing out over the levee. Stable call sounded as usual at four o'clock, and for the first time in the record of that disciplined organization the decorative hand of yellow jack was laid upon it the previous year, no officer appeared to supervise the grooming and feeding. Two of them were at the post, however. Mr. Doyle, in charge of absence without leave, was escorted to his quarters about four-fifteen, and was promptly visited by sympathizing and inquisitive comrades from the Hotel Finkeln, who Mr. Ferry, who had effected the arrest, was detained making his report to the post commander. Night came on apace, the wind began to die away with the going down of the sun, the rain ceased to fall, a pallid moon began peering at all intervals through rifts in the cloudy veil, when Crum came plashing back into barracks, worn with anxiety and care, at eleven o'clock, and stopping only for a moment to take his wife in his arms and kiss her anxious face and shake his head in response to her eager query for news of Waring, hurried down the stairs again and over to Doyle's quarters. All was darkness there, but he never hesitated. Tramping loudly over the gallery, he banged at the door, then turning the key, he entered to burst right in, as was the way in the rough old days, was surprised to find the bolt open.

"Doyle, open. I want to see you at once."

"All things within."

"Doyle, open, or if you are too drunk to get up, I'll kick in the door."

A groan, a wretched cough, then the rattle of boots, and a door opened about an inch, and an oily Irish voice inquired:

"Hiv'd wanted, captin'?"

"You here?" exclaimed Crum, in disgust at the business-like manner of this garrison? "If the colonel knew it you'd be driven out at the point of the bayonet."

"Sure, where should wife be but at her husband's side when he's sick and sufferin'?"

"Doyle, open, or if you are too drunk to get up, I'll kick in the door."

"You here?" exclaimed Crum, in disgust at the business-like manner of this garrison? "If the colonel knew it you'd be driven out at the point of the bayonet."

"Sure, where should wife be but at her husband's side when he's sick and sufferin'?"

"Doyle, open, or if you are too drunk to get up, I'll kick in the door."

"You here?" exclaimed Crum, in disgust at the business-like manner of this garrison? "If the colonel knew it you'd be driven out at the point of the bayonet."

"Sure, where should wife be but at her husband's side when he's sick and sufferin'?"

"Doyle, open, or if you are too drunk to get up, I'll kick in the door."

"You here?" exclaimed Crum, in disgust at the business-like manner of this garrison? "If the colonel knew it you'd be driven out at the point of the bayonet."

"Sure, where should wife be but at her husband's side when he's sick and sufferin'?"

"Doyle, open, or if you are too drunk to get up, I'll kick in the door."

"You here?" exclaimed Crum, in disgust at the business-like manner of this garrison? "If the colonel knew it you'd be driven out at the point of the bayonet."

WARING'S PERIL.

By Capt. Charles R. King.

Author of "The Secret of the Secret," "The Soldier's Secret," etc.

Copyright 1893 by J. H. Lippman & Co. and published by the author at 210 Broadway, N. Y.

And all day long the storm beat upon the substantial buildings of the old barracks and flooded the ground about the sheds and stables. In the interval were occasional suspended, several sentries even being taken off their posts. The men with their rifles and bayonets fixed to their rifles, and their eyes fixed on the sentries, and their feet fixed to the ground, and their hands fixed to their rifles, and their hearts fixed to the thought of the man who was in the room.

From this congress the better element of the commissioned force was absent. The names, nationalities and idiomatic peculiarities of speech of the individual members being identical in most instances with those of their comrades in arms in the ranks. "Brax" had announced Miss Lawrence, Kinsey and Dryden to hear what the post surgeon had to say on his return, but cautioned them to keep quiet. As a result of this presentation, the mystery of the situation became known to one of each, and was intensified by two, when it was announced that Private Dawson had attempted to break away out of the hospital after a visit from the same doctor in his professional capacity. People were emptied out on their galleries in the driving storm, and colored servants flitted from kitchen to kitchen to gather or disperse new rumors, not a man was to be seen to make it when soon from dripping with mud and wet, delivered a note to the colonel and took one from him to Mr. Ferry, no more representative of the officer than the present for duty. Ferry in return sent the bedraggled horseman on to the battery quarters with an order to the sergeant and in about fifteen minutes a sergeant and two men, mounted and each leading a spare horse, appeared under Ferry's gallery, and that officer proceeded to occupy one of the vacant saddles and, followed by his party, went clattering out of the stable and splashing out over the levee. Stable call sounded as usual at four o'clock, and for the first time in the record of that disciplined organization the decorative hand of yellow jack was laid upon it the previous year, no officer appeared to supervise the grooming and feeding. Two of them were at the post, however. Mr. Doyle, in charge of absence without leave, was escorted to his quarters about four-fifteen, and was promptly visited by sympathizing and inquisitive comrades from the Hotel Finkeln, who Mr. Ferry, who had effected the arrest, was detained making his report to the post commander. Night came on apace, the wind began to die away with the going down of the sun, the rain ceased to fall, a pallid moon began peering at all intervals through rifts in the cloudy veil, when Crum came plashing back into barracks, worn with anxiety and care, at eleven o'clock, and stopping only for a moment to take his wife in his arms and kiss her anxious face and shake his head in response to her eager query for news of Waring, hurried down the stairs again and over to Doyle's quarters. All was darkness there, but he never hesitated. Tramping loudly over the gallery, he banged at the door, then turning the key, he entered to burst right in, as was the way in the rough old days, was surprised to find the bolt open.

"Doyle, open. I want to see you at once."

"All things within."

"Doyle, open, or if you are too drunk to get up, I'll kick in the door."

A groan, a wretched cough, then the rattle of boots, and a door opened about an inch, and an oily Irish voice inquired:

"Hiv'd wanted, captin'?"

"You here?" exclaimed Crum, in disgust at the business-like manner of this garrison? "If the colonel knew it you'd be driven out at the point of the bayonet."

"Sure, where should wife be but at her husband's side when he's sick and sufferin'?"

"Doyle, open, or if you are too drunk to get up, I'll kick in the door."

"You here?" exclaimed Crum, in disgust at the business-like manner of this garrison? "If the colonel knew it you'd be driven out at the point of the bayonet."

"Sure, where should wife be but at her husband's side when he's sick and sufferin'?"

"Doyle, open, or if you are too drunk to get up, I'll kick in the door."

"You here?" exclaimed Crum, in disgust at the business-like manner of this garrison? "If the colonel knew it you'd be driven out at the point of the bayonet."

"Sure, where should wife be but at her husband's side when he's sick and sufferin'?"

"Doyle, open, or if you are too drunk to get up, I'll kick in the door."

"You here?" exclaimed Crum, in disgust at the business-like manner of this garrison? "If the colonel knew it you'd be driven out at the point of the bayonet."

"Sure, where should wife be but at her husband's side when he's sick and sufferin'?"

"Doyle, open, or if you are too drunk to get up, I'll kick in the door."

"You here?" exclaimed Crum, in disgust at the business-like manner of this garrison? "If the colonel knew it you'd be driven out at the point of the bayonet."

WARING'S PERIL.

By Capt. Charles R. King.

Author of "The Secret of the Secret," "The Soldier's Secret," etc.

Copyright 1893 by J. H. Lippman & Co. and published by the author at 210 Broadway, N. Y.

And all day long the storm beat upon the substantial buildings of the old barracks and flooded the ground about the sheds and stables. In the interval were occasional suspended, several sentries even being taken off their posts. The men with their rifles and bayonets fixed to their rifles, and their eyes fixed on the sentries, and their feet fixed to the ground, and their hands fixed to their rifles, and their hearts fixed to the thought of the man who was in the room.

From this congress the better element of the commissioned force was absent. The names, nationalities and idiomatic peculiarities of speech of the individual members being identical in most instances with those of their comrades in arms in the ranks. "Brax" had announced Miss Lawrence, Kinsey and Dryden to hear what the post surgeon had to say on his return, but cautioned them to keep quiet. As a result of this presentation, the mystery of the situation became known to one of each, and was intensified by two, when it was announced that Private Dawson had attempted to break away out of the hospital after a visit from the same doctor in his professional capacity. People were emptied out on their galleries in the driving storm, and colored servants flitted from kitchen to kitchen to gather or disperse new rumors, not a man was to be seen to make it when soon from dripping with mud and wet, delivered a note to the colonel and took one from him to Mr. Ferry, no more representative of the officer than the present for duty. Ferry in return sent the bedraggled horseman on to the battery quarters with an order to the sergeant and in about fifteen minutes a sergeant and two men, mounted and each leading a spare horse, appeared under Ferry's gallery, and that officer proceeded to occupy one of the vacant saddles and, followed by his party, went clattering out of the stable and splashing out over the levee. Stable call sounded as usual at four o'clock, and for the first time in the record of that disciplined organization the decorative hand of yellow jack was laid upon it the previous year, no officer appeared to supervise the grooming and feeding. Two of them were at the post, however. Mr. Doyle, in charge of absence without leave, was escorted to his quarters about four-fifteen, and was promptly visited by sympathizing and inquisitive comrades from the Hotel Finkeln, who Mr. Ferry, who had effected the arrest, was detained making his report to the post commander. Night came on apace, the wind began to die away with the going down of the sun, the rain ceased to fall, a pallid moon began peering at all intervals through rifts in the cloudy veil, when Crum came plashing back into barracks, worn with anxiety and care, at eleven o'clock, and stopping only for a moment to take his wife in his arms and kiss her anxious face and shake his head in response to her eager query for news of Waring, hurried down the stairs again and over to Doyle's quarters. All was darkness there, but he never hesitated. Tramping loudly over the gallery, he banged at the door, then turning the key, he entered to burst right in, as was the way in the rough old days, was surprised to find the bolt open.

"Doyle, open. I want to see you at once."

"All things within."

"Doyle, open, or if you are too drunk to get up, I'll kick in the door."

A groan, a wretched cough, then the rattle of boots, and a door opened about an inch, and an oily Irish voice inquired:

"Hiv'd wanted, captin'?"

"You here?" exclaimed Crum, in disgust at the business-like manner of this garrison? "If the colonel knew it you'd be driven out at the point of the bayonet."

"Sure, where should wife be but at her husband's side when he's sick and sufferin'?"

"Doyle, open, or if you are too drunk to get up, I'll kick in the door."

"You here?" exclaimed Crum, in disgust at the business-like manner of this garrison? "If the colonel knew it you'd be driven out at the point of the bayonet."

"Sure, where should wife be but at her husband's side when he's sick and sufferin'?"

"Doyle, open, or if you are too drunk to get up, I'll kick in the door."

"You here?" exclaimed Crum, in disgust at the business-like manner of this garrison? "If the colonel knew it you'd be driven out at the point of the bayonet."

"Sure, where should wife be but at her husband's side when he's sick and sufferin'?"

"Doyle, open, or if you are too drunk to get up, I'll kick in the door."

"You here?" exclaimed Crum, in disgust at the business-like manner of this garrison? "If the colonel knew it you'd be driven out at the point of the bayonet."

"Sure, where should wife be but at her husband's side when he's sick and sufferin'?"

"Doyle, open, or if you are too drunk to get up, I'll kick in the door."

"You here?" exclaimed Crum, in disgust at the business-like manner of this garrison? "If the colonel knew it you'd be driven out at the point of the bayonet."

COL. PAT. WINSTON.

Continued from first page.

to sell the road, collect its means and pay its debts, it might have been well enough. When this is done with dispatch and the dead body buried out of sight as soon as possible, no objection can be made to the procedure. But this is never done now. The receiver takes the road from the owners and operates it in its own way, and he and his agents are exempted from the operation of the common law, with an occasional suggestion from the court, which he recognizes as a sort of partner in the business.

THE TELEGRAPH. The same interests that demand the government ownership of railroads require that the telegraph shall be utilized as a part of the postal system of the country. It is the plain duty of the government to furnish us with the quickest mail facilities. There is no reason why letters cannot be transmitted by lightning as well as by steam.

MOONEY. Produce is exchanged with money. At the formation of our government, and for three generations thereafter, the people possessed the right to carry their gold and silver bullion to the public mints and have it coined into money which was a legal tender for the payment of all debts, public and private. This right was free and without limit. They also possessed during this long period of time the right in every state to issue paper money under laws prescribing a basis of circulation. Of these sources of money supply but one remains free to a free people. The right to issue paper money has been taken from the people and conferred upon the other great government bonds, and the right to coin silver into money is denied altogether. Since our principal source of money supply was cut off by the demonetization of silver our money has no longer continued to bear the same relation to the food we eat, the clothes we wear, the property we own, the labor we perform and the debts we owe that it had borne for centuries. We all know the fatal effects of that one act of financial legislation by which plutocracy more than doubled its power and possessions in the United States, and by which the property of every man in debt was practically confiscated, and by which the value of labor was substantially destroyed.

I am in favor of the free and unlimited coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1, and the expansion of the circulating medium of the country by the issue by the government of legal tender paper money in sufficient volume to restore prices to a basis of adequate profit and prevent unnatural fluctuations in values. The national banking system is a monopoly that fails to supply the people with a sufficient quantity of paper money, and affords no adequate security to depositors. When one of these institutions fails the security with which banks will furnish safe places of deposit for the savings of the people is thereby destroyed, and prevent their further robbery by the prevailing system. The disloyal practice and privilege of dishonoring the money of the government by discriminating in public laws or private contracts in favor of one kind and against another kind of money should be prohibited by act of congress.

INCOME AND INHERITANCE TAX. In 1860 the wealth of the country was very evenly distributed. Ninety-one per cent of the people held in fact and even measure 91 per cent of the wealth. The census of 1890 shows that the wealth of the country has been reversed. Ninety per cent of the people now own 9 per cent of the wealth. The 4,000 multimillionaires in the United States own over $12,000,000,000 of wealth, which is 90 per cent more than the 75,000,000 members of the wage-working class own. The corporations of the country own one-half of all the wealth in the country, the railway corporations owning one-sixth. In their last annual report all Federal taxes paid by the Lumbermen in the income whether these incomes are derived from the invested capital of the rich or from the sale of their labor by the poor. Shall these taxes amounting to $500,000,000 yearly continue to be exacted from consumers without regard to their property or incomes? The corporations that own one-half of the wealth of the country do not contribute a dollar to the support of the general government. Our 4,000 multimillionaires contribute only to the tax on the liquors, tobacco and imported wares they consume. All the rest of us contribute to the same extent.

The only way to compel the rich to bear their proportion to all the burdens of government is to tax their incomes while they live and the right of their heirs to succeed to their possessions when they die. In the language of Senator John Sherman, spoken in congress twenty-two years ago:

"A few years of further experience will convince the whole body of our people that a system of national taxes which rests the whole burden of taxation on property and income is intrinsically unjust. While the expense of the national government are largely caused by the protection, it is but right to require property to contribute to their payment."

I am now always have been in favor of so levying the tariff tax as to afford the proper protection to all the great industrial interests of the country, but I recognize the fact that the time is at hand when along with this policy of protection other industrial and financial policies must be adopted to prevail over the interests of the few at the expense of the many. The right to levy a tariff tax is no more or less than the right to fix the price of the articles upon which it is imposed. If levied for the benefit of consumers as well as for producers it serves the purpose for which the system was devised, but if levied to enrich special interests at the expense of consumers it becomes monopoly.

In this connection it is necessary to say that unless a check is placed upon the further immigration into the country of foreign labor, which competes with our own, most of the benefits of a protective tariff will be monopolized by capital.

COL. PAT. WINSTON.

Continued from first page.

THE CONDITION OF THE COUNTRY. The combined statesmanship of the republicans and democratic parties has been able to provide no remedy for the unhappy condition of our country except another issue of interest-bearing gold bonds and to suggest none except the employment of state and federal bayonets. In my opinion there are other and better remedies, some of which are outlined above. There is no hope of their adoption except through some political party capable of their accomplishment. Neither the republican nor the democratic party will accomplish them. I believe the people's party will. For that reason I will hereafter support it.

PATRICK HESKY WINSTON. Spokan, May 5. VANCE'S GRAVE. BY F. E. SANDERS. On Vane's mound which overlooked the chosen people's promised land, We look to rest the Hero's chieftain by the great Archangel's hand. But Jacob's seed never washed with tears their greatest prophet's grave; Not scattered flowers or marked the spot with shaft and architrave. But human hands and hearts of love will win our hero's turf. When summer's grassy wave rolls in, and winds in drowsy eddies sweep, But nothing purer than the heart which in quiet rests beneath. Will ever gem the soil above, or with blossoms light it unawakened.

The whitest marble there he reared and with its column pierce the day. To rest as white as that white soul which informed the sleeping clay. And dew of Heaven in brightness shed will jewel all the verdure round. Not brighter than that great mind which once the body crowned.

In war, in peace, I was our greatest, and his bloom of renown. We light the shield of Carolina till her mountains topple down. With a bustle that will brighten as the after ages run. Like a planet in its orbit when 'tis swinging from the sun. Owsley Co., May 15th, 1894.

VOTE FOR PRINCIPLE NOT PARTY. We will speak out with no doubtful meaning upon any measure which comes up before the people for their consideration, but as to giving our support for this or that man for any office is a matter in which we shall move very slowly. However it will be our duty to speak out as best we may with such lights as we shall have before us. The most important man for us to choose to whom we may give our support, is the coming candidate to represent the third congressional district in the Congress of the nation. The present incumbent has won our approbation in votes and speeches. But the vote he gave for $1,000 additional clerk hire lowered him in our estimation to that extent that we would make strenuous efforts to replace him with as good a man as we take Doctor Cyrus Thompson to be.—Solid South.

THE INTELLECTUAL TRAMP. Dr. Alexander Kent, of Washington city, in a sermon a few Sundays since discussed tramps. The following is his description of the intellectual tramp:

"Tramps are men who go about the country professing in search of work, but really in search of something to satisfy their appetite or please their taste. They don't really want work. They won't take it if given. There are men in the intellectual world a good deal like this. They are always on the move apparently in search of information, but really they are looking after something to feed the party stomach."

Advertising is the coupling pin that unites persistence and success.

1768, 1894. OLD NICK THE NICK WILLIAMS Double Rectifier WHISKEY IS BOOMING AND HAS BEEN MADE FOR 126 YEARS ON SAME PLANTATION. RYE OR CORN. Goods Over Four Years Old on Hand. Write for price-list, as we ship any quantity. Address: OLD NICK WHISKEY CO., Or Lock Box 25, Yadin Co. WILLIAMS, N. C.

Permanently Cured 111. HEALTH BRINGER to sick men and women. The Doctor is known as the leading and most successful specialist on Catarrh, Skin and Blood Diseases, Kidney and Urinary Troubles, Nervous and Physical Debility, Stricture, Female Weakness, etc. Address: DR. HATHAWAY & CO., 221 So. Broad St., Atlanta, Ga.

JOHN J. KELLY, General Commission Merchant, and SHIPPERS OF NEW RIVER OYSTERS. Farmers' Products A Specialty. 113 SOUTH FRONT ST., WILMINGTON, N. C. March 15-3mos.

WOVEN WIRE FENCE. 2 1/2, 3 and 4 No. 11 wire. 1000 ft. long. 4 ft. high. 100 ft. wide. Price per 100 ft. per rod.

THE CAUCASIAN not only has the largest paid up subscription list in North Carolina, but it goes to more homes in Wayne and adjoining counties than all the other papers in Wayne county combined.

THE CAUCASIAN. SPECIAL OFFER:—For a Club of ten subscribers at 50 cents each (till after the election) we will send this book free. Address THE CAUCASIAN, Goldsboro, N. C.

THE CAUCASIAN. SPECIAL OFFER:—For a Club of ten subscribers at 50 cents each (till after the election) we will send this book free. Address THE CAUCASIAN, Goldsboro, N. C.

THE CAUCASIAN. SPECIAL OFFER:—For a Club of ten subscribers at 50 cents each (till after the election) we will send this book free. Address THE CAUCASIAN, Goldsboro, N. C.

JUDGE WALTER CLARK.

USES AND ENDORSES THE

Electro-Poise. Investigation Invited. Electro-Irritation Co., 344 FOURTH AVENUE, NEW YORK.

W. L. DOUGLAS $3 SHOE FOR GENTLEMEN. $5, $4 and $3.50 Dress Shoe. $3.50 Police Shoe, 3 Soles. $2.50, $2 for Workingmen. $2 and $1.75 for Boys. LADIES AND MISSES, $3, $2.50 $2, $1.75.

THIS IS THE BEST $3. SHOE IN THE WORLD. W. L. DOUGLAS Shoes are stylish, easy fitting, and give better satisfaction at the price than any other make. Try one pair and be convinced. The stamping of W. L. Douglas's name and price on the bottom, which guarantees their value, saves thousands of dollars annually to those who wear the shoes who push the sale of W. L. Douglas Shoes, which will increase the sales on their full line of goods. They are sold at a low price and we believe you can save money by buying all your footwear of the dealer advertised below. Catalogue free upon application. W. L. DOUGLAS, Druggist, Mass.

HOOD & BRITT, Goldsboro, H. T. HAM, Mt. Olive, R. B. KINSEY, LaGrange, M. HANSTEIN, Clinton, THOMAS FERRETT, Faison, N. C.

FOR $19.50 YOU CAN Get a $45.00 Sewing Machine.

The Mary Jane Dish Washer. It has the latest improvements and attachments, and is warranted for ten years.—Freight Paid. Sold by W. H. WORTH, S. B. A., Raleigh, N. C.

ESTABLISHED 1871. L. W. SHERMAN & CO., FRUIT AND PRODUCE COMMISSION MERCHANTS. Formerly of J. S. Chamberline Co., 74 & 76 Commercial Street, BOSTON, MASS.

Advertising is the coupling pin that unites persistence and success.

1768, 1894. OLD NICK THE NICK WILLIAMS Double Rectifier WHISKEY IS BOOMING AND HAS BEEN MADE FOR 126 YEARS ON SAME PLANTATION. RYE OR CORN. Goods Over Four Years Old on Hand. Write for price-list, as we ship any quantity. Address: OLD NICK WHISKEY CO., Or Lock Box 25, Yadin Co. WILLIAMS, N. C.

Permanently Cured 111. HEALTH BRINGER to sick men and women. The Doctor is known as the leading and most successful specialist on Catarrh, Skin and Blood Diseases, Kidney and Urinary Troubles, Nervous and Physical Debility, Stricture, Female Weakness, etc. Address: DR. HATHAWAY & CO., 221 So. Broad St., Atlanta, Ga.

JOHN J. KELLY, General Commission Merchant, and SHIPPERS OF NEW RIVER OYSTERS. Farmers' Products A Specialty. 113 SOUTH FRONT ST., WILMINGTON, N. C. March 15-3mos.

WOVEN WIRE FENCE. 2 1/2, 3 and 4 No. 11 wire. 1000 ft. long. 4 ft. high. 100 ft. wide. Price per 100 ft. per rod.

THE CAUCASIAN not only has the largest paid up subscription list in North Carolina, but it goes to more homes in Wayne and adjoining counties than all the other papers in Wayne county combined.

THE CAUCASIAN. SPECIAL OFFER:—For a Club of ten subscribers at 50 cents each (till after the election) we will send this book free. Address THE CAUCASIAN, Goldsboro, N. C.

THE CAUCASIAN. SPECIAL OFFER:—For a Club of ten subscribers at 50 cents each (till after the election) we will send this book free. Address THE CAUCASIAN, Goldsboro, N. C.

THE CAUCASIAN. SPECIAL OFFER:—For a Club of ten subscribers at 50 cents each (till after the election) we will send this book free. Address THE CAUCASIAN, Goldsboro, N. C.

THE CAUCASIAN. SPECIAL OFFER:—For a Club of ten subscribers at 50 cents each (till after the election) we will send this book free. Address THE CAUCASIAN, Goldsboro, N. C.