vindication in the election of 1894. condemns. It is beyond dispute now that an honest declaration of the vote in 1892 would have given the State to Harrison. Cleveland's nomination was political suicide. It was a shameless confession of Democratic cowardice. Its support involved in dividual and party stultification. His election was the triumph of fraud at the ballot box. His administration has found extenuation only in the appointment of two obscu Southern men as members of his Cabinet, and the distribution of Federal patronage. The campaign i North Carolina was a brazen attemp to condone and justify his administration. That meant a coward! abandonment of Democratic princi ple-as Democracy had been exounded in North Carolina. It was treason to criticise the administra its integrity. It was political death to resent its defiant repudiation of Democratic pledges. The muzzle Democratic pledges. The muzzle was remorselessly applied to every man whose self-respect impelled him to a renunciation of the methods

The machine dominated the State the party, the press. Democratic success meant the re-election of Senator Kansom, who denomiced Gleveland at Chicago and, later, betrayed the people to serve him. these conditions the people won a signal, memorable, enduring victory. Any other result would have been a public disgrace. Self-respect, common decency, self-preservation, demanded it. The 50,000 democra's who defied machine dictation in splendid vindication. Sooner than accept conditions involving their stultification and abasement they defied party authority. It was this spirit that revolutionized the State.

PLEADING THE "BABY ACT."

Democratic defeat was inevitable. It was not unexpected to the demo-crats. Belief in democratic success reats. Belief in democratic success was confined to Mr. Pou, Senator Ransom and few others who had makes the succession of the local succession of the local succession and few others who had makes to the succession of local su situation in the State. On the eve of the election Senator Ransom wired here the confident opinion that his re-election was certain. He believed it. In 1892 he was confronted by similar conditions on the eve of the Pou lacked Simmons' training, expe rience and education. He is a blican by descent; not by law. Ransom failed to note the distinction. Pou's affidavit countenance impressed him. He Napoleonize eratic majority was fixed at 30,000 It was suggested to democratic eletion officials that 40,000 or 50,000 majority would be a proper rebuke to "Butler and his gang." "It is only a question of majority. Make it big enough," urged Pou. "End this Populist demogoguery now and for-

It seems increditable that Ransom's prodigious vanity obscured the situation. Senator Jarvis predicted the result. Certainly that is not a discouraging outlook in the cradle of Populism. Had the Populists and Democrats "paired" in Kansas as the Populists and Republicans "paired" in North Carolina the result might have been different. The result in Kansas was not unexpected; nor was the result in Colorado a surprise. There it was "Waiteism"—closely identified in public estimation with lawlessness—not Populism Where Populist ballots were counted there were large Populist gains. DEMOCRATIC INCOMPETENCY.

Why should it not disgust Mr. thus far, so far as producing revenue is concerned, and yet nearly all the lred millions less revenue than the xisting law. Democratic incompetency was never more distinctly shown. Some people insist that it Gwathney gives his consent to the publication of the above letter, hoping that it may be the means of helping the institute and reforming some was wanted.
