thunder-bolt is greater than it is pos-sible for the human mind to conceive. Last Sunday afternoon lightning struck the Methodist church at Quakertown, N. J., just after the close of the services, and carried desolation in its track. The congregation heard a deafening crash, then a tearing sound, and next came a dazzling, blinding white light of such terrible brilliancy that those who saw it have not yet fully recovered the use of their eyes. The bolt shattered the church tower, and fused big iron stays. It ran down into the vestibule and wrought terrible havoc among the frightened people who were waiting for the storm to

The lightning struck Miss Minnie Frace, injuring her fatally. It ran from the back of her head around her body and down her back and limbs to the floor. Her clothing was torn to shreds and completely stripped from her. Even her stockings and shoe were torn away and thrown some distance from her. The intense heat of the electric fluid fused the glass, gold and works of her watch into a solid mass. The girl's flesh was horribly burned, and turned black.

The minister, Rev. Mr. Bowman narrowly escaped with his life. His clothing was torn off, and he was left with nothing on but a tattered undershirt, one shoe and one sock. He was badly burned, and still suffers intense agony, while his blood has a boiling
