We interviewed Mr. Self as to the above editorial note, and he said: I don't see why making addresses before the Alliance should arouse any unfavorable criticism of my democracy. I think my last address, a correct outline of which appeared in the Mercury last week, is sufficiently democratic to satisfy any body who does not believe that the American people should be the slaves of the money power. I don't set myself up as a judge of other people's political faith, but I have allectric Building, - ways thought that true democracy that democracy which the great Vance declared to be "immortal," is the friend of the people, the help and hope of the men and women who who will be the men and women who who would be the men and women who who would be the men and women who will be the women who will be the women who will be the women who will be labor for their bread and meat.
