ABOUT THAT LAWYER CONVENTION

It is difficult to comment, in a political way, on any class of people, either by criticism or commendation without incurring the charge of be ing prejudiced in favor of or against that class, But despite this difficulty, after asserting that we are not in the least actuated by prejudice, we intend to say something here about lawyers in legislation.

It was pointed out last week that lawyers had full control of the so called Democratic State convention; that they took nearly everything in sight in the way of nominations, and that every man who had been nom:nated for Congress by the Democrats was a lawyer. It was not asserted masters-the British gold ring. nor will we ever assert that lawyers should not hold office; but we want to go on record as having a firm conviction that nothing can be more dangerous to the people than a complete control of their law-making by lawyers.

A lawyer is a man who is after a fee. It is his business to make a fee. There have been few cases, if indeed there ever was a case in law, with a are such as to justify the conscience of the lawyer in defending a known secondrel, on the ground that a man is entitled to a fair trial. We have the fact that fee bunting is the avocation of the lawyer.

corporations as counsel, and gets makes right." pay for it (and he does not usually serve without pay) he violates no

We are not making any charge against lawyers. We are stating facts, though, that cannot be denied; and facts like these, with the possibilities that attend them, are dangerous. It is a fact that there has been much legislation in favor of trusts, railroad corporations and the like, and it is a fact that these organizations always have representatives around the halls of Congress seeking more special legislation. It is a fact that they always employ lawyers to aid and counsel them: and it is a fact that, up to date, they have gotten pretty much every thing they wanted, while the people have gotten nothing.

In conclusion, we emphatically declare that lawyers have a full and unrestricted right to hold office. If they can bamboozle the people into giving them ALL the offices they, perhaps, have a right to do that. But in view of the fact that the last Congresses have been overwhelmingly dominated by them, and remembering the record of legislation made by these Congresses, we think we have a right to declare that the people act unwisely in trusting their legislation to the hands of a law-making body composed of a in jointy of lawyers.

We recognize the necessity of having lawyers as executive officers. judges, solicitors, Senators, Congressmen and State legislators, but we emphatically declare against the policy of putting them in control, by majority, of either the law-making or administration for State or nation. They constitute a class that eaunot be held to the discredit of be quite appropriate.
