The suffrage amendment is now part of the constitution of North Carolina. Large numbers of our citizens have been saying, for a long time, that they were not free to vote their honest sentiments in any election because of the presence of the negro in the politics of the State Democrats have said that they wanted the negro taken out of politics in order that all classes of our white men might be left free to vote their honest convictions in any and all future elections in this State. The claim is made that the ratification of the suffrage amendment has actually set all classes of the white people within the State free to vote as they please in elections hereafter to be held.

Let us admit, for the sake of argument, that the claims above act out are all legitimate and well founded. Now what follows?

First, it follows that the men who manage the great railway cor porations doing business within the State will feel perfectly free to vote for the great party that has always befriended those corporations, in the approaching national election; that is to say, the railway people of the state will vote for McKinley this full.

Second, it follows that the manufacturers of the state-who are protectionists to a man-will vote for the protectionist principles of the Republican party in November, and against Mr. Bryan and his low
