WHEN THE "NIGGER" IS OUT OF POLITICS!

For something like a year there have been appearing in various papers purported interviews from Southern political demagogues in which they are quoted as saying that when the negro "gets out of" or is "eliminated from" politics, there will be or may be a new alignment of parties in some of the Southern states, that there will be more independence among "legally accredited" voters, and that they will vote according to their judgment and inclinations etc., etc.

A singular fact in connection with these interviews is that not a single man interviewed has ever expressed his own independence, and it is easy to draw the conclusion that each and every one of them will continue to do his best to keep the negro in politics as an issue, at least, for the simple reason that their demagogical yell of "nigger" is their only political "craft" or salvation.

As a matter of fact, since the national troops were withdrawn from the Southern states after the so-called "reconstruction," the negro has never been in politics except to vote or to think he was voting; and it is a well known fact that his vote has generally been counted according to the needs of the democratic demagogue. With every safeguard that could be thrown around the franchise of the negro, it would be as impossible for him to "dominate" any Southern state as it would be if he had no vote at all. Knowing this, there have been, and there are today, men who have shown their political independence by opposing democratic demagogues without fear of its "nigger yelling" character or without fear of the negro in politics, and these men have an unbounded contempt for the political shyster who had no independence because of his alleged fear of the negro. No white man who ever felt his actual superiority to the African race—who was convinced in his soul that the negro was an inferior being, has ever resorted to the degrading and debasing practice of "nigger yelling."

A man with a genuine consciousness of superiority easily perceives that such a course does not put the negro any lower than he really is, and it is a self-evident fact that the shyster politician who cannot rise without the negro as a basis of his elevation is not one bit higher than the negro can put him. He is only just above the negro, and if the negro should suddenly be transported from the Southern country, these nigger howling shysters would naturally fall in to the place made vacant by the negro's removal. They would have nothing on God's earth to stand on, and would be bound to rest on the level which the negro left. This indisputable fact accounts for the low order of men who are in control of the government of the Southern states to-day—that order to which Tillman, Simmons and other similar characters who are unknown outside their own states belong. The same condition accounts for the fact that the men of big brain and sterling character in the Southern states cannot be leaders in political matters. They scorn to try to come to the front on such a low level, and they despise the shysters who will take that level.

In these days there are no Lamars, Hamptons, Herberts and Vances at the head of Southern politics, and under the "nigger yelling" regime such characters cannot come to the front, for the reason that there is in them an honor and respectability which make it impossible for them to stoop low enough for that purpose. Those demagogues who are mouthing about the time when the negro is eliminated from politics know that such a time is never coming if they can prevent it. They are uncertain of themselves as to actual merit, and they cannot consent to a test in which morality and good character is involved. If they were not cowards and shysters they would show their stamina and independence under all circumstances—provided, of course, they had any. Even today, when the negro is "eliminated" by grand-father clauses and such like cowardly subterfuges, the man who ventures to show some independence in the South is immediately "jumped upon" by the "nigger yell" and abused and vilified to the greatest limit which the "nigger yell" can reach; and so long as the "nigger yelling" hords can, by red shirt methods and rabid anarchy, excite the people to blind rage, just so long that hords will keep it up without regard to what-er a single nigger ever casts another ballot or not. Their next cry will be something like this: "We have got the nigger out of politics (whether they have or not); lets keep him out." And they hope to make this yell as effective for their purposes as they have made the "nigger yelling" they have heretofore been doing. Hence it is plain the "nigger" is not going out of politics if the red shirt hords can keep him in, no matter whether he votes or not. And just so long as the "nigger yell" can make their slogan effective, just so long will the government of the Southern states be in the hands of the low order of men and looting thugs that have control of the South to-day.

It seems to many men who have the good of the state at heart, instead of purposes for looting it, that efforts to draw the attention of the people to facts of importance are well nigh hopeless. This is so because of the limited criticism of the wild extravagance and prostitution of power that are so rampant in North Carolina to-day. It must be—it is bound to be that ignorance of what is going on is the only cause of silence among the people. But as long as the tactics of the "nigger yell" have any force and power, it will be well nigh useless to try to bring the people to a realization of facts. As long as that hord of "nigger yell" can get the consent of the people to blind themselves to issues of importance to both individual and state, just so long will this state and some others be subjected to the burning shame, disgrace to decency and reproach to Christianity that are now cursing and degrading it.

THE FARMER, HIS FOES AND THE LESSON.

From the West and South comes appalling news of the destruction and suffering consequent upon the prolonged and intense heat with which those sections of the country have been afflicted. Nor indeed has our own State and its neighbors been free from the havoc which it is in the power of the elements to bring about. What heat and drought have done for the crops of the West, a super-abundance of rain has accomplished for the farmers of this section. In Kansas, Nebraska, Missouri and Iowa corn has been practically ruined, the hay abandoned and wheat so greatly affected that it is likely to prove a total loss. The heat has been unprecedented both for intensity and long duration. Streams are drying up, and there being almost no fodder, live-stock is dying or else being driven to the market and sacrificed at any price. In our own State cotton is far below the average, corn is a failure and other crops are seriously damaged. The rainfall has been so excessive that the earth has been washed away and valleys transformed into lakes.

The farmer has much to contend against. It matters not to the artisan or to the professional man that the skies are unpropitious or that the general warmth of the sun grows into a torrent of fire. His business goes on just the same, the only difference to him being an element of personal discomfort. But to the farmer the amount of sunshine and the quantity of rain are component parts of the risk he assumes. Too much heat may be his undoing; a plethora of water may bring about his ruin. His labors may be brought to naught because the elements have not played friends with him. No matter how faithful his work, no matter how ceaseless his toil, if the sun and clouds conspire against him the earth will refuse to yield from her bosom the bountiful harvest which care and labor would seem to justify. Yet wital the farmer goes on his uncomplaining way, hoping that next year fortune will look more favorably upon him.

Perhaps the lesson thus taught by the farmer to his discontented brethren in other walks of life is not the least of the benefits he furnishes mankind. We rejoice in the fact that the republican party has never yet gotten so low as to enact in any state of this Union a Goebel or Simmons election law. The republican party is a party of the people and for the people and is always willing for the people to express themselves at the ballot box. The democrats are afraid to trust the people, hence their bull pens and jail bird election officers on election day.—Chatham Citizen.

Whatever exceptions may be taken to the statement that the Republican party "is a party of the people and for the people," it is nevertheless true and much to the credit of that party that it has never become so degraded and recanted to all ideas of political purity as to place on the statute books of any state under its control a Simmons election law. The Chatham Citizen has cause to feel proud of this feature of republicanism. At the same time it must be apparent that no party of American men, unless actuated by an insatiate longing for office and insatiable lust for power, could descend so low and become so contemptible as had the democracy of North Carolina in standing sponsor for the Simmons' election law.

General Carr having unbundled himself and the News and Observer having given vent to its overwrought feelings, the public may now take its hands from its face and pursue the even tenor of its way.

Any person knowing of an anti-state for that "Carr-feeling" should communicate with the editor of the News and Observer.

Silk Growing in the United States.

Whether we shall grow the thirty to forty million dollars' worth of raw silk which we are now importing depends more upon the question of feasibility than that of possibility, says O. P. Austin in Everybody's Magazine. Silk has been produced in many of the states, even as far north as New England, and as far south as Florida; but for various causes, chiefly lack of experience and the competition of the cheap labor of the Orient and Italy, it has not been a financial success. The application of the intelligence and skill which have brought success in other lines of long-neglected industry may change all this. The number of silk manufacturing establishments in the United States is increasing every year, thirty-nine new plants having been established in 1900 alone; and their product now amounts to over one hundred million dollars annually. It is not improbable that American genius supported by American capital may yet find a way of supplying from our industries the forty million dollars' worth of raw materials which these factories require.

Unlooked for Complications.

Washington, July 19.—John W. Yerkes, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, said this morning that under the Foraker act it is very probable that new regulations will have to be framed regarding tobacco, cigars, snuff, etc., which are imported from Porto Rico to the United States. "As matters stand now," said Mr. Yerkes, "there is no way prescribed in which the revenue can be collected. Inasmuch as free trade exists between the United States and Porto Rico, and the vessels which carry tobacco, cigars, etc., from Porto Rico to the United States are plying their trade as coastwise vessels and not as vessels engaged in foreign trade, it is practically impossible to collect the revenue tax, as coastwise vessels are not subjected to the inspection of customs officers.

Denounced Dead Congressman in his Funeral Remarks.

Chicago Record-Herald. At the funeral of the late Congressman, A. N. Martin, held yesterday in the First Presbyterian church, Rev. C. C. Miller, the pastor, uttered remarks in the course of his sermon that have created a sensation. During the service the widow and daughter asked to be taken from the church. "It would have been far better," said Mr. Miller, "if Martin would have been shot on the field of battle than to have lived to lead the life he did. He was in public office the better portion of his life, and made in one office $100,000, but was sent home for burial in a cheap pine coffin furnished by the government. His life has been a tragedy, and the use of liquor has made it so."

Death and Famine Threaten the Holy City.

London, July 18.—"Death and famine threaten the Holy City," says the Jerusalem correspondent of The Standard, in a communication dated July 6, "on account of the scanty water supply, due to the insufficient rains of last winter. "The Sultan has granted permission to the municipality to bring water from the Pools of Solomon through iron pipes into the city along the line of Solomon's stone aqueduct. The new works were begun today on telegraphic orders from the Sultan, who contributes 6,000 liras. They will be finished in two months."
