Sharps and Flats,

For some time past doctors in France have been warning the public against the dangers of the latest craze -opium smoking. The habit has been Introduced by officers and others home from Indo-China and gradually extended to society at Marseilles and Toulon. After being adopted in other seaports the mania has now reached Paris, where it is reported to have widely spread.

Arrangements have been completed for the return of President Roosevelt and his family, and the executive force to Washington. The party will leave Oyster Bay next Monday morning, at 9 o'clock on a special Long Island Railroad train.

GROWTH OF YOUNG STOCK. Variety of food gives more rapid growth to young stock and increases the flow of milk of the dams. All kinds of stock are more thrifty when they are not confined to one or two articles of food,

THE BROOD SOW.

A little forethought in providing proper accommodation for the brood sow pays exceedingly well. Clumsy sows lying on and killing their young are common experiences on the farm. and seriously reduce the profits. A large measure of this may be avoided by not having the sows too fat. Keep the sow quiet. Avoid using too much straw as litter. Cut straw makes a good bed, as the sow cannot then gather it into a "nest," which is always dangerous to young pigs, in that it is almost impossible for them to escape should the sow lie down on them. It is a good plan to fix a railing around the farrowing pen. It should be about six to eight inches above the floor, and about a foot from the wall. When the pigs are apt to get crushed between the sow and the wall, but such a railing prevents this, and allows the young porker to escape.

CHEAP CHICKEN COOP.

A very simple and cheap coop for hen and chickens is shown in the accompanying sketch. Take a box measuring about eighteen by twenty-four inches and from fourteen to eighteen in height. Remove all boards from top of box, also about twelve inches on one of the sides from top and down, Then take laths and nail them into the side of box where boards have been removed, leaving openings three inches apart between laths to let the little upside down, and place the hen and so that water will not flow into it not make smoking compulsory. when it rains. Such a coop is handy, and it will hardly cost you more than a few minutes of work to make it .-Lewis Olsen, in The Epitomist.

DUST BATHS.

In summer, as well as in winter, hens greatly appreciate a dust bath. When they have their full liberty they generally scratch and scratch in a dry hedge-corner till they make dust baths | not be a hedgehog. for themselves, but those in confinement must have it supplied. Any dry dust does; road dust, dry sand, sifted ashes. There should be a heap of it put in the run, or anywhere except under the poultry-house; the raisedfloor house is no longer popular, as the space beneath is always wet and cold. The dust bath should be in the sun, but needs, of course, shelter from rain. It is well to mix a little sulphur in the dust. It amounts to cruelty to deny fowls a dust bath, even when they are free from lice, as they obviously enjoy it so much. It indirectly improves the egg yield, for it affords them occupations and keeps them in health. Chickens from a week old enjoy a dust bath if they can have it; nothing keeps lice away more, and yet many poultrykeepers give their chickens no opportunity to keep themselves free of these

DON'T BLAME THE COW.

Is the cow to blame because she is thin in flesh and gives little milk? The man who says this is true ought to be ashamed of himself. He knows well enough that his own carelessness or wilful negligence has brought the cow where she is. The cow has no way of keeping up flesh except through the feed you and I give her. If any one is to be found fault with, it is the Because she kicks or steps about when you are milking? Don't say "Yes" to this until you have stopped to inquire whether or not you are doing your part as you should. Any cow that is really alive would feel like showing her opinion of the man who cure constipation. pinches, pulls, hauls and twists her as some do while milking. Be fair with the cow and she will be fair with you. Because the butter will not come? I have known some who scolded fearfully because "that cow's milk is to blame" for her master being compelled to churn an hour or two at a time. It is about time such men learned the first principles of butter-making. Then they will see that last of all the cow should be held accountable for the kind or quality of the butter produced or the length of time taken to make it. In short, instead of kicking the cow, most of us have better grounds for taking a day off with our own selves, and see if we are not the ones that need the punishment.-Farmer Vincent, in Farm Journal.

Disease is afways a handleap; it unfits men for business and pleasure - sometimes temporarily. often permanently. Life is a continuous struggle, and the man or woman afflicted with a Chronic Disease is outclassed at every turn. In this age of sharp competition, no man are hope to be successful unless sound in mind and body. During my long career as a specialist, I have seen thousands who are carrying around some obstinate chronic disease as a burdensome companion, which they could easily rid themselves of by the proper treatment. Any honest physician will tell you that these diseases are stubborn and obderate, and a special knowledge is required to treat them successfully. My special fitness for treating Chronia Diseases has been acquired by twenty years of close application, devoted exclusively to their study and t eatment. I have treated more cases than any other physician in the United States, and I thoroughly understand just what is required in each case My specialty includes all chronic diseases, such as Stricture, Vari coccle, Blood and Skin Disease, Bladder and Kidney Complaints, Diseases of Women, etc., and my original method of treatment has proven successful in even the most obstinate cases.
