Cotton Badly Damaged.
Mr. R. L. Sorrell, a prominent farmer who lives in the northern section of the county, was in Raleigh Tuesday and said that there was a very poor prospect for a cotton crop in his section of the county. The young cotton was damaged by the recent cold spell, and it is now too late to replant. Mr. Sorrell said that the prospect for a good corn crop was very favorable.

Mr. Chas. D. Wildes, an attorney of Raleigh, while under the influence of whiskey last week went to the homes of Mr. A. J. Williford and Mr. R. W. Dunn, who live in his neighborhood, and threatened to shoot members of the family, because he thought they had reported him to the police. Mrs. Dunn phoned for the police Saturday morning who took Mr. Wildes to the police station where he remained until he had gotten in better condition. He appeared in police court yesterday morning for trial and was fined $75 and costs. Mr. Wildes said he much regretted the occurrence and expected to go to Keeley Institute for treatment.

For Better Highways.

The act passed by the last Legislature to promote and stimulate the construction of improved roads in North Carolina carries an appropriation of five thousand dollars annually out of any moneys in the treasury not otherwise appropriated for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of the act. This money is to be drawn by the Geological Board.
The object and purpose of this appropriation is to enable the North Carolina Geological Board to advise with the townships and county authorities in the building and improvement of the public roads, by sending them in locating their improved roads advise them as to the best roads to build and how to build them, and also give advice relating to the best kind of bridges to build in connection with the improvement of any road.
The Geological Board through the State Geologist may make inquiries in regard to systems of road-building and management throughout the United States, and make investigations and experiments in regard to the best road making and the best kinds of road material; and shall disseminate such knowledge by lectures to be given in the different counties and by preparing bulletins and reports on the subjects of road improvements, and shall also gather and tabulate information and statistics on road building in North Carolina and disseminate the same throughout the State.—Lincolnton Times.

Had a Tooth in His Tongue.

Mr. David Mitchell, who lives with Mr. Solomon Gregory, near the Fairview community, has had an experience that is extraordinary. Fourteen years ago he was shot with a 38-caliber pistol, the ball knocking out two teeth. On last Saturday he came to Union and had Dr. Montgomery examine his tongue, for something was evidently wrong with that member. Dr. Montgomery carried the patient to Dr. I. M. Hair, and out of his tongue was extracted one of the teeth which were shot into the center of the top of the tongue, and when the gunshot wound healed the tooth was inside the body of the tongue.

Recently Mr. Mitchell felt this strike against his other teeth. He came on a few days later and had the tooth taken from his tongue.
As to Pie Hunters.
Bessemer City Messenger!
When Governor Russell was looking around to get eight directors, a president, a treasurer and a secretary for the State owned N. C. R. R., he had a hard time in getting men to accept the directorship and only half a dozen or less applicants for the presidency and treasurer. When his Democratic successor was elected, so we were informed, there were 700 or 800 applicants for each of these places and now even for an office nominally belonging to a Republican Judge we were informed there were eighteen or nineteen Democrats anxious for the place, with the woods full of mouths watering, and this leads us to believe sincerely that the Republican masses are far above the Democratic masses in patriotism and Americanism. The facts in the case warrants this assertion.

The "wet" majority was 578, in a total vote of 1,792.
This Law Won't Hold.
Some learned judge has decided that a man is drunk when he becomes a nuisance to others. This won't hold. We know some men who never tasted liquor in their lives who are great nuisances—as great as some drunkards.—Lincolnton Times.

Negro Rapist Captured.

Chapter House Burned.
The Alpha Tau Omega fraternity building at Chapel Hill was destroyed by fire yesterday.

BILKINS IN ITALY.

substantial. The walls are covered with fine paintings. The Vatican is really a collection of buildings, but well air connected, and being used for the same purposes, it may be spoken of as one building.
St. Peter's Church, the largest and finest in the world, is located near the Vatican. They say that fifty thousand people can be crowded into their church at one time.
Under the dome of this great church is the tomb of St. Peter and a vast number of lamps burn around this tomb day and night. One of the columns in this building is said to have been taken from Solomon's temple.
This church or cathedral, as it is often called, contains probably the best collection of mosaic pictures to be found. These pictures are very large, very handsome, and were made by skillfully piecing together small bits of marble and other stone, many colors in the stone being shown, and put together so well that the rich pictures might be taken for oil paintings by almost anyone. Of course a mosaic cost a great deal. These mosaic pictures all represent Bible scenes and are truly wonderful.
I find that much of the city of Rome is more or less new looking. But the ruins of the old city, ancient Rome, are old enough for anything. Some of the "remains" or buildings look like they had just come out of a red-hot perillitic canpane. The Colosseum is one of the few buildings that he stood up under the ravages of time, though it is badly disfigured. It was built in the day when the rulers didn't mind blowing in a million or two of dollars, or even more, if they had any pet schemes to carry out. The Colosseum was where the gladiators met to fight to the death and when men fought bulls and other animals for the amusement of the public. This gigantic folly was built to seat fifty thousand people. It had 160 doors and stairways, and you could take your choice if you had the price of a ticket. Nero and the other heavyweight polytheists had ter hev aw sich ter amuse the folks an' keep them from watchin' the administrators too closely. But that is aw changed now. The up-to-date polytheist keeps the folks a-argyfin' over the tariff, the money question or local option or something else just as worthless while he gets the dough.

The "Forum" is another old building in which is rich in historical interest, even more so than most other buildings in what they call "ancient Rome." It was here that the Roman orators, such as Cicero and Mark Antony, the latter a character created by Shakespeare, air supposed to hev delivered their greatest speeches. Cicero was a real gude stump-speaker, if history hev bin kept strate. As I stood before the "tribune," as the ancient stone rostrum is called, I wished I could see an' hear Cicero—hear him thunder his eloquence—hear him plead for the oppressed, the down-trodden, the helpless! But who kin give the strate or hit? Publick speakin', like everytin' else, hev bin at about the same standard fer ages. Orators air born, not made. Cicero wuz, doubtless, a purty gude speaker an' could bring down the house when he got warmed up. But I hev an idea that Patrick Henry air a few others in America, some of them now livin', could hev gone on the stump with Cicero and they could hev made him feel like fifteen cents. But the feller that gets on the ground early air carries off the red ribbons—that is, the feller that gets talked erbout.
Rome airso produced Raphael, the great artist. His genius wuz the talk of the world, is yet. His tomb is in the Roman Pantheon. I think he painted the "Maddona," considered probably the finest picture in the world. The "Maddona" is a wonderful picture, almost beyond description. But "The Horse Fair," a painting by Rosa Bonheur, equals him in some respects as a work of art. Both paintings air really remarkably fine.
On the tomb of Raphael Cardinal Bembo, in recognition of Raphael's genius, had the following epitaph carved:—
"Living, great nature feared he might outvie Her works, and dying fears herself to die."
In the two poetic lines will be found erbout as strong words as could be used in the epitaph or an artist. But, extravagant as they appear, Raphael nearly deserved them.
Az ever,
ZEKE BILKINS.

REHEARING GRANTED IN CONTEMPT CASE.

Defendants in Chattanooga Lynching Case Before United States Supreme Court.

Washington, D. C., June 1.—The proceedings of the Supreme Court shortly after noon to-day in which it was expected that former Sheriff J. F. Shipp, Henry Padgett, Nick Nolan, Jerry Gibson, William Mays and Luther Williams, of Chattanooga, Tenn., would be sentenced for contempt of the Supreme Court in the Johnson lynching case, was devoid of the sensational features which it was generally expected would attend the event. The defendants with their counsel, Judge G. W. Chamberle, Judge Lewis H. Shepard, and M. O. Clift, all of Chattanooga, arrived at the court shortly before noon, at which hour the court was to convene, as usual. Immediately after the members of the court entered counsel for the defendants spoke briefly in turn on the application for a re-hearing.
The members of the court at once retired for consultation. They were absent but a few minutes. On their return they announced that it had been decided to grant the application, and that the defendants would be required to give bail in $1,000 bonds each at the United States District Court at Knoxville, Tenn. This is the same amount under which they have heretofore been held.
