MR. McNINCH'S PLATFORM.

Mr. S. S. McNinch, Nominee of the Republican Party for Congress in Advocate of the Ship Subsidy and An Awakening is at Hand.

Samuel S. McNinch, president and treasurer of the Charlotte Brick Company, and one of the city's leading business men, has issued, at the request of friends, the following statement of principles and policles on which he will appear before the voters of the Ninth District, to solicit their support on the Republican ticket for Congress:

lar on the ship subsidy proposition, I labor. have to say that if sent to Congress from this District, it will be my aim and serious effort to represent all the manufacturing and business elements, believing that the farming interrors are so interwoven with the facturing interests that if I help the one the results can only be beneficial to the other.

By way of expression, I would feel it my duty to respond to the wishes of the cotton interests, going the full limit of my endeavors to secure that meed of protection as well as such revision of the cotton schedules from time to time as may be desired by the different milling propositions, hoping to be helpful to that industry of our Southern country which I conceive is the basis of almost all our prosperity. Surely the farmers know that their interests and the interests of the mills are interdependent, and that their joint prosperity means the life of the merchant class, and all the artisans and mechanics.

South Needs Protection.

With the proper extension of governmental protection to our Southern cotton mills as against the foreign labor, notably so at this time, the Japanese laborer, who works for from nine cents to thirty cents per day; with our shipping industry, which is practically dead, revised by means of ship subsidy, so that our merchant marine would be the equal of any on the globe, causing cheap freight rates to all of the markets of the world, thus giving added demand for our cotton and cotton manufactures as well as other products, I can conceive a most happy and normal condition of society in this Southland of ours, so long ill treated and so unfortunately served after that great calamity our civil war. Led by our passions and prejudices from our best interests, we have been in opposition to those progressive policies, which in a short time have built up the greatin our affairs has long since passed. too late. Foreign trade aided by a subsidized merchant marine will vastly benefit us all.

Merchant Marine.

It is necessary to foster our merchant marine, just as we stimulate our crops with commercial fertilizer. I can conceive that the time will not be far distant when the intelligent farmer can reasonably expect from twenty to thirty cents per pound for his cotton, and when his lands would be worth $100 or more per acre; I can conceive of that splendid prosperity which exists in sections of the North and West, which, when I first traveled through it some years ago, made my heart sad to realize how very poor the South was as a whole, and especially so in the farming sections. I can conceive that almost every available patch of land Would be forced to give forth, because of intelligent, ambitious, procotton, wheat, corn, oats, live stock, fruits and all the products of husbandry, whereas, today, as most of us know, our farming interest is not greatly successful, and it is largely because of ill-rewarded labor and a condition of poverty, which is not productive of ambitious and well-directed effort.

I can conceive under proper conditions of an extensive activity in our mines, quarries, etc., if that stimulus of a proper merchant marine, giving life and activity, to all our possibilities, is accomplished.

If our Southland, with its extensive party, there will be numerous harbors, with extensive dry docks for be estimated at a cheap figure. shipping, coming and going, all over the world, as busy bees, actively laying-by the comforts and necessities of

> The truth is, there is no better stock of people on earth than this Southern mixture of ours. It is proven by the events of the past here and in Europe. Ours is the stock that has accomplished, and we can and will always control when we try to do so, if our efforts are wisely directed without prejudices.

An Awakening Coming.

I know that the awakening is here, but it is hard for some to understand and still harder for some of us to act. I myself have experienced this, but from the assurances received from many within the last few weeks, I know we are close to our old-time usefulness. The full realization of this awful situation, through which we have been going for years, may be yet a little while off, but I know-yes, I know,-that from the mountains to the seashore our people are awake, and like a giant that has slumbered, when aroused, there will come a reckonfitable effort, a bountiful store of ing, which I fear will carry our people too far, when they have fully realized the wrongs and how they have been led so misguidedly in the

as in all the other affairs of life, is to begin at home. Of course, then, all public men look after their section and without active, patriotic, progressive Representatives in Congress in line with the Republican policies of protection, and so on, we cannot expect the full measure of governmental friendship, and we all know that we have not had it, and have been falsely taught that we did not want it. Oft-time our people have gone into the legislative halls of Congress moved by prejudice and filled with venom, based on the wrongs and misfortunes of the past, fighting an unequal battle without occasion, and with evil results. The day for such has long since past, as

No man in the Southland is more sympathetic with the conditions of our country, before, during and after the Civil War; no man has greater regard for the heroes or more consideration for the sacrifices of the past than I. My only material inheritance is the sword which my father captured from a ranking officer at Manassas. I cherish it as I ought; I would gladly give it up to the rightful owner, if I knew of him. But being filled with the fine holy sentiments of our ancestors' ancestry and its causes; being able to look back on the wisdom and unwisdom of it all; holding always in great respect the Southern soldiers on one side and the Northern soldiers on the other, I say that I owe to my country the best efforts of my brain and brawn, and that every one else owes the same, for the upbuilding and the advancement of our people who have never yet been permitted because of their misdirected zeal the full benefits of the greatest country on earth.

This is a known fact without dispute.

I never made a Democratic speech in my life. I have made speeches for prohibition when the issue was up. Since the days of Cleveland, when he was discarded by the Democrats, as my personal friends know, I was never in full accord with the Democratic party, and they will give me credit for this fact. I have often been chided by my friends because of it, but my friends put up with me, knowing that I was always loyal to them, and that I was exceedingly independent in all my actions and thought. I love my friends. Who doesn't? The criticism of my partisan and political enemies is a reminder of the old, old days of my sea pirate ancestry, roving the North Carolina seas. It savors also somewhat of the Scotch Clans who could always fight their nearest neighbor, if half an excuse was given. I cannot help but enjoy it all. It runs through my veins for two thousand years. But if I get into the minds of the people of our Ninth District that I want to help them, their wives and children-all the deviltry being brewed to distract their attention will be unavailing. When this at random letter has been fully discussed, I will furnish even more later on. S. S. McNINCH.
