Chinese Uprising Feared.

Washington, Oct. 1 .- Reports of possible revolutionary outbreaks in getting them to buy worthless China are causing some apprehension among government officials, but so far no official reports have been received, the information having come from private sources.

The anti-dynastic element has been active in several provinces, and it is admitted that there is some occasion for fear of an uprising. Ever since the last intervention both the army and navy have arranged their plans with a view to a possible repetition of the outbreak. At the present time however, there is no intention of dispatching troops to China from the Philippines, it was asserted at the War Department, though all is in readiness for such a move.
