MARION BUTLER'S RAL-EIGH SPEECH.

highest price for even any necessity for life that he was thereby being robbed, was utterly and miserably false. They had charged that the Republican party was in league with the Sugar Trust, the Steel Trust, the Nail Trust, the Leather Trust, the Cotton Trust, the Standard Oil Trust and all other trusts, and that they were busy legislating to rob the people in the interests of these trusts.

"This, indeed, was the burden of their cry in the campaign speeches against the crime of high prices. Senator Simmons knew that when the facts were brought out, it would show that a housewife could today take thirty dozen eggs and buy more than twice as much sugar, under the present Republican high prices than dozen eggs in 1896, under the Cleveland administration of low prices and a Democratic tariff. Indeed, to be accurate, the housewife can, with thirty dozen eggs, today buy one hundred and sixty-two pounds of granulated sugar of the best quality, while with the same thirty dozen eggs in 1896 she could buy only seventy-seven pounds of exactly the same grade of sugar.

"He also knew that with the same thirty dozen eggs this housewife could today buy one hundred and ten yards of ginghams, while in 1896, with the same thirty dozen eggs, she could buy only seventy-two yards of the same ginghams. He also knew that with the same thirty dozen eggs she could today buy sixty-five gallons of kerosene oil, while with the same thirty dozen eggs in 1896 she could buy only thirty-three gallons of exactly the same oil. He also knew that she could today buy at least twice as many pairs of shoes, and on some grades more than twice from Raleigh, and his neighbor, a ment of the canal zone, and for the as many pairs of shoes, with the same thirty dozen eggs, as she could city, each with a 500 pound bale of chief amendment was one introduced the President of the United States

"They failed, however, to keep a single promise, and have long since have said before, they have taken the Choctaw and Chickasaw land repudiated every single promise made in that campaign. I then left that party of unbelief, negation, inaction and incompetency forever. I was convinced that the party was not and could never be a great constructive party, competent to handle this great nation, and continue it onward and upward in the magnificent manner in which it has been guided and developed by the Republican party.

"Senator Gore has so far managed to remain with that party, though he declares today that if Senator La-Follette, the leading progressive Reocrat that could be named.

"I hold in my hand a verbatim report of one of the great speeches made by Senator Gore in this State cratic paramount. After talking for over two hours in attempting to show that high prices was a crime, and that the Republican party and a Republican tariff were responsible for it, he closes his speech in these words:

"I wish it could be arranged by way of experiment, so that every article imported into the United States could bear a tag showing the price of the article plus the tariff, and also the price of the article less the tariff, and I wish it could be arranged by way of experiment, so that every Republican could buy the article at the price plus the tariff, and every Democrat could buy the article at the price less the tariff. Thus it would be 'Unto every man according to his faith."

"This closing declaration of Senator Gore was the sum and substance of his whole speech. The newspaper reports say that when Senator Gore concluded his great speech with the above sentence, that the Democratic audience went wild with delight and cheered for over ten

"Now, let us analyze for a moment what this best and crowning argument which has yet been made in support of the Democratic paramount means, and to where it will lead if carried to its logical conclusion. If every article which the farmer buys, the price of which has been increased on account of the protective tariff, should have a tag placed on it she could buy with the same thirty showing just what that increase is, and if every Republican farmer should be forced, as Senator Gore desires, to pay the full price, including the tariff duties, and if every Democratic farmer should be allowed, according to Senator Gore's wish, to buy the same article at the lower price, less the tariff duties, then I submit that to carry out Senator Gore's arguments in a fair and a just way that each Republican farmer should be permitted to sell his cotton at the price it is now bringing. under Republican policies and a Republican high tariff, at fifteen cents a pound, and that each Democratic farmer should be required to sell his cotton at the price it brought under a Democratic tariff and Democratic low prices in 1896, which (Great applause.)
