One by One.
Though from the boughs to which they've long been clinging
The Autumn leaves are dropping one by one,
Yet from their dust new forms of beauty, springing,
Shall smile again in Summer's gentle sun.

Though one by one the pearly drops of morning
From drooping flowers, on viewless pinions rise,
We'll see them yet the gorgeous clouds adorning
With glowing arches of celestial dyes.

Though one by one the stars are fading slowly
That all night long kept vigil in the sky,
The distant mountain-peaks, like prophets holy,
Proclaim that morning's light and song are nigh.

Though with slow steps goes forth the sower weeping,
And on earth's lap his precious treasure leaves,
Yet come the harvest, with its joyous reaping,
When shall be gathered home the ripened sheaves.

Though one by one the friends we fondly cherish
Withdraw from ours, the cold and trembling hand,
And leave us sorrowful, they do not perish—
They yet shall greet us in a fairer land.

Yes; from all climes, wherever the faithful slumber
'Neath scorching suns, or Arctic snow and frost,
Stainless they'll rise, in myriads without number;
All, all, shall meet—there shall not one be lost.

A Congregation Makes the Pastor.
If your preacher is not quite up to the measure of the stature of your ideal; if he is not so eloquent as Robertson, or entertaining as Beecher, or eloquent as Brooks; if he lacks somewhat on the social side, and is a little slow and awkward in making friends, the poorest of all remedies is criticism or censure. For all ordinary ministerial failings an ounce of cooperation is worth a pound of criticism; a gill of sympathy more than a gallon of censure. Any sincerely pious man of ordinary talents can be made into an efficient, successful pastor by a congregation; and any man, however good and gifted, can be made a failure by the congregation. A congregation may be known by the sort of pastors it makes.—Christian Standard.

Nonsense in Teaching.
With all our modern improvements in education there is much to be condemned. There is much in our schools that is practically of no benefit to anyone. The only object accomplished is the killing of time. Much of the so-called busy work is only that much nonsense.

Recently we visited a school. Upon entering the room we found the teacher in the midst of a recitation in grammar. We listened awhile, and what do you suppose we heard? "What is a noun?" "A name word." That was enough to disgust us. In quick succession followed the questions and answers: "What is a verb?" "An action word." "What is an adverb?" "A when, where or how word." "What is a preposition?" "A relation word," and so the nonsense continued.

Why was it that these children were not correctly taught as to these parts of speech? It takes no longer for a child to learn what a noun is, than to tell it is a name word. Don't you suppose the child questions as to what kind of a name it is? What sort of action a verb is, right or wrong, backaction or what? And as to the relation word the child doesn't know whether the relation is a male or female.

Much so called language training is only a burlesque, and had better be put out of schools altogether. Every child in the land knows what a cat, a dog, a horse, a cow is long before they go to school. Why spend days in telling them that the trial some of the birds, one runs, and the other gives us the milk so greatly enjoyed by all children? Why not tell a child that a doggie is a dog, a pussy is a cat, a horsey is a horse and a bossy is a cow? Children are not idiots or fools. They, oftentimes have more brains than those who attempt to teach them.—The Schoolmaster.

A Surprised "Citizen."
Citizen, in the Danville Register expresses surprise at the misquotation of the scripture, made by the lawyers in the Clark case, of whom he says, are prominent among the teachers in the Sunday School.

If this gentleman, whoever he may be, will take the pains to find out, he will soon discover that very few persons can quote scripture accurately. If there be any portions of the bible which ought to be committed to memory accurately, it is the Lord's prayer, and not one in a hundred can repeat it verbatim. Many of the preachers even, say trespasses when the word, in one place, is "sins" and, in the other, "debts." A great many say who art in heaven, instead of "which," and on earth instead of "in earth." They say too, "forever and ever." The and ever is not in the prayer at all.—Danville Times.

The average person trims off the thirty-second part of an inch from each finger nail a week, or about an inch and a half every year. The average of human life all over the world is 40 years. There are 1,300,000,000 people in the world who, therefore, waste on an average 28,400 miles of finger nail in a generation.

Great Seal of the United States.
The device for the great seal of the United States was adopted by Congress on June 20, 1782. It was designed by William Barton, Esq., of Philadelphia, at the request of the Secretary of Congress, Charles Thompson. Its heraldic description is as follows:

Arms—Paleways of 13 pieces, argent and gules, a chief, azure; the escutcheon on the breast of the American bearded eagle displayed. The eagle holds in his dexter talon an olive branch and in his sinister a bundle of arrows. In his beak he holds a scroll inscribed "E Pluribus Unum." Over the head of the eagle, which appears above the escutcheon, a glory, or sun breaking through a cloud, this surrounded by 13 stars, forming a constellation argent on an azure field.

Reverse—A pyramid unfinished. In the zenith an eye in a triangle surrounded by a glory. Over the eye the words "Annuit Cœptis." On the base of the pyramid these numeral letters, MDCCCLXXVI., and underneath the motto "Novus ordo Seclorum."

In giving the above description of the great seal of our country I have simulated as much of the heraldic language as possible, thereby, in my own estimation at least, rendering it more acceptable to the average reader.

The symbolism of the device is, that 13 original States are represented by the 13 pieces in the pale, all joined so as to appear solid, compact and entire, supporting the chief, which is the symbol of Congress. The colors of the pale are those of the United States flag. White denotes purity and innocence; red, hardness and valor; blue, perseverance and justice. Peace and war are symbolized by the olive branch and the arrows in the eagle's talons. The unfinished pyramid is interpreted in two different ways, viz: To be a symbol of strength and solidity, also as representation of the unfinished union of State, there always being room at the top for more States, or for adding more blocks to the pyramid of strength.

The overlooking eye and its motto, annuit cœptis (He favors our endeavors) alludes to the overruling and all-wise Providence.—Globe Democrat.

Catching and Kissing Bullets.
Many and many thrilling stories of marvelous and hairbreadth escapes have been related of the late civil war, but probably none more wonderful than the two incidents we give below as furnished by a participant in the Nez Perce Indian war of 1877 known as the Cottonwood fight.

"F. A. Fenn had a bullet out four holes in his buttocks without drawing blood, and his burnt lips and lips loosened a front tooth. This was kissing a bullet in reality.

About one week later I was running a race with some fifteen or twenty Indians; the goal was a small mound; whoever reached the mound first could hold it. We had some friends coming on the trail, which passed just at the foot of the mound. The horse I was riding was quite fast; I had got a hundred yards or so ahead of my companion and stopped to take a shot at an Indian. After I shot I jumped on my horse, just as a young fellow came up. We were on the move, when he said, "Lew, I'm shot." I asked him if he was hurt bad. He said, "No, I have caught the bullet." "All right," said I, "put it in your pocket."

I let my horse run, and soon left him, for I had the trail and the Indians had the grass. I reached the foot of the mound when the nearest Indian was about 150 yards from the foot on his side. The mound was tolerable steep and about 150 feet high. I let my horse climb as fast as he could. When I reached the top I jumped off; and the Indians were on the run to get out of the reach of my long range Remington. I opened fire and kept it up as long as they were in sight. When the excitement was over the young fellow showed me where he had been shot. The ball had just grazed his arm, making a blue streak about five inches long, and had struck his gun barrel (where it screws into the frame) and had raised a dent on the inside of the barrel as large as a pea; it then glanced and fell into his left hand. The gun was ruined, but it saved his life.

The shot had been fired at me, as the young fellow had not been in sight for an instant. I was riding on the trail, and I tell you those bullets that are out of those Government guns, with 70 grains powder and 45 grains lead, are dangerous things to be kissing and catching. No, thank you, I don't want to be around when there are any more flying."

A Rare Book.
Through the efforts of Librarian Birdsong, who is always anxious to secure for the state library anything that is rare or valuable, he has induced Col. Alex. Q. Holliday to present a little book to the library with the following inscription on the fly leaf: "Bought at the sale of Luther's library and given to M. I. Mart, the United States consul, by the magistrates of that city, who possess a copy of Luther's book 'Col. Holliday's letter presenting the volume to the library says: 'I present to the state library, through you, a little volume near four hundred years old, which is, I suppose unique in our country, having been the personal property of the great Martin Luther. So venerable a relic ought to belong to our state library and I take pleasure in placing it there in memory of the great reformer on the day which sees the inauguration of another great reformer, and a man of this century. Believe me to be,
Yours very truly,
ALEX. Q. HOLLIDAY."

The book was printed Anno MDXIII which makes it 361 years old.—Raleigh Chronicle.

Recording the chattel mortgages and liens constitutes a very large part of the work of the Register of Deeds. The number recorded last year was about 1,500. For the month of February this year 235 were filed for record against $36 for same month last year. February is the big month for mortgages, as it is the time when guano and crop liens are made. The falling off this year is very gratifying as it indicates an improvement in the financial condition of our people.

Our courthouse, which is, by general consent, the best in the State, cost about $25,000. To raise money to help meet this expense, county bonds to amount of $14,000 were issued, $10,000, January 1st, 1886, and $4,000, January 1st, 1887. The first of January this year $8,000 of these bonds had been paid, making the present bonded indebtedness of the county $6,000. On the 15th of this month bonds to the amount of $8,000 will be sold to meet the expense of the erection of the new county jail, which is now nearly completed. This will increase the indebtedness of the county to $14,000 again, but it is really a light burden for a county with the resources of old Union.

In a few years the debt will be paid, nobody will be poorer and the county will be supplied with a jail the equal, if not the superior of any other in the State.—Monroe Enquirer.

The Merriest Girl that's Out.
"Bonnie sweet Bessie, the maid of Dundee," was, no doubt, the kind of a girl to ask, "What are the wild waves saying?" or to put "a little faded flower" in your button hole, and was so full of vivacity, and beaming with robust health. Every girl in the land can be just as full of life, just as well, and just as merry as Bonnie Bessie. Dr. Pierce has placed his "Favorite Prescription" within the reach of all. Young girls in their teens, passing the age of puberty, find it a great aid. Delicate, pale and sickly girls will find this a wonderful invigorator, and a sure corrective for all derangements and weaknesses incident to females.

About the cheekiest thing on record is the criticisms by Republican journals of what they call the extravagance of the Fifty-second Congress. The object of this is, of course, to deceive their readers, many of whom will forget that the Senate of the Fifty-second Congress had a Republican majority, and many of whom do not know that nearly every appropriation bill which went from the Democratic House was largely increased by the Senate, and that even then the appropriations, as a general thing, are for less amounts than the estimates. They omit to mention the fact, also, that those appropriations, with the exception, perhaps, of some small special appropriations, were necessitated to carry out the laws passed by the Fifty-first Congress, and that $20,000,000 appropriated was for deficiencies, and about $20,000,000 more for increased pensions under the acts passed by the Fifty-first Congress. There are scores of public buildings under construction or contracted for which have to be completed or come to a standstill, Congress either had to make appropriations to meet the deficiencies, to complete the public buildings, and to pay the increased pensions or acknowledge its inability to do so, and confess the Treasury bankrupt. This, of course, it could not do without impairing the credit of the Government and dishonoring it. There can be no material retrenchment and reduction of appropriations until some of the laws requiring these heavy expenditures are repealed or modified. When the Congress is Democratic in both branches, as it will be to-day, and a Democratic President stands at the helm, and the Departments of the Government are in charge of men chosen by him, then Congress, as a Democratic Congress, may be held responsible and held amenable to criticism for what it does, but it will not do to censure a Democratic House for carrying out the laws previously enacted by a Republican House, and a Republican Senate and endorsed by a Republican President.—Wilmington Star.
