THE STRIKE INVESTIGATION.

Other Members of the Brotherhood give their Version of the Trouble with the Telegraph Companies.

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.-The United States Senatorial sub-Committee on Labor and Education resumed its session here to-day. John F. McLelland, a member of the Brotherhood of telegraphers, resumed his testimony. He said that the estimated cost of a telegraph line 1,500 miles long would be $725,965. The estimate was made upon the cost of the construction of the Mutual Union line which was now amalgamated with the Western Union.

Telegraph operators were generally young men, and lived in boarding houses. They usually came from the better class of society. The moral of operatives, as a class, had greatly im-proved within the last ten years, and this was one result of the organization which had been effected. Most of them were single but some were married The witness thought $50 a men. month was a reasonable estimate for food and lodging for single men. Only one in a hundred ever saved any money. The highest paid operatives did not receive enough to enable them to lay by anything for their support in old age.

In 1870 the Western Union Company required every man coming into its employ to take an oath that he would never connect himself with a trade or other organization. This was called the "Iron Clad Oath," and was administered to every person who took part in the strike of 1870. After the existence of the Telegraph Brotherhood was made known recently, a railroad superintendent issued a circular which was sent to every employee of the company forbidding him to connect himself with the organization under penalty of dismissal

The day operators worked from eight in the morning till eight at night, and had but two or three hours to devote to amusements. The night operators had time at their disposal. No such thing as a vacation was known in telegraph circles.

Thomas O'Reilly, a telegraph operator of twelve years' experience, was the next witness. He had charge of the Wheatstone instruments in the Western Union office. He had been an operator in that system for ten years in Scotland. He came here about a year ago. The

A two story frame building on the premises of Mrs. Fulton, on Fifth between Princess and Chestnut streets, was discovered to be on fire about 9:30 o'clock that night, and burned so rapidly that it was almost destroyed before the fire department arrived and got to work. About 11 o'clock a fire broke out in a small frame on the premises of Mr. B. F. Hall, corner of Ninth and Princess streets. This building, also, was almost entirely consumed. At 1 o clock the same night the alarm was again given. It turned out, however, to be the springing up again of flames at the ruins of the building burned on Mr. Hall's premises, but which were extinguished before the fire engines could reach them. All doubts that have heretofore been entertained as to the probability of the Richmond & Danville railroad passing under the same management as the East Tennessee, Virginia & Georgia, have been set at rest by the action of the directors at a recent meeting. The Richmond & Danville, by a change in the board of directors, was put in the hands of the men who control the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia, Robert Harris, John T Branch, A D Shepard, and Gen T M Logan, resigned from the board, and George S Scott, George F Baker, George I Seney, and Capt Calvin S Brice took their places, Col A S Buford is likely to remain president of the company, but Gen T M Logan, the first vice-president will probably be succeeded by Capt Brice. At a stockholders meeting, to be held September 12, Harris C Fahnestock, General Samuel Thomas, the President of the East Tennessee, Virginia an I Georgia, and some Southern man representing local interests will enter the board. The gentlemen who were made directors yesterday, and William P Clyde one of the old directors, own the controlling interest in the road. The board of directors consist of nine members, and by the arrangement at the last meeting the syndicate owning a majerity of the stock is placed in control. Under the new organization a majority of the directors will be likewise interested in the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia. The plan, a director said, is to place in trust for five years 26,000 of the 50,000 shares of the Richmond and Danville. The board, as previously constituted intended to submit a proposition to increase the capital stock $2,000,000 at the stockholders' meeting. This idea the persons now in control will not carry out, they say, but allow the capital stock to remain as it is. Most of the stock which placed the holders of the majority

$20 a month as a retaining fee until the Wheatstone instruments should ar rive. The instruments did not arrivo until October, and the company kept putting the men off until they wery on the point of seeking other positions. O'Reilly characterized the action of the Western Union as base trickery Promises were repeatedly made that the Wheatstone men should receive as much as first class Morse operators. On the 28th of last February it was an-nounced that the Wheatstone system would begin operation. and that the Wheatstone operators were told that their salaries would be $50 a month. This was received with extreme dissatisfaction, but nevertheless it was decided to give it a months trial. At the end of the first month 15,000 messages had been sent to and from Chicago over one wire under the duplex system. Promises of increase of salary were made but never fulfilied, and the Wheatstone operators were thus induced to remain until the strike was ordered, when they all went out with the Morse operators, as they were all members of the Brotherhood. It required five years experience to become proficient in the Wheatstone system. The Wheatstone patent is owned by the Western Union company in this country, but belonged to the British government originally. It is the sys tem used all over Great Britain and Ireland. It was a more expensive system than the Morse but it was available for more purposes than the Morse, particularly in the department of press dis patches. It was not probable that the Wheatstone would supersede the Morse system in this country for the different character of the work here.

. The principal reason for the strike of the operators was the deceit and trickery of the company to wards English operators. Operators on the other side were better paid. They had three weeks vacation each year with salary, and during sickness received half pay After being a certain number of years in the service his record being good, he received a pension for life, sometimes free pay when he becomes superanuated.

All the wires in Great Britain and Ireland belonged to the government, and tariff was uniform, being a shilling for 20 words, and three pence for each additional five.

Eagene O'Conner of Boston, chairman of the executive board of the Brotherhood of telegraphs gave the following statistics of growth of the Western Union Company since 1865. In that year the Company had 37,000 miles of poles and 75,687 miles of wires while now it has 181,000 miles of poles and 374,368 miles of wires. The number of offices in 1866 was 2,250, in 1883, 12,068. The number of messages handled in 1866 was 5,879,282, in 1882 and '83 38.-842,147. The receipts in 1866 were $6,-568,925, in 1882 and '83, $17,114.165. Expenses in 1866, $3,944,005, in 1882 and '88 $9,996,025. Profits in 1866, $2,624,919, in 1882 and '83, $7,118,070. This did not in-clude the Mutual Union which was now paying 7 per cent on its watered stock and the surplus this year was $2,000,000 notwithstanding. These satisfics were compiled from the published statementments of the company. Since the beginning of the strike the membership or the Brotherbood had nearly doubled and they numbered about 20,000 now One fifth of the operators in the coun-try were women, and about five hun-dred of these had joined the strikers. There were very few first class operators among them as their strength was not equal to the amount of work re quired to attain such efficiency. The hearing will be cantinued to-morrow.

The Charleston Centennial -- A Tragedy on the Savannah.

The cantennial anniversay of the incorporation of the city of Charleston, was celebrated on Monday in that city. A salute of 100 guns was fired at sunrise and the city was decked with bunting. The civic ceremony took place in the afternoon in the presence of the Governor and the leading State officials. Mayor Courtney delivered the centen nial address and an ode written for the occasion, by Paul Hayne, was read by Dr Middleton Michel, a brother-in-law of the poet author.

The chaste and beautiful bust of Robert Y Hayne, the first Mayor of Charleston, executed with exquisite taste by Valentine, the Virginia sculptor, by order of the city government, was unveiled. Mayor Courtney presented to the city a marble bust, in classic style and of heroic size, of the late James L Pettigru. The bust was executed by Harnisch, a young American residing in Rome, and it is intend ed to mark the mayor's appreciation of the support and confidence of the citizens in his effort to improve the condition of the city. On Monday night i grand display of aquatic firework brought together the largest popular gathering ever known in Charleston.

A murder was committed on the Linah plantation, Savannah river, on last Tuesday night. On that night between 11 and 12 o'clock, Ned Brisborn went to his home and and knocked at the door. After some delay his wife got up and opened the front door. Brisborn, who had some reason to doubt the fidelity of his wife, detected Matthew Johnson making his exit from the house through the back door. Ned followed Johnson and fired twice at him with a double barrel shot gun. Johnson ran under a cart in the yard; none of the shots struck him; from there he fired at Brisborn, shooting him in the stomach about two inches from the navel. The wounded man died on Sunday.

Telegraph Companies United.

The New York Times announces that hereafter the Bankers' and Merchants' and Southern Telegraph Companies are to operate as one system, the former company having secured the control of the other company. The lines of the Southern extend from Washington to a point near Charleston, S.C. In a short time the wires will reach Charleston and Savannah, Ga. The contract for their extension to New Orleans was signed Saturday and it is alleged that six new wires, with river cables, are to be strung between New York and Washington. Wires will probably be run to Chicago at once. It is expected by the partles interested that in sixty days the entire system will comprise 10,000 miles of wire.

Mo-Pherson was arraigned before Justice Waring for trial when Means swore positively that he was the man, beyond a doubt. McPherson denied the charge and produced witnesses by whom he proved an alibi. Justice Waring dismissed the case, throwing complainant for the costs.
