The New Station House.

Work was commenced yesterday morning on the enlargement of the city guard house. The plans contemplate eight cells framed like a cage, with a gallery all around. The cells will be six feet wide, six and one half feet long, and eight feet high, with provision for ventilating and heating. Regard will also be had for sanitary considerations. The work will be pushed forward as rapidly as possible, and will probably be completed in fifteen or twenty days.

Police Improvements.

The pelice force has within the past few days been provided with a complete outfit of new equipments, and when they appear in their winter suits the members will present a very handsome appearance. The new equipments consists of pistols, belts, "billies," call whistles, and chain nippers. New hats have also been purchased, with appropriate trimmings and insignia. | The winter uniforms are now being made. and in a short time the whole force will be thoroughly uniformed and equipped "as provided by law."

A GIANT EXPLOSION.

Terrific Blow-Up at the Pitcher Mine--A Spark from the Forge Explodes a Box of Dynamite Cartridges, Injuring Two Men and Splintering Timbers.

Yesterday afternoon about 3 o'clock a terrific explosion of dynamite occurred at the Pitcher gold mine, located on the western outskirts of the city, by which two men were painfully and one very seriously hurt. The explosion occurred at the forge in the far end of the pump house and its force was sufficient to throw a few planks out of the roof, tear several beams into splinters, knock down the forge chimney and batter up the interior of the house generally. At the time the explosion occurred, Philip Clements, colored, the blacksmith; W. H. Gilmore, white, the engineer, and Isom Dunnivan, colored, a surface hand, were standing by the forge. A shower of rocks, splintered timber, pieces of iron and dirt flew by Clements without touching him, but the other two men were not so fortunate. Mr. Gilmore received a deep wound, as if made by a bullet in his right jaw, and Dunnivan was badly torn up, his head being severely lacerated, his jaw bone broken and his left arm torn open from wrist to shoulder. A messenger was dispatched to the city for medicul assistance, and Dunnivan being placed in a carriage, was taken to his home near by where Dr. J. P. McCombs attended to his injuries. When the reporter arrived at the scene Mr. Gilmore was standing by his engine, while a friend was trying to check the flow of blood from his jaw with a wet handkerchief. His jaw was greatly swollen and was giving him considerable pain, nevertheless he gave the reporter a very clever description of the accident. "O it was nothing but a giant blowed up, he said. "It made a thundering noise. came near killing two men and knocked the blacksmith shop to kingdom come." The explosion was caused by a spark from the forge. Five large dynamite sitting on the floor near the forge ready to send down the mine to the blasters. A spark from the forge fell into the box and ignited a fuse. Clements was sharpening a drill when his eye caught the burning fuse and he called to the men to get out of the way. They had scarcely turned their backs before the explosion came. Dunnivan was nearest the box and was blown against the wall by the force of the explosion. His arm and head were torn and his jaw broken by flying missles and he presented a shocking spectacle, with his flesh lacerated, his clothing torn to shreds and his whole person covered with dust and blood. Engineer Gilmore's escape was remarkable, as he was standing not more than four feet from the box, and the wall by his side was torn and split and filled with pieces of scrap iron. Besides the wound on his jaw, his arm was badly bruised, but not enough to disable him seriously. Clements, the blacksmith had a fortunate escape. After he saw the fuse burning he just had time enough to turn his head when the explosion came. A bolt of iron flew by his ear and passing through the window knocked down a small house used for storing coal. Other flying fragments knocked a lot of bricks out of the forge chimney by his side and the wall around him looked like it had been cannonaded. That either of the three men escaped with their lives is a wonder. The accident did not interfere with the operations of the mine and within half an hour afterwards everything was humming along as usual. Dr. Mc-Combs reports that Dunnivan's wounds are not necessarily fatal, but are serious and will confine him to bed for some

Bishop Again. The bills for Bishop's "Strictly Business," have been put upon the boards, and our play goers are patiently waiting for Friday night to come when they can see Bishop again. Bishop is meeting with great success everywhere this season. The Norfolk Virginian says: The Academy of Music was filled last evening with a large and enthusiastic audience which was gathered to witness C. B. Bishop in his matchless impersonation in the new play of "Strictly Business," ty A. C. Gunter. We have never seen him so replete with humor as he was in the performance of last evening, and so thorough, was he in his role of P. P. Philking that every appearance of Philkins was greeted with raptureus applause. The troupe is a well selected one, and Mr. Bishop is to be congratulated upon being so well supported upon his reappearance on our boards. After the Mr. performance was over the audience greeted Bishop with deafening applause which was heard for the distance of over a square from the Academy of Music.

Another Result of the Circus. Constable Sloan, from Steele Creek township, was in the city yesterday hunting for a horse that was stolen from him on the night of the circus in Charlotte. The horse was a fine large animal and was in charge of an old colored man. The old man had started to ride home, but stopped at a store on Trade street to light his pipe, leaving an accommodating young darkey to hold the horse while he went inside. As the old man entered the store, the darkey who was left to hold the horse, jumped into the saddle and cantered off and neither horse nor negro have since been seen.

A Good Opening. A card from Prof. Miller, of Erskine College, South Carolina, an advertisement of which appeared in our columns during the summer, says that this institution opened last week with sixty-five students, an increase of eight per cent. on the attendance on opening day last year. The indications are that the attendance this year will be larger than for several years past, as it is known that daily accessions will be made this week. We are glad to note the pros-

What a Physician Says. CYPRESS RIDGE, MONROE CO., ARE., July 25, 1083.

I have a bright little daughter who will be two years old next month. She has been troubled nearly ever since her birth with a skin disease which I firt disgnesed chicken-pox, but later found it to be some sort of eczema; a any rate it resisted very stobbornly all the different treatments. I procured ene bottle of Switt's Specific and gave it to her in small doses three times a day, and in a short while had the satisfaction to see that she was entirely well. I am so well pleased with its effect on her that I shall not only use it in with its effect on her that I shall not only use it in my practice, but I shall administer it to my other children and take it myself.

Animalcules in Vinegar. Southern Cultivator. All vinegar is liable to have something that may be called animalcules in it; because it is a product of fermentation, and as made from cider, has more or less of gum, glucen, etc, in it, which breed the minuter organisms during fermentation. If these substances last mentioned be in large quantity, a putrefactive fermetation is liable to ensue and the vinegar lose its acidity and become spoiled. To prevent this the vinegar may be boiled soon after it is made having been pre-viously "drawn off" from the settlings, and then bottled. This will get rid of the animalcules and preserve the vinegar, Another method, authorized by law in England, is to add one thousandth part of sulphuric acid to the newly made vinegar. This checks any furthur fermentation, and the very small quantity of sulphuric acid is not considered harmful.

In the Steeping Car From Chicago. A lady sat with her only child; The poor little fellow was almost wild, He was making a noise like a circus band, For a horrible felon was on his hand. A quiet old man remarked to the mother,
"I think we can stop this pain and bother, I've a bottle of Pain Killer here," said be,
"And I think it will cure him; let us see." He poured some drope on a moistened rag, And wrappen the felon, as it in a bag. And seen the suffering child was calm As the voice of a summer evening psalm.
