POETRY.
 "It is the gift of Poetry to hallow every place in which it moves, to breathe round Nature an odor more exquisite than the perfume of the rose, and to shed over it a tint more magical than the blush of morning."
 As the following verses contained several errors, as printed in our Sunday's issue, we republish them, making the corrections:
 [From the Charlotte Observer.]
TO MY MOTHER.
 BY HERNO.
 My mother holds the dearest place,
 That memory has within my heart,
 There beams again that loving face,
 As bright as crystals ever dart.
 The fond, the calm, the luring charms
 Her early lessons planted there,
 I cannot now wish earthly arms,
 Erase, or listen with a mortal ear.
 Dear mother, ere will I persuade,
 Thy precepts, and thy counsels too,
 And by my acts you're er shall rue,
 What love has prompted you to do.
 Oft in my fancied dreams I see,
 That face to me so Heavenly pure,
 Rather in her encircling arms I'd be
 Than sporting with the earth's gay lure.
 Then, when the chastening rod of death,
 Shall rob me of thy generous love;
 I'll praise thee with my latest breath,
 E'en whilst thou join the throng above.

A pair of tights—Two drunkards.
 A work of art—a fashionable lady.
 A favorite word with women—the last one.
 The best thing in the bed of the ocean—the sheet anchor.
 If a young lady bids you take heart, does it mean that you can take hers?
 Don't sleep with your coat on, or its nap and yours will be taken together.
 It is said—ironically, perhaps—that blacksmiths forge and steel every day.
 A dandy on shore is disgusting to many people, but a swell of the sea sickens every body.
 Man is like a potato, never sure when he will 'get into hot water.'
 Christian men, be pleasant as well as pious.
 Approach doubtful pleasure as you would step into a birch-bark canoe.
 Faith cares not a straw whether Jonah swallowed the whale or the whale swallowed Jonah.
 How we do love to hear the whole barnyard cackle every time our selfishness lays an egg.
 The fashionable wife of our day is a good deal like a mosquito in your room after bed time. You never can tell exactly where it is by its song, and you are ever in an agony of suspense as to where and when its bill is going to be presented.
 A landlady in Boston, it is said, makes her biscuit so light, that the lodgers can see to go to bed by them. Saves kerosene!
 The ladies manage the hair question much better now than the men did in Absalom's time. If one of the blessed angels of our day happens to tangle her hair in the branches of a tree, the hair, not the woman, gets hung.
 A cotemporary sees infinite trouble in the future in settling Brigham Young's estate. The old fellow is very rich, but then, when he dies each of his twenty-five widows will expect her third.
 "Bob," said a young fellow at a fancy fair, "you are missing all the sights on this side." "Never mind, Bill," retorted Bob, "I am sighting all the misses on the other."
 "Mother," said Ike Partington, "did you know that the 'iron horse' had but one ear?" "One ear? merciful gracious, child, what do you mean?" "Why, the engineer, of course."
 It is a curious fact in the grammar of politics that, when statesmen get into place they often become oblivious of their antecedents, but are seldom forgetful of their relatives.

 Reading Matter Largely Increased!
 NO INCREASE IN SUBSCRIPTION PRICE!
 The JOURNAL is devoted to the development of the material interests of North Carolina and Virginia; is the advocate of reconstruction under the programme anticipated by Congress; contains reliable and interesting reports of the prices current in Norfolk and in the principal centres of trade in the United States and Europe; and during the sessions of the Legislatures and of Congress will contain interesting and spicy letters from Raleigh, Richmond and Washington.
