

GIRLS STEAL FOR SALESMAN

Source of Youth's Wonderful Clothes Explained in Confession.

THREE ROMANCES ARE SHATTERED AT ONE TIME

Dandy Pays Court to Trio in Department Store and Deceives All—Good Business in This Triple Courtship Worked Out by Woman Detective.

New York, Jan. 26.—It has long been a cause of wonder in a Sixth avenue shoe store how Harry Rosenberg, handsome shoe salesman, dressed himself so extravagantly...

When an explanation came, three pretty salesgirls employed in a large department store, revealed a source of Rosenberg's seemingly inexhaustible wardrobe.

The revelation came in Jefferson Market police court after Rosenberg and the three salesgirls had been sent into custody.

Profitable Courtship.

Mae Higgins, a detective in the department store, caused the arrest of Rosenberg and the salesgirls. For some time the shoe salesman had been a frequent visitor to Miss Perlman's counter, and a number of times, Miss Higgins saw her.

Each of the girls when questioned separately by Detective Reins in the office of the store said that her sole motive in stealing was to aid Rosenberg in making a good appearance.

Miss Higgins says that she saw one of the girls conceal a pair of silk hose in her waist yesterday and prepare to leave the store with it.

It was not until the police court case reached the three girls did they confess that Rosenberg had been whispering sweet nothings to each of them.

PINEVILLE'S TIGER IS IN LIMBO NOW

And the Thirsty Villagers Know Not Where to Quench Their Thirst—Personal Notes.

Pineville, Jan. 26.—George Crenshaw, a colored man of the town, who tells not, neither does he spin, but who lives and judges from his appearance as well as taken by the strong arm of the law last Saturday, with quite a quantity of whiskey in his possession, which he intended to peddle to thirsty customers.

Miss Margaret Warlick, of Charlotte, is visiting Miss Rebecca Nichols on College Street.

Miss Minnie Garrison, of Fort Mill, is the guest of her sister-in-law, Mrs. T. R. Garrison.

Mr. Will Davis, of Richmond, Va., is visiting his sister, Mrs. S. L. Hoover, on Gay street.

Several little boys in the village were "down in the mouth," last Saturday because of the non-appearance of the Chronicle's "funny paper."

THE 'CANDY PULL' IS PLEASANT PARTY.

A very nice party to have is a candy pull. When inviting the guests ask each to bring an apron.

While waiting for the candy to cook a lively game of cards may be played, such as "pit" or "old maid."

Refreshments may now be served. After this a game or two of charades may be played.

YOUTH GOES TO JAIL TO IMPROVE MIND

New York Lad Fixes Own Sentence on Blackwell's Island in Unique Probation.

New York, Jan. 25.—There's a difference of view of New York and Philadelphia police magistrates. Yesterday a Philadelphia magistrate surrendered a 19-year-old offender to the mercy of his mother's alibi, but the New York official took another tack, as is testified to by the following:

"Your mother charges you with being a bad boy. How old are you?" asked Magistrate Furlong in the Gales avenue court, Brooklyn.

"Twenty-one years," replied Frederick Harding, of 269 1-2 Marion street.

"Then you are not a bad boy, but may be a bad man. What is the trouble?"

"Hanging out with a bad gang," "Can't you shake the gang?" "No."

"If you really want help you may have it. What can I do for you?" "Send me to the workhouse."

"You'll find a new gang there just as bad as your old gang."

"No new gang will ever get me if I get away from the old gang."

"What will you do when you come out?" "Get a job and try to be a man."

Fixes Own Sentence. "Gix your own sentence. How long do you want?"

"Six months, please." "Well, I'll give you six months. If you use your time on Blackwell's Island to improve your mind and correct your habits you will find it as good a school as there is. Young men and young women in the best of colleges, so let no one convince you that you can't reform on Blackwell's Island."

Harding thanked the magistrate and was taken away to commence his college course.

One little chap was constantly being deceived as to his bed hour, which was 7:30 o'clock. He could not tell the time and his mother or nurse would tell him it was bedtime, when in reality it was only 7 o'clock.

He would look puzzled and only half convinced, as his reason told him that it could not be that late; but he had no choice but to obey.

It would have been far wiser to have set 7 o'clock as his bed time and to have stuck to it.

As persons grow older they are bound to have disappointments, so surely the children might be spared until they have to face life at its best or worst.

Remember that the bark is fitted to the burden, and that what seems utterly trivial to us may be a real heart-break to a child.

A day in a child's life is equal to a year in ours, so think twice before you condemn a child to a whole day's disappointment or unhappiness.

NO KISSES FOR LITTLE BABIES.

If there is one edict that common sense lays down for young mothers it is not to allow baby to be kissed on the lips, for it is almost impossible to reckon the amount, or rather the chance of contagion that may be carried in this fashion.

For should there be the slightest infection in a person's system it will be upon the lips, and if they are brought into contact with those of an infant serious illness may be transmitted to the child.

TO PROTECT BEADS.

A mother who has seen her children come to grief more than once because of the breaking of their strings of beads, has hit upon using a banjo or guitar string instead of ordinary twine for stringing the bits of glass.

SHAMS TO PROTECT DOWN COVERLETS.

It is discouraging to the mother to find the elderdown coverlets becoming soiled where the children rub their hands over them.

This unsightliness can be avoided by making a tiny sham of swiss or other similar material and basting it across the top of the coverlet, just where the hands rub back and forth.

It can be pinned into place at the corners with tiny baby pins or caught with a few stitches.

The shams if edged with narrow lace, add a really attractive touch to the coverlet and as they can be quickly removed and easily laundered, the little extra work entailed more than pays.

BAD FOR BABY'S EYES.

It is just as well to put out the light as soon as the baby is asleep. And light is bad for the eyes when closed, especially the very tender ones of a young baby.

CHILDREN'S FEELINGS NOT CONSIDERED.

Older people think altogether too little about the feelings of children. They put them off as lightly as though they had no reasoning powers.

bolstering themselves up with the reflection, "Oh, they will forget all about it in a little while."

But they do not forget so easily as you imagine, and many a childish heart is sore over what it instinctively knows to be inconsistent and unreasonable on the part of its elders.

One little chap was constantly being deceived as to his bed hour, which was 7:30 o'clock. He could not tell the time and his mother or nurse would tell him it was bedtime, when in reality it was only 7 o'clock.

He would look puzzled and only half convinced, as his reason told him that it could not be that late; but he had no choice but to obey.

It would have been far wiser to have set 7 o'clock as his bed time and to have stuck to it.

CLEANING BABY'S RUG.

Baby's fur rug may be cleaned at home by giving it a thorough bath in dry corn meal.

Rub the meal in as though it were soap, shake it out, and then rub in more meal, letting it remain in the rug for a day or two.

Then shake out and the appearance of the rug will be much improved.

NEW BABY BONNETS.

Some of the new baby bonnets made of linen are buttonholed around the edge and have an opening, buttonholed, for slipping the bonnet ties through.

The ties are further held in place by a little gold pin.

The severity of tailored trimness has no place in the evening coat, and this rich model is typically modish. Fringe, velvet and heavy silk embroidery are combined as trimming. For extra warmth at the throat, there is one of the little fur "tuck-in" cravats of chinchilla.
