A wedding of much interest to a large circle of friends is that of Miss Elsie Calder and Mr. Charles M. Setzer of Asheville, which will take place at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Elizabeth E. Calder, at Piedmont Park this evening at 6:30 o'clock. Rev. D. H. Rolston, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, will officiate, using the impressive ring ceremony. Miss Adaline Calder, sister of the bride, will be maid of honor. Mr. Setzer will be accompanied by Mr. J. H. Craighill, who will serve as best man. Miss Ruth Cole will preside at the piano and render the march from Lohengrin as the bridal party enters. During the ceremony she will play "O Promise Me." The bride will wear a traveling suit of dark blue cloth and will carry an arm bouquet of bride roses, and ferns. Miss Calder will be gowned in white Marquise over mouseline and carry pink carnations and asparagus ferns. The vows will be spoken in the parlor in front of a group of palms and ferns and white cut flowers. Immediately after the ceremony an informal reception will be held. Receiving in the parlor will be Mrs. Calder and the bride and groom, Miss Adaline Calder, Miss Ruth Cole and Mr. Craighill. Miss Addie Hinson will have charge of the register. Welcoming the guests in the hall will be Mr. and Mrs. Duncan G. Calder and Mrs. E. S. Hoggard. Mrs. J. E. Morris will preside over the punch bowl and will be assisted by Misses Elizabeth Hinson and Annie Jean McMillan. The dining room will be tastefully decorated in pink roses and carnations and ferns. Mr. and Mrs. Setzer will leave on a bridal trip to Washington and New York, after which they will be at home in Asheville. The bride is a talented and popular young woman and has a host of friends here, who regret her departure. Mr. Setzer is well known here where he resided up to a few years ago. He holds a position as postoffice inspector and is a capable young business man. He is held in high esteem by a host of friends throughout the State.

The following is from Monday's issue of The Spartanburg Herald: "The many Spartanburg acquaintances and friends of Miss Nancy Anderson will be pleased to know of her success in the musical world. Miss Anderson has frequently been the guest of Miss Lois Montgomery. She has been selected as one of the leading sopranos in the Tryon Street Methodist Church in Charlotte. Miss Anderson's voice was heard with pleasure during her stay in Spartanburg. She possesses a voice of exquisite quality, smooth, rich and vibrant."

The Friday Afternoon Sewing Club will meet this week with Mrs. David S. Yates at her pretty home on Springdale avenue, D'worth.

JUNIOR TAILORED SUITS KEEP TO STRAIGHT LINES.

Though the little girl may wear white frocks of linen, pique or embroidery all winter indoors, her street garb should be worsted or equally substantial material. This tailored suit for a little maid of ten is very jaunty and smart and suggests boyishness in its lines. It is built of navy serge and has a double breasted coat and a straight skirt lapped toward the left and trimmed with white loops and blue enamel buttons. A white cloth collar trimmed with braid adds a childishness to the dark suit.

SLOAN'S FERRY BRIDGE STARTED AT BELMONT

Belmont, Oct. 15.—The recent suggestion in The Observer anent the name to be given the new bridge over the Catawba River at Sloan's Ferry brings to mind some facts connected with the early history of the bridge. The agitation which led finally to the building of the bridge was started in Belmont. At a meeting of a self-appointed committee of citizens in the office of the Imperial Yarn Mills in January, 1910, the committee, consisting of Messrs. R. L. and S. F. Stowe, W. B. Puetz, R. B. Suggs, J. M. Sloan, A. J. Rankin and other prominent mill men and merchants of town, a movement was inaugurated for the building of the bridge. Each of the above-named men took a petition and carried it over Gaston County, praying the Gaston commissioners to take steps looking to the establishment of the bridge. Over half the voters of Gaston County signed the petition and it was presented to the commissioners, who agreed that if the Mecklenburg board would help in the erection that they would start the move for the bridge. Over half the voters of Gaston County signed the petition and it was presented to the commissioners, who agreed that if the Mecklenburg board would help in the erection that they would start the move for the bridge.

To keep history straight and to let outsiders know that the town of Belmont and some of its progressive inhabitants are in the main responsible for the handsome bridge over the Catawba is this information given. Since the bridge is only a mile from town, Belmont expects to be considered in the christening. Quite a break in the line of fruit is growing on a tree in the yard of Dr. W. W. Davis. The fruit seems to be a cross between a pear and an apple. As far as shape goes, it is as symmetrically round and smooth as any apple, in almost perfect round shape. But the flesh is that of a coarse pear, grainy and rough. A peculiar quality of the fruit is its hardness. When laid away after being gathered, it often keeps sound and firm until March or April, but never becomes soft and mellow with age, as does the pear or apple, being in fact almost uneatable on account of this peculiarity.

Dr. Davis is unable to account for the phenomenon. He says the tree grew from the stump or root of what was once a pear tree.

A narrow escape from serious burns and shock, if not fatal injuries, was the fortune of Mr. George Stowe a few nights ago. While climbing a tree, he was struck by a lightning bolt. The lightning struck the tree, which was in the line of a power line. The lightning bolt struck the tree, which was in the line of a power line. Mingling in social merriment were dozens of prominent men and beautiful women, guests of Col. and Mrs. Armstrong at this celebration of 25 years of wedded life.

NORTH CAROLINA SYNOD IN SESSION

Goldboro, Oct. 15.—The Synod of North Carolina convened in its 99th annual session this morning in the First Presbyterian Church. The attendance of delegates is very large already and all have not arrived. The Synod opened with a sermon by the retiring moderator, Rev. W. R. Minter of Lincolnton, and was then constituted by prayer led by Rev. G. J. Cook, Rutherfordton. After the calling of the roll and the enrollment of delegates, Rev. W. McC. Whitt, D.D., pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Raleigh, was elected moderator.

Tomorrow morning the members of the Synod will go to Richmond to attend with the Synod of Virginia the centennial celebration of Union Theological Seminary, and will return the next day and resume regular sessions. It is seldom that so many members of the Synod are placed in nomination for moderator, as was true this year when the number was six. Those nominated in addition to Doctor White were Rev. George H. Atkinson of Albemarle, Dr. W. J. Martin, president of Davidson College, Rev. R. L. Wharton, minister of the First Presbyterian Church, Raleigh, and Rev. J. N. Summerell, D.D., of Newbern, and Ruling Elder R. A. Dunn of Charlotte. The name of Doctor Martin was withdrawn on account of the fact that he is not a delegate to this meeting of Synod and the name of Mr. Dunn was withdrawn at his own request. It was necessary to take six before Doctor White was elected.

Rev. A. W. Crawford of Rowland and Rev. E. L. Siler of Montreat were elected temporary clerks by acclamation. Just before the close of the morning session on Rev. V. G. Smith, pastor of the church in which the Synod is being held, extended to the body a cordial welcome. The Rev. George H. Atkinson of Albemarle conducted the opening devotional service of the afternoon session and occupied the chair until the arrival of the moderator. When the moderator arrived he announced the standing committees for this meeting of Synod.

The only speaker heard during the afternoon session was Doctor Martin, who gave a most encouraging report of Davidson College, showing the enrollment to be larger this year than any year in the history of the school. Speaking of the training of the students he said effort is made to give them care to the spiritual as well as to the intellectual, and thus avoid increasing that class of students in the world which is already too large, the class containing too many intellectual giants who are spiritual pigmies.

After a short afternoon session, the Synod took recess until 7:30 this evening, in order to give the committees opportunity to hold meetings. The evening Rev. Byron Clark, D.D., of Salisbury preached the annual sermon before the Synod.

Mrs. Paul Wehling, 316 Smith St., Peoria, Ill., had kidney and bladder trouble, with terrible backache and pain across the hips. Just imagine her condition. She further says: "I was also very nervous, had headaches and dizzy spells, and was fast getting worse when I took Foley Kidney Pills, and now all my troubles are cured. Foley Kidney Pills have done so much for me I shall always recommend them." Bowen's Drug Store.

WINSTON-SALEM JUVENILE CLUB

Winston-Salem, Oct. 15.—Preliminary steps in the organization of the Juvenile Club of the Winston-Salem Board of Trade were taken this morning at the chapel exercises at the Cherry Street High School, when the purposes of the new club were explained to the students.

Superintendent Latham stated the purposes of the organization today as being to teach the members the duties of citizenship and preparing them for the duties of citizenship after leaving the schools. Superintendent Latham spoke of the training of the Athenian youth up to the age of 18, which was the legal age in the Greek city. At that time, the Athenian youth took the oath pledging fidelity to the State, his gods, and moral traditions of his people, before the public assembly, and was equipped as a soldier and changed his dress from that of a youth to that of a citizen of Athens.

Mr. Latham spoke of having printed the Athenian oath in the first issue of the high school magazine, as summing up the ideal of a school's accomplishments. Announcement was made that Gregory Graham, a high school student, had been elected to the Juvenile Club. The ninth grade then recited the Athenian oath in concert.

Secretary Hodges of the Board of Trade was introduced to the students. He made a brief statement relative to the formation of the club, expressing his interest in every phase of student life and especially of his duties as a citizen. He said that Winston-Salem is a better place to live in. The Juvenile Club was organized for the purpose of enlisting the aid of the students in the city's development.

In the chapel, the members of the eleventh grade were called together and the new course of civics to be taught by Secretary Hodges of the board of trade was explained to the students. The high school officials in conjunction with Secretary Hodges have decided to put a course of civics in the high school curriculum especially adapted to Southern States.

Mr. Hodges will leave soon for Richmond, where he will meet one of the professors from Cornell University, who is making a special study of civics in the Southern States. He will map out a course of study in civics especially suited to high schools.

The course decided upon will be a popular course for high schools and will be of an elementary nature, not too deep to be beyond the conception of the students, but designed to teach civics in the way that exists in the South in North Carolina and in Winston-Salem.

The course will consist of from 20 to 25 lectures, each an hour long. The first part to be taken up in lectures by Mr. Hodges and the latter part of the period to be taken up in questioning the students. The course will be a regular course in the schools and examinations on the subject will be required.

The day on which the classes will meet will be announced later. Mr. Hodges will also introduce the great State and Nation; the great economic forces at work in the world today, especially the problems that come up in the South; various duties, policies offered by the various political parties; and other similar topics. Superintendent Latham is now working on plans with a view to giving the students of the high school English work along present day topics rather than on ancient history.

MASONS' HOME FOR THE AGED FORMALLY DEDICATED

Greensboro, Oct. 15.—The Masonic and Eastern Star Home for the aged was formally dedicated here today with impressive exercises. Grand Master W. B. McCoy of Wilmington and other members of the grand lodge were present, while officers of the Order of the Eastern Star also took part. The exercises began in the Masonic lodge room at 10 o'clock this morning, afterward the Masons went on cars to a point near the home and then marched in double file up the walkway to the building. In the dining room of the structure a temporary altar had been erected and there the formal ceremonies were carried out under the direction of Grand Master McCoy.

The report of the grand architect, in whose keeping the building had been placed, was received and the building committee, through its chairman, Dr. F. M. Winchester of Charlotte, signified the satisfaction of the grand chapter and the grand lodge of the manner in which that duty had been performed. The ceremonies of the order with the ritual of the Order of the Eastern Star constituted the program at the home. The building was inspected by the Masons, who expressed their entire satisfaction with the work.

The chief address of the occasion was delivered by Past Grand Master Francis D. Winston of Windsor. The building represents an outlay of approximately $25,000. It is a handsome structure and the Masons of the State and members of the Order of the Eastern Star are justly proud of it.

A "Give-Away."

(From The Journal.) A Frostburg father scolded his little boy for lying, saying he never lied when he was a boy. "How old, then, was you when you commenced?" queried the boy. "The Frostburg got chilly and walked in the house," replied the boy. "The Journal submitted to the Editor, Philosopher and got his indignant comment: "Tengs, bane comin' on a pretty pass, bay yemins, ven boys tal on each other lak det!"

IS THERE ANYTHING YOU COULD USE A PENNY AN FOR TO-DAY?

Barbara Boyd's Snapshots. The Superior People. HE was little and black-eyed and black-haired, and she first attracted the attention of the crowd of tourists, waiting for coaches, by literally screaming out in a high and angry voice, that her baggage was to go in the carriage with her and not in one of the large coaches.

And so, much to the discomfort of the other passengers in her carriage, suit-cases and bags were piled in.

"She certainly made a spectacle of herself," said some of the tourists as her carriage drove off.

"Pity the husband of a woman like that," said another.

At the stop for lunch she further drew the amused attention of the tourists by dragging her husband into a corner of the general waiting room, and there berating him.

She seated herself with a bounce in a rocking chair and rocked violently, and tapped the floor with her foot, and shook her head to emphasize her remarks.

"Absolutely vile arrangements," she said to him, "to be jammed into these carriages like cattle."

"I shall report the matter," said her husband.

"I hope you will," she replied with a stamp of her foot and a nod of her head that almost dislocated her hair. "I just hope you will."

Then she fell to muttering, probably saying to herself all the complaints she was going to make.

"The idea of getting people up at such a beastly hour and then making them sit here and wait," she broke out again.

"A vile arrangement," agreed her husband. "I shall surely report it and I don't care whose scrap is lost."

Once more she fell to muttering.

"This place looks like a cattle-pen," she broke forth again in a few minutes, looking around the room. "But ordinary people don't mind it," and she glanced scornfully at the crowd of chattering and laughing tourists.

"Can't you possibly get a carriage to yourselves?"

"I've tried my very best," replied her husband, "but it is impossible."

Again she stamped her foot and muttered, "Vile" and "Beastly."

"I just hope you will report such arrangements."

"I certainly shall. I shall let the management know how exceedingly uncomfortable we have been."

Just then luncheon was announced.

"I shan't be able to eat a thing so soon after breakfast, but I'll go look at it," she announced, as she made her way to the dining room.

Her amused fellow tourists noted, however, that she did not lag behind the others in eating, though she eyed everything scornfully and made caustic remarks about the food and service.

And when it was time to go on, she climbed angrily into her carriage, protested vehemently at having to travel like cattle with the common herd, announced loudly she was going to report the whole beastly business, and, as the driver gathered up his reins and the carriage swung into line behind the others, she still heard bitterly complaining at not having an exclusive conveyance of her own.

And the rest of the tourists probably joined with her in regretting the fact, not for her sake, but for their own.

For it is very trying to all concerned to travel with superior people.
