to stop and think. The Y. W. C. A. to the city means so much that no argument can be added to that presented to prove this.

Thus the situation is today. The workers are not wavering in their determination and with the matter before the people in its real light, it is felt that the city will make a united rally to the cause of the young women and see that they are provided with the handsome home and opportunities for social life and self-improvement which the Y. W. C. A. means to every city and community.

The executive committee has issued the following call to service, an urgent call to press into duty during the remaining hours every available agency to complete the canvass:

"Today the civic pride, the municipal enterprise and the religious zeal of Charlotte are called on for a real demonstration beyond that which has been manifested at any time in the history of the city.

"There is needed at this critical hour more workers—men and women who will join the ranks of two hundred loyal men and women (which comprise many of the business and professional men and representative women of our city), who for several days past, have practically forsaken their offices, business interests, and home responsibilities for this great enterprise.

"The additional workers are needed especially for these last few days of the campaign, in order to cover the most critical stage of its existence, began on last Saturday and the figures have climbed with remarkable and notable rapidity.

the noonday luncheons. Anyone willing to work is invited to attend. Doubtless many who have already contributed will find it necessary to increase their subscriptions, and many who are thinking of giving moderate sums will need to very materially increase their figures in order that the Y. W. C. A. enterprise may succeed.

There is no large subscription held back. All that have been secured are announced and counted. There is as much obligation on one citizen as another in such an enterprise as this. Every citizen should do his own share, both in giving time and money.

CHARLOTTE CITIZENS GOING TO INVITE NEXT PRESIDENT

A delegation of Charlotte citizens, steered by the Greater Charlotte Club, will leave for Trenton, N. J., early next week for an audience with President-elect Woodrow Wilson Tuesday night for the purpose of extending an invitation to the next President to attend the Twentieth of May celebration in Charlotte in 1913, a committee of the Greater Charlotte Club having this celebration in hand already for several months.

A score or more of leading business men, lawyers, professional men and others will make the trip to Trenton to visit the next President and urge upon him the invitation from Charlotte and the Greater Charlotte Club to visit this city next May and deliver the address at the Twentieth celebration.

Among those who will probably go are Messrs. W. F. Harding, J. H. Weddington, H. C. Jones, W. C. Dowd, C. O. Kuester, Leake Carraway, C. C. Hook, David Owens, J. E. Ivey and others.

The Greater Charlotte Club is making its appointment with Governor Wilson through Mr. Josephus Daniels, who is in New York, and no trouble is anticipated in that matter, and the delegation will likely leave Monday night for New Jersey to call on the President-elect and press upon him the invitation to visit Charlotte.

High hopes are entertained that Governor Wilson will readily accept the invitation and will speak in Charlotte during the celebration of May Twentieth next year.
