He declared that the railroad conductor clared that the railroad conductor owes it to the company, to the public and to himself, as well as the other employes, to train up capable men for the service. He asserted that no railroad now has a better set of conductors than does the Southern Railway Company, and that there is no greater asset than the loyalty of the employes.

Higher efficiency is now required of all from the call-boy up to the president of the road. The conductor must instill loyalty in the new men and no higher compliment can be bestowed than to say a man has been faithful in this respect. "Aycock Day," though somewhat delayed, was observed in the Salisbury public schools this morning with an appropriate exercise, beginning at 9 o'clock. There was an address on the life of the great educational Governor by Mr. T. G. Furr of the Salisbury bar. Col. A. H. Boyden was also present and made a talk. At the close of the exercises it was announced that the children had raised about $50 for the Aycock memorial fund.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—The stock market passed through a troubled week, in the course of which quotations declined nearly to the low level of the year. The decline which began on Monday of last week, with the rendition of the Harriman merger decision by the preme Court, gathered increased mo mentum this week and at times the stock market was demoralized by stock market was demoralized by liquidation of an enormous scale. Union Pacific was the especial object of attack, but there was great activity in the other speculative leaders and high-grade investment stocks which usually move narrowly also suffered.

Toward the close of the week the decline was halted and some partial recoveries made, although the market continued nervous and unsettled. No specific cause of the hurried liquidation was apparent, although foars as to the effect of the Harriman decision, prospeces of tight money later in the month and the activities of the Pujo investigating committee were referred to as unfavorable influences. unfavorable influences.

Money rates grew easier for the time, although year-end requirements were expected to impose a severe strain later.

With the easing of the tension abroad, growing out of the Balkan war, the influence of foreign markets was less pronounced, and London was reported to have bought stocks liberally in this market.
