

IN THE PAY OF THE WORLD.

Tom Watson's Indignation Was All Paid For—In the Employ of a Wall Street.

His Republic attacks Thomas E. Watson, and claims that his attacks on Sewall were paid for by a New York gold standard organ—that is one of the mouth-pieces of Wall street.

It says: "It has developed that his indignation is a purchasable commodity, like cheese, and relatively as cheap."

"Watson has been in the service of the 'money power' for seven weeks or more. His treachery has been copyrighted and syndicated. Every stab at Sewall has been bought and paid for. The price, set by Watson himself, upon these remarkable productions is approximately known. In all, it is understood that he has received something more than $1,500 for his articles."

"The newspaper that commanded Mr. Watson's services in the interest of Mark Hanna and the gold standard, and that still carries his name on the pay roll as an 'occasional contributor,' in the New York World."

"The snare which lured the sage of Thomson from the path of righteousness was set on the very day that the Populist party honored Mr. Watson with a nomination for the Vice-Presidency."

"July 27, the poison having found lodgment, Mr. Watson contributed another article to the New York 'World.' This was rather spicy, and evidently was written from the text used by Mr. Watson in the People's party paper a few days previously: 'We love you, Billy, but I'm your company.' In it Mr. Watson said: 'I will run the race to the end. I will make the fight, even if Mr. Sewall does not withdraw. For me to withdraw would be for me to sign the death warrant of my party.'"

"The price set upon his first articles was $150 for each article. Eventually he raised the price to $250."

"One article in particular is worthy of note at this time. It was published on the last Monday in September. Mr. Watson advanced the price to $250 at this time, and in a communication to the paper stated that if the editor did not consider it worth the price he must not use it. The Populist leader, in other words, went on strike. He won, of course, and the article was accepted at the valuation placed upon it by the author."

"August 12, Watson prepared for the World a lengthy article on the situation up to that date. He was to review the campaign and comment on the demonstration in Madison Square Garden the following evening. He was advertised and pictured, and the paper stated that he would write exclusively for its readers—gold standard readers."

"Sure enough, Watson was the published guest of the Democratic love feast in Madison Square Garden. He projected himself into the forefront and sought to attract attention equally with Messrs. Bryan and Sewall. In his article, published August 13, he made bitter personal attacks upon Chairman Jones and Mr. Bryan's running mate, and, indirectly, upon Mr. Bryan himself. The price paid for this article was $150."

"In a subsequent article Mr. Watson took up the speeches at Madison Square Garden."

"Mr. Sewall's speech of acceptance," he said, "was a modest echo of Mr. Bryan's, and Mr. Bryan dwelt upon one topic alone—the silver question."

"His (Bryan's) presentation of silver claims was not so comprehensive as that made in the elaborate speech of Senator John P. Jones of Nevada in 1890; his arraignment of the evils of contraction was not so graphic as that made by Congressman Charles Towne in 1895, or that made by Congressman William H. Felton in 1876, nor were his answers to the objections made to free coinage so ample as those made in the recent speech of Senator Daniel."

"Mr. Bryan's Eastern tour, added Mr. Watson, had been a dire failure. He wound up by referring to Sewall as 'the soothing syrup of the campaign for the Populists,' who would be relied upon 'to keep Northern and Eastern Democrats from wailing too much under the infliction of Bryan's Populististic proflivities.'"

"After his trip to the Southwest he returned to the fray, and it was then that he raised the price of his country gems to $200 a gem."

Bryan's Campaign to Date.

Number of speeches delivered, 32; cities and towns spoken in, 28; States spoken in, 2; miles traveled, since the nomination, 12,127; number of words spoken on the stump (estimated), 494,000; miles traveled by all other Democratic candidates since 1860, 6,100; number of speeches delivered by all other Democratic candidates since 1860, 164.

If your children are subject to croup watch for the first symptom of the disease—hoarseness. If Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is given as soon as the child becomes hoarse it will prevent the attack. Even after the croup cough has appeared the attack can always be prevented by giving this remedy. It is also invaluable for colds and whooping cough. For sale by S. L. Alexander & Co.

Rabbits Caused Diphtheria.

WEBSTER CITY, Ia., Oct. 18.—Rabbits have caused an epidemic of diphtheria in the eastern part of the county, and it has spread to Dows, Iowa Falls, Jewell Junction and Adel. A dozen deaths have been reported.

By last reports, diphtheria has broken out annually in the vicinity of the Tybithra Lutheran church, which is used as a school building. A large number of rabbits have been hibernating in the building for a long time, and the physicians have reached the conclusion that the little animals have planted the germs of the disease, which spread among the children. The church will be burned.

Experiment Farm Programme During State Fair Week.

October 12th, 1896. During Fair week in Raleigh, October 19-24, visitors may expect to find the following order observed at the Experiment Farm. Those especially interested in any of the farm, staple or dairy operations are invited to visit the farm and inspect the work.

Because of the location within the enclosure for the Fair, the time fixed for visitors has been advanced until after the regular opening of the Fair gates each morning.

The milk separator will be in operation at 10 to 10:30 a. m. and 6 to 6:30 p. m. Staple work after 4:30 p. m. Churning and butter working 10 to 11:30 a. m., 20th and 22nd. The Babcock Tester will be in operation part of every forenoon at the Experiment Farm Dairy. Both hand and steam machines will be used.

Those who do not know the location of the Experiment Farm will find it within the enclosure and West of the Fair buildings. The flag pole on the lawn makes the place unmistakable.

Very respectfully, FRANK E. EMERY, Agriculturist.

How a Minister Sees the Situation.

Rev. James D. Drayton writes the Mt. Airy News: "On last Saturday and Sunday a week I preached at a church where nearly every man was a Republican and they, almost to a man, expressed themselves as in favor of Bryan. A friend who went with me, and who is for McKinley, said to me, after our arrival, 'It beats anything I ever saw! They have all gone crazy!' I said to him, 'No—they have got their eyes open.'"
