AMUSEMENTS

"The Old Homestead."

Set in an atmosphere of peace and tranquility, with a story of human kindness permeating, enriched by quaint characterizations and beset on all sides with homely sentiment, "The Old Homestead" now in its twentyninth year of unstinted success comes to the Academy of Music Monday, matinee and night, December 7th. Far removed from the war clouds, nevertheless our spirit of brotherly love extends beyond the seas and one finds in "The Old Homestead" just the kind of peaceful comfort so devoutly to be wished for. There have been mighty few plays wherein the essence of good will is so eloquently preached as in this dear old dramatic evergreen. It is for that reason we had its veryly advent with reason we hail its yearly advent with so much friendly regard.

Who during the past decade and a half has not sat under the softening spell of Denman Thompson's splendid play of New England life and have come away impressed by its simplicity and beauty? One feels all the better for having become acquainted with Uncle Joshua Whitcomb, Aunt Matilda and the rest of the quaint lovable characters who interpret the story fraught with heart interest and replete with keen, Yankee wit.

It would hardly seem fair to deprive us of an opportunity to pay yearly homage to a play like "The Old Homestead" which has become such an institution and gives every News Printing House, News Build- indication of going on indefinitely.
