BROADWAY--TOMORROW

The Famous Lynch Trio

The Kids With Up-to-Date Songs and Dances. A Program That Can't Be Beat

Feature Attractions at the Broadway.

It's the same old story, while the town slept the Broadway slipped one over, and this time it was a knockout for fair. The Broadway wishes to announce to the people of Charlotte that they have booked for the latter half of this week the world's famous "Lynch Trio," who have appeared in practically every high class picture house in the Southern States and have gained for themselves the well deserved title of "The Return Date Kids."

Nan is the largest and oldest of the three and she is a cute kid and will be one of the biggest hits ever seen in Charlotte. Frank is next in age and size. Tad is the youngest and smallest of the trio, but that is not Tad's fault and she certainly makes up for it by her clever work on any stage. She is an ex-movie star, having played with Francis X. Bushman in several feature attractions.

This is a kid act that is high class all the way from start to finish. There isn't a dull moment in it, and these kids are clever enough to send you out with the feeling that you wish you had stayed for another show so as to see them again, but don't for there will be people packed in the lobby waiting for seats. The Lynch Trio have played all the large cities in Dixie. Atlanta, Birmingham, Memphis and all the others have seen and approved their splendid act and they have repeatedly returned to these places for return engagements. Their act is strictly up to date, with the newest songs and dances, while the kids themselves are appealing and artists in their line.

But with this look what is coming tomorrow. Jane Cowl in the greatest five part play that has been written this year. This famous Broadway star appears for her first time in the films in a thrilling picture entitled, "The Garden of Lies." A great story of life, not as it should be, or might be, but just as it is. Five thousand feet of film without a moment of relaxation. A forceful, gripping drama that will hold you spellbound in your seats and make you forget the passage of time. As usual the Broadway makes no change in their policy of one price and the best obtainable always. Think of it, if you will. Five reels of the greatest drama flashed on the screen this year, and the best kid act in the country for ten cents.

Amusements

Advance notices under head of "Amusements" are prepared and furnished by agents of the theatres and published by advertising arrangement with this paper.

Al G. Field Greater Minstrels.
Al G. Field is one of the oldest and most successful of amusement managers. His minstrels come this way yearly. It's a habit they have formed the past twenty-nine years, or perhaps it's thirty years. A year more or less don't make any difference to this company.

A man is known by the company he keeps. Bert Swor is one of the best all around negro impersonators that graces the minstrel stage. If Bert Swor was alone the comedy of the company would be acceptable, but backing up Swor with such sterling names as Joe Coffman, John Healy, Harry Shunk, Al Sexton, Dennis O'Neil, Joe McCarty, Billy Doran, John Barry, Charles Nolan and a half dozen others the fun should be of the kind that makes laughter continuous.

Al G. Field has the largest number of people in his company he ever carried, with Bert Swor heading it. The Al G. Field Greater Minstrels will be seen here at the Academy of Music tomorrow, matinee and night. Seats are now on sale at the Academy of Music box office.

"Potash and Perlmutter."
"I've got it a heart, Mr. Steuerman, and my daughter has got it a heart," pleads Abe Potash to Henry Steuerman, the philanthropist, in the second act of "Potash and Perlmutter."

"And me," breaks in his partner, Morris Perlmutter, "ain't I got it a heart?"
"I understand," says Steuerman, soothingly, and the audience too understands, for, after all, Hearts are Trumps in this dramatic game of Love and Law. Phocle and Politos that has been laughed and wept over for two seasons in New York city and which Manager A. H. Woods will present at the Academy of Music on Saturday, September 18.

"Potash and Perlmutter" will be presented with a company of splendid artists, all of whom have been seen in New York and including Violet Barney, Josephine Robinson, Anna Bennett, Helen Gill, Charles Lipson, Nat. S. Jerome, David Leonard, Thomas Tempest, David Wearn and others.

"Mutt and Jeff in College."
"Mutt and Jeff in College." Bud Fisher's latest musical comedy success will be seen here at the Academy of Music next Wednesday, matinee and night, September 22d, and suffice to say, this merry musical play will attract the usual large crowds.

This season's production of "Mutt and Jeff" is all new and will find the two funny boys attending college. The new production is said to be the best that Bud Fisher has contributed to the stage and gives "Mutt and Jeff" plenty of opportunities to show just how funny they can be.

At the matinee special bargain matinee prices will prevail. Adults being admitted to any part of the theatre for 50 cents and children 25 cents.

Beautiful Young Girls Make Pets of Elephants.
Two of the loveliest young girls in the world of motion pictures are the Thanbuser twins, Madeline and Marion Fairbanks, who are being featured by Edwin Thanbuser in the four part Mutual masterpiece, "The Flying Twins." In this elaborate and popular production any number of circus scenes are shown and Mr. Thanbuser hired a whole circus in which to take them. In the menagerie that went with the circus were two enormous African elephants, and Madeline and Marion took a fancy to them at once. Immediately they saw them the two girls crawled under the ropes and began stroking their trunks. The elephants' keeper, when he discovered what had happened, was horrified. He coaxed the girls out of the enclosure and then told them that one of the elephants was notoriously ill tempered, but the two girls immediately informed him that they had found both of them to be as gentle as lambs.

"The Flying Twins" will be shown at the Ottoway theatre Thursday.

At the Ottoway.
When the princess of Arcadia, the heroine of the photoplay, "A Royal Family," at the Ottoway today, falls into the hands of hired assassins masquerading in the uniform of Kurland soldiers, she has many exciting times. Her rescue by the prince of Kurland in a terrific hand to hand encounter presents much dramatic interest in a story which is replete with surprises. Interest accumulates to the last moment of the play. Ann Murdock is the star of this production. The role of the princess has tremendous scope for emotion and Miss Murdock is understood to have found the role quite within her ability.

Yeggs Crack Wilmington Safe.
Wilmington, Sept. 15.—Two yeggs-men early Monday morning the safe—an old lock and key affair—in Farris Bakery in the heart of the business district and secured $325 in cash.

Removed from the front to the rear of the building, a distance of 25 feet, the safe was lifted up two steps into the baking and mixing department before any effort was made to open it. A policeman who saw two men come out of the place in their shirt sleeves and get a drink of water from a pump in front of the bakery thought they were bakery men.

Farmer Killed by Street Car.

Asheville, Sept. 15.—Sylvester Ingle, aged 30, a farmer who resides near this city, met death beneath the wheels of a Riverside Park street car Monday afternoon, as he attempted to cross the tracks in front of it. He suffered a fractured skull and was rushed to the hospital immediately, but died in the operating room.

Mr. Ingle was engaged in delivering some peaches to a customer and in passing behind a car on the west track on Montford avenue he stepped directly in front of one on the east track which was going in the opposite direction. The car behind which he went obstructed the view of the motorman of the one which inflicted the fatal blow at the same time cutting off the farmer's view of the approaching car, it is stated.

The accident was witnessed by the ten-year-old son of the deceased and by a number of passengers on the two street cars.

Catawba to Enforce Law.

Newton, Sept. 15.—The Catawba county schools will begin opening about November 1, and a new feature this year will be strict enforcement of the rural quarantine laws, which seek the elimination of epidemics which so gravely interfere with school work during the winter. Often whole schools are broken up for half the term by the carelessness of one family in allowing infected children to attend school. Now, every case of contagion is required to be reported by the physician in charge, or by the teacher or parent, under penalty, and the case isolated. It is hoped that the new system will free the country schools from a menace that has dogged them for years.

Parkton Store Robbed.

Parkton, Sept. 15.—The stores of the Parkton Mercantile Co., and Cobb & Johnson at Parkton were broken into last week and quite a lot of merchandise taken. The robbers made entrance through the back windows in the buildings by bending the iron bars so as to crawl between them. There is no clue as to the guilty parties.

A woman can do a thing she doesn't want to do without making unprintable remarks, but few men can do likewise.

Stock Raising on Increase.

Raleigh, Sept. 15.—The number of animals kept on the farms of North Carolina have increased much more rapidly than the acreage, according to Mr. J. M. Johnson, of the farm management department of the North Carolina experiment station. Mr. Johnson has made a survey of seventy-three stock farms and the same number of farms devoted to general crops.

"In fact," says Mr. Johnson, "the general crop farms, which are the farms with the smaller number of animals per hundred acres in crops, has 2.5 acres of open pasture for each animal kept, while the stock farms, which are those that keep the larger number of animals per hundred acres of crops, have only 1.25 acres of pasture for each animal. It is also found that the bought feeds consumed are much higher where the smaller acreage is devoted to pasture. The proportion of the home-grown feeds used on the farm is also greater with the smaller pasture acreage. In fact it looks like the farmers are simply going into the live stock business by simply putting a few more animals into the pastures already on hand.

"When this is done, it seems that these farmers are depending on home-grown feeds which are produced and handled at a considerable expense to make up the deficiency in the pasture or else some high-priced feeds are bought for this purpose. In either case the animal is put to a serious disadvantage when it comes to paying its way on the farm.

"With the animal husbandry or stock farms the ones that are really making money are the ones which have good pastures, while those depending largely upon bought feeds are either losing money or barely paying expenses. It would seem that the pasture is one of the most important items for the stock farmer to consider, for this is the cheapest way in which live stock can be produced.

"We see this reflected in the cotton seed sold from the farms studied. The general crop farms raised 15,789 bushels and sold 5,755. The stock farms raised 8,754 bushels and only sold 501 bushels. The general crop farmer can sell one-fourth of his seed while the animal industry man can only part with one-sixth."

Hickory Library Association Reorganized.

Ramsay, secretary, and Mrs. A. K. Joy, treasurer; Prof. C. M. Slade, George Ivey and Mrs. George C. Yoder were elected directors.
