CONSERVATIVE STATESMANSHIP ALWAYS SAFEST

The following interview was prepared for The News by Bishop John C. Kilgo, when asked for his views as to the danger of a spread of Bolshevism throughout the world and as to the statement made by prominent leaders, that the church will have to change its methods and adopt other more radical changes to keep in line with present-day movements on the part of the body politic.

He believes that America should get back as soon as possible to normal conditions and that business men should absorb as quickly as possible the returning men from France. 'To allow them to loiter, hunting for jobs which they gave up to fight for this country, he believes will be a most dangerous thing.'

As usual there is a class who make much ado about reconstruction as it is a matter of restoration, or recovery. With France, Belgium and Serbia and other European countries there is a real work of reconstruction to be done, and the task is a tremendous task. But America has not been overrun by any armies and, in a material sense, nothing has been destroyed, as was the case with the South at the close of the Civil War. But we have had a gigantic share in this war and the normal course of our whole order of life has been abruptly diverted into abnormal channels. So the immediately pressing

Much Rheumatism

Local Druggists' No-Cure No-Pay Offer Attracts Many Sufferers. If there are any rheumatic sufferers in town who have not availed themselves of Jas. P. Stow's & Co.'s generous offer they should do so at once. They state that if the guaranteed prescription for rheumatism does not give any permanent relief, they will refund the purchase price without any quibbling or red tape.

Rheumatism is a dangerous disease, and anyone who has the slightest taint of it should drive it from the system as soon as possible. Read what Rheuma did for this sufferer: 'I had been laid up for one year with rheumatism. I had doctors galore, also spent four months in the sanitarium hospital at Troy, N. Y. I started taking Rheuma. I have now taken five bottles, and can go without any other aid, which I could not do for the last nine months. I highly recommend it, and would gladly answer any questions asked, on receipt of stamp for postage. This letter may be published as a benefit to sufferers from rheumatism in any form.'—Thomas H. Eddy, Schuylerville, N. Y.

Good druggists everywhere sell Rheuma. A large bottle is inexpensive and sufficient for two weeks' treatment.

long as customers will pay the amount the price is just. We have become wild in such extravagance. The government has set the example. It is true that the exigencies of the war made it impossible to exercise due economy in expenditures, but all legislators should understand that the war is over and that it is now a public demand that extravagance shall stop. And this should not only be demanded of legislators but of all benevolent and ecclesiastical bodies. The enthusiasm with which the calls for money to aid war needs were met speaks volumes for the benevolent spirit of Americans, but these orders must not presume that they have found a scheme by which they can continue to command big monies. And every aspect of business must join in a popular effort to return to a basis of sound economy. Profitteering has been the most unpatriotic spirit that has blotted America's otherwise noble record. It has not been the sin of one line of business but of every line of it. No class has escaped the demon of money greed. Bigger wages and larger dividends have been the cry, the heartless cry of the whole business community. Economy will come hard but it must come. In some fields it will come slow but come it must, and the government should be the first to begin its return. We come out of the war with an enormous national debt that will vex us a long time, and from now on people will take notice of it as they did not while it was in the making. Congress can not go on piling up taxes, and the sooner unnecessary expenditures are cut out the safer will be our own national peace.

'We must get rid of the paternalism which the war forced into our government. Such a policy was as wise as it was unavoidable, and it is not unlikely that under the pressure the government went, in some instances, beyond strict necessities, but we are all willing to overlook any such errors in the past. However, this is a democratic form of government and individualism is one of its fundamental ideas. It is this that has made the America self-reliant and self-directive under all circumstances, and on the battlefields of France this has been one of the outstanding and distinctive traits of the American soldier. We should not for one moment tolerate any policy that would hinder the growth of a strong individualism. It is not a question of the most economic policy of transacting business, but one of the strongest citizenship. We should never be willing to get money at the expense of manhood. So as rapidly as possible and without any reservation the whole field of industry should be open for the activities of the individual. This has been the mightiest school for the development of American manhood. It has inspired aspiration, called out all mental and moral resources in men, quickened energies, and made a history that reflects lasting glory on American democracy. The vast amount of undeveloped resources in this country call for every ounce of human energy and human genius that can be brought to them, and any policy that does not inspire personal enterprise will halt all genuine progress of material development.

'There are other recoveries, or return to other normal lines of our American system, but these are sufficient to show that reconstruction does not interest us so much as restoration demands our attention. We have not yet exhausted the constitution which the founders of this republic gave us. Original Americanism does not need a radical revolution. There may be many adjustments which changed conditions in Europe will require but they can all be met amply upon the basis of our fundamental ideas and doctrines of government, and a wise statesmanship will provide for them as they appear. About this we have no anxieties. But we must remain Americans. The war has given new emphasis to the wisdom and the strength of our institutions and should confirm afresh our faith in and devotion to them. 'As to your inquiry about the "reconstruction" of the church little need be said. The mission of the church is very different from the mission of political institutions. As long as men remain sinners and the gospel remains the only power of salvation from sin, the work of the church will remain what it was from the beginning. All the talk about revolutionizing the church to put it in line with the movements of the times is a cheap form of infidelity and a pitiful ignorance of the real foundation and nature of church. No doubt there is a class that would pervert it to the tasks of serving temporal wishes, greeds, and enterprises, but God created it primarily for other ends, the work of His kingdom and when men seek it, first they will find as the inevitable result the other things. I grant that this the original order from which some have departed but there are still those who have not denied the faith and run off after German Kultur, either in religion or in politics. My candid opinion is that the brightest religious outlooks at this time is with the Salvation army. They seem to me to be the completest expression of the apostolic church, free from hindering conventionalisms and questionable doctrines. They hold strictly to the apostolic teachings and experiences, and the Salvation army is coming out the war with a nimbus of glory encircling its brow, the divine seal of their simple fidelity to the gospel of salvation preached from the day of Pentecost. It is not a new adjustment of religion but a return to the original faith of the church. What we need in this land is not a revision of the church but a mighty revival in the church.'

REPUBLICANS MEET.

Chicago, Jan. 10.—The meeting of the republican national committee here today was regarded as epochal in that it was the first time in the history of the governing body that women had a part in forming plans for a national campaign. The adoption of resolutions on the death of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt and routine business were expected to occupy the forenoon session which was executive. The committeemen were invited to luncheon with the republican state executive committee of which Mrs. Medill McCormick, of Illinois, is chairman. Practically every state and territory was represented either by its national committeeman in person or by proxy.

THIN PEOPLE SHOULD TAKE PHOSPHATE

Nothing Like Plain Bitro-Phosphate to Put on Firm, Healthy Flesh and to Increase Strength, Vigor and Nerve Force. Judging from the countless preparations and treatments which are continually being advertised for the purpose of making thin people fleshy, developing arms, neck and bust, and replacing ugly hollows and angles by the soft curved lines of health and beauty, there are evidently thousands of men and women who keenly feel their excessive thinness. Thinness and weakness are usually due to starved nerves. Our bodies need more phosphate than is contained in modern foods. Physicians claim there is nothing that will supply this deficiency so well as the organic phosphate known among druggists as bitro-phosphate, which is inexpensive and is sold by Jas. P. Stow & Co., and all good druggists under a guarantee of satisfaction or money back. By feeding the nerves directly and by supplying the body cells with the necessary phosphoric food elements, bitro-phosphate quickly produces a welcome transformation in the appearance; the increase in weight frequently being astonishing. This increase in weight also carries with it a general improvement in the health. Nervousness, sleeplessness and lack of energy, which nearly always accompany excessive thinness, soon disappear, dull eyes become bright, and pale cheeks glow with the bloom of perfect health. CAUTION:—Although bitro-phosphate is unsurpassed for relieving nervousness, sleeplessness and general weakness, it should not, owing to its remarkable flesh-growing properties, be used by anyone who does not desire to put on flesh.
