Woman Is Defending Woman Held On Charge Of Murder

New York, April 8 .- Mrs. Donatella Massiella, of Corona, L. I., is in the Queens County jail charged with murder in the first degree. A woman was the victim of the alleged crime-Mrs. Concetta Altieri, a neighbor of the accused. But-new and remarkable-in the extremity of her grief and need, Mrs. Massiella has cried out that she would have none but a woman defend her.

A woman will defend a woman charged with killing a woman. It seems like the last cry of modernity instead of the choked appeal of a woman sodden with grief and terror over a dreaded fate. But Mrs. Massiella is not a "modern" woman. She came to this land many years ago. She speaks another tongue. Her life has been one of sacrifice and illness. She is the mother of five. Time was not found for the learning of a new language or the constant appreciation of the rise of her
