SLOGAN, CREATED 10 YEARS AGO, USED

"Welcome Knights of the Mortar and Pestle," reads the predominating line in a painted show-window in Caton's Drug store in honor of the presence in the city of the druggists of North and South Carolina.

The line attracted the attention of Secretary F. W. Hancock, of the North Carolina Board of Pharmacy, who originated the phrase 10 years ago. Not since then has it been brought into use as a synomym for a druggist. Mr. Hancock recalled the phrase Tuesday as an exclamation of his own made during a circus parade in Raleigh 10 years ago. A score of students in a school of pharmacy were watching a circus parade when, impressed by the concentration of the students' minds upon the parade rather than studies, he made the exclamation which furnished a good joke for the visiting pharmacists Tuesday. AGAINST BEER BILL.

HOWELL WINS $453 IN AN ESTATE SUIT

George A. Howell won a verdict over W. M. Smith, administrator of the estate of the late George Banker, in civil court Tuesday. He won $453 with interest on that amount from November 1917 to the present. Mr. Banker died March 1919. The plaintiff claimed the former owner of the estate owed him the amount of the verdict-

A feature of the case was the fact that the plaintiff in the case could not testify as to the transaction because of the North Carolina law that forbids one party to litigation to testify as to the facts when the other party to the transaction had died..

Third party witnesses can testify, however. John A. McRae was attorney for Mr. Howell and A. B. Justice was at torney for the Banker estate's adminis-

Sardis School Matter Up for Friday.

Nothing less than the authority of he board of school commissioners of wo others adjacent, according to mempers of the school board.

The injunction proceedingare set to be heard Friday afternoon in chambers win. before Judge McElroy, now presiding over a term of Superior court here. Attorneys for the Rama community complainants are T. L. Kirkpatrick, Carol Taliaferro and H. L. Taylor. For the school board, its own attorneys, H. N. Pharr and J. A. Bell will appear and associated with them in the hear ing will be Edgar W. Pharr and F. M. Redd.

This is the first time the county board of education has been forced into the courts in defense of its right to have authority over school issues in this county, members of the board allege. They have encountered opposition in the establishment of other consolidated schools in Mecklenburg county, but, in all of these instances, the minority opposition finally accepted the will of the majority of the interested patrons of the districts involved and the consolidated schools have been allowed to run BROGDEN URGED MOVE.

More than a year ago, it is stated by friends of the proposed consolidation of the Sardis, Carmel and Oak this community and urged the consolidation of these three schools on the ground that each of them, as they then existed, was insufficient and would so remain so long as conditions surrounding them then prevailed. The schools at Sardis and Carmel had two teachers who were unable to instruct the chil dren, according to the ideal of teach ing which is in the mind of the State and the county authorities. The school at Oak Grove had been abandoned two or three years ago and the children of that district scattered to other schools, some of them being forced to come to Charlotte schools or to private schools. All of the three schools are within a distance of two miles of each other, hence the project of consolidation with the idea of having one central school with five or six teachers, was advanced. When the issue was presented to the patrons of the Sardis school, at a meeting publicly announced, 19 of the 24 patrons present voted in favor of the consolidation, and the patrons of the Carmel school were likewise overwhelming in their action in favor of the project, school board oficials contend. The Oak Grove patrons have, in the meantime, held an election and ananiin 1916 it is said everything was cut mously voted themseles into the consolidated district in addition to voting a tax upon themselves for its support. OPPONENTS MADE MOVE.

After the Sardis school patrons decided to enter the consolidation, some patrons who were opposed to the project procured an incorporation of their part of the Sardis district together with extraneous territory in the form of a rural community, the purpose of such a move, it is contended, being to prevent the school board from including them in the consolidated district.

The injunction proceedings will hinge therefore, upon the extent of the rights of an incorporated rural community to infringe upon the discretionary rights of the school board in fixing school districts, the rights of a school district to invoke a special tax for the support of the schools and such other basic issues involving the rights and authority of the board of school commis-

The case is regarded as one so unusually important as defining the extent of the school board's authority, and the functions also of the State board of education, that the understanding is that the State board will have a legal representative here, probably Attorney General Manning, in order to assist the county board in the defense of what it claims to be its constitutional rights.
