BOARD STOPPED BY INJUNCTION. Public Accountant Body Expected to Give Tests in Washington This Week. Judge J. E. McElroy signed an order Saturday afternoon restraining G. G. Scott, J. J. Bernard, J. B. McCabe and Charles Goodno, constituting the North Carolina Board of Public Accountants from holding a proposed examination in Washington, D. C., next Tuesday and Wednesday, specifically. Also the order cites the board to show cause here at a hearing July 11 why the board should not be restrained from ever holding such an examination outside the State.

IREDELL FARMER IS BADLY INJURED. Brakeless Wagon Forced His Team to Run Away While on a Hill. Statesville, June 25.—Ed Harmon, a farmer living four miles from Statesville on the Turersburg road, was seriously injured yesterday when his team ran away. Coming down the grade on Front street from its intersection with Mulberry street, the wagon not being equipped with brakes and the team not being able to hold the wagon back, was forced to run to keep out of the way of the wagon. When the wagon struck the curb near Kincaid and Barger's lumber establishment, Mr. Harmon was thrown upon the asphalt street. He was picked up in an unconscious condition and taken to a hospital where it was found that he had suffered a serious concussion of the brain and was otherwise injured.

WINSTON MAN IS AFTER LAUNDRY. R. A. Trice and Hotel Clerk Have Hard Time Getting Shirts to "Stay Put." With the whereabouts of $75 worth of laundry a complete mystery, R. A. Trice, of Winston-Salem, left Charlotte Saturday night with anything but an expression of buoyancy upon his face.

It happened like this," said J. K. Gilles, of the "Small Hotel." Several months ago Mr. Trice sent some silk shirts to the laundry and left Charlotte before they came back. He told me to send them to him at Union, S. C. I addressed them to that place, had them insured and mailed them as directed. "Not long afterwards, Mr. Trice came in the hotel. "Where is my laundry?" he asked. "I received it, but as I had a return address on it, I felt sure it would come back to the hotel. Days passed, but it failed to do so. I waited a reasonable length of time, during which I received a letter from the Union postmaster, in which he said the package had never reached that place. I was just getting ready to go down and collect the insurance—when in popped the laundry."

WENT TO ALBEMARLE. "It had, in some manner, gone to Albemarle. Why it was not sent on to Union, I cannot say. It was returned to me. Why they kept it such a length of time I also do not see. But Mr. Trice had just pulled out for Augusta for a week's sojourn there. I mailed the package to that place. "A week later he came back to Charlotte and asked again for the laundry. He was pretty hacked when he learned that he should have received it in Augusta."

"Well, when it comes in again, send it to Winston-Salem," he said. "A week or so passed and Mr. Trice popped in the hotel one day and asked for his laundry. He was pretty hacked when he learned that he should have received it in Winston-Salem."

"Well, when it comes in again, send it to Union," he said. "I will be there for about two weeks."

HET BE DODGED. Saturday night Mr. Trice popped in the hotel and asked for his laundry. He was pretty hacked when he learned that he should have received it in Union.

"Frankly, I'll be dogged if I know what to think," exclaimed Mr. Gilles. "I sent that laundry to Union so long ago that it's had time to go around the world. I can't understand what is happening."

"Oh, well," sighed Mr. Trice, "the shirts are probably out of style now, anyway."

And with that he pricked his ears at the foot of a distant train and disappeared in the direction of the station. "But I am going to hold that laundry till the cows come home if it ever hits here again," declared Mr. Gilles.

SAVED SOME BERRIES. New York, June 25.—Mrs. Mary Berry recently won a suspended sentence from Magistrate Dale, in the Bridge Plaza case, for quick work when arraigned on a charge of intoxication. The following colloquy took place:

"What's your name?" "Mary Berry." "Where do you live?" "Forty-one Berry street." "What did you get drunk on?" "Berry wine." "There's a good deal of 'berry' in this case," remarked the Magistrate. "Yes, Your Honor, if you'll give me a suspended sentence I'll promise to be 'berry' good hereafter." "Sentence suspended."

THE OTHER MEMBERS OF THE STATE BOARD, upon all of whom the injunction is to apply, are: E. B. McCabe, of Wilmington, who is vice-president of the board; J. J. Bernard, of Raleigh, secretary-treasurer of the board, and Charles Goodno, of Greensboro.

Mr. McCullough brought the injunction, it was explained by his attorneys, as a citizen and a public accountant who is interested in putting all possible safeguards about the profession of public accounting. His purpose in seeking to have the examination that was to have been taken in Washington this week held up, it was explained, was to prevent the possibility that the examination given at Raleigh should have been known to any of the applicants at Washington and his further purpose is to have the examinations always held in the State hereafter.

THE act creating the North Carolina Board of Public Accountants was passed some years ago. All the members of the board are appointed by the governor.

THE North Carolina Board, as a matter of record, held at least one examination at Washington during the war period. It was held there as a matter of accommodation to a large number of applicants who wish to take the examination of the North Carolina, whose standard of excellence is said to be such that applicants over a wide territory seek certificates of the North Carolina Board.
