HOW'D YOU LIKE TO WRAP HER UP AND TAKE HER HOME? SHE'S TINY ACTRESS

Miss Dorothy Orth.

Miss Dorothy Orth is one of the smallest, if not the very tiniest, of all motion picture actresses in the country. She is not lacking in beauty even though she may lack in height and weight. She tips the beam at exactly 87 pounds and that is not without clothes on, because, well, she is not one of the bathing beauties. Miss Orth was a dancer in a Nora Bayes show in Los Angeles when she deserted the stage for the screen.

Famous Woman Homesteader Who Defied Nobleman Dies

Denver, June 28.—Mrs. John J. Manford, who gained fame half a century ago by her determined and successful "smoking out" from the Estes Park region of the Earl of Dunraven, and who was known to thousands of American tourists who have visited the Rocky Mountain National Park, is dead.

She succumbed to a surgical operation in a Longmont, Colo., hospital, and was buried in Leveland, Colo., last week.

As Miss Flora Shoemaker, Mrs. Manford abandoned a prosperous dress-making business in Denver, in the early 70's to become a "squatter" on land in the Estes Park region that Lord Thomas Wyndham, Earl of Dunraven, had attempted to acquire as a "hunting preserve."

Lord Thomas made his first visit to the Estes Park region, now the Rocky Mountain National Park, in 1872. He was so delighted with the country that a few years later, he started a campaign to secure title to the entire countryside and keep it as a vast estate upon which he and his friends of English nobility could hunt big game.

It was charged in some quarters that a number of men were hired to homestead the region and turn their claims over to the Earl. He secured, it is said, title to more than 15,000 acres before the Federal government learned of his lordship's plans, and moved to check them.

Learning from an "inside" source that Uncle Sam was preparing to contest the Earl of Dunraven's claims, and that the territory might be thrown open to new entry, Miss Shoemaker closed out her modiste establishment and went to the park.

After carefully scrutinizing the "estate" of Lord Thomas, Miss Shoemaker selected a particularly beautiful tract on the west bank of Fish Creek, just opposite a palatial hotel and casino that the foreign nobleman had erected to house his visiting friends. Miss Shoemaker quietly filed a homestead entry on the tract and pitched a tent for her temporary home.

LIFE THREATENED, HURLS DEFY

A tremendous protest was voiced by the English colony against this invasion, and some threats are said to have been made upon the young woman's life. She defied the Earl and his guests, and purchasing a rifle and a goodly supply of ammunition "dared" anyone to oust her.

For weeks following, Miss Shoemaker was subjected to numerous petty annoyances. She was unable to hire men to build her house or do any work about her claim. Undaunted, she started the arduous task of shaping with her own hands a log cabin. Several night attacks were made on her lonely shack, but the intruders were driven away when she opened up with volleys from her rifle. At the end of a few months, Miss Shoemaker had completed a log home, and also built a substantial fence around most of her property, "under the noses" of the protesting Englishmen.

The plucky "squatter's" determination and success inspired others and soon new settlers began to "stake out" claims on the land desired by the Earl of Dunraven, contesting his title to the property. They came so rapidly and in such numbers that Lord Thomas lost hope of holding the domain, relinquishing his claims and leaving the country forever.

The Manfords have operated a chain of cottages for the benefit of tourists for the past few years.

ARREST STRIKING FIREMEN.

Quebec, June 28.—Five striking municipal firemen, including Wilfred Garlery, president of the firemen's union, were arrested Monday night charged with violating the municipal strike and lockout act, which makes strikes of municipal employees illegal. Warrants were sworn out for the arrest of about twenty other strikers.

ROBBERS STRIP MINT HILL STORE

About $2,000 Worth of Goods Taken While Employee Sleeps Near By.

Thieves entered the general merchandise store of S. C. Alexander at Mint Hill Monday night and stole around $2,000 worth of automobile supplies to baccos and produce. A man was sleeping in a room in the rear of the store at the time. Mr. Alexander reported to the Charlotte police Tuesday morning.

The robbery, while believed to have been committed sometime after midnight, was not discovered until the store was opened for the day Tuesday. Consequently, not the slightest clue could be obtained which might lead to the apprehension of the robbers.

Neither was it possible to indicate how many were in the gang nor how many automobiles were used to carry away the booty, although the amount of goods stolen led the police to believe that two or three cars carried the thieves to the store.

A list of the stolen supplies, as furnished the police by Mr. Alexander, follows:

Twenty automobile tubes, size 30 by 3 1/2; 15 blow out patches, 24 tubes of repair patches, 40 potatoes, Maxwell House coffee; 200 boxes of Chesterfield cigarettes; 100 packages of smoking tobaccos; 3 1/2 gallons Texas motor oils; a 6-gallon can of gasoline; Philadelphia batteries, two boxes spark plugs, one box of valves, 12 cans of cement and a big assortment of cakes, salmons and canned goods.

The thieves left two sacks of canned goods and a sack of flour sitting on the porch of the store.

The Alexander store is located at the forks of two roads in Mint Hill and is one of the largest general merchandise stores in the county. In addition to the Charlotte police, Sheriff W. O. Cochran's office also was notified and rural policemen made an investigation.

The thieves evidently were familiar with the surroundings and effected a safe getaway without leaving the slightest clue. Entrance into the store was effected through the front doors, the locks on which were broken.
