

DALLAS GIRLS UNDER THE BAN

Censors Will Not Permit Showing of Dazzling Maids.

New York, Sept. 2.—New York movie fans are protesting against the action of the State Censorship Board in eliminating bathing-beach beauties, clad in skim-thin, one-piece garments, from films. The film in question was put out by the Pathe News, showing dazzling maids from Dallas, Texas; but the censors would not allow the picture to be shown in theatres. And, in defiance to the censors, newspapers immediately published the picture without hindrance, as they have been printing similar pictures of other beauties in like dress for months.

Ruth V. Brittenstein, of the Bronx, observes: "Any person who claims this is not a responsible picture has a vile and degraded mind. To me the girls look natural and very pretty."

E. Kalina, of Brooklyn, chips in: "CAN'T COMPREHEND FUSS."

"I cannot comprehend why such a fine picture is being censored. Curiosity is aroused when the picture is covered that is oftentimes conducive to immorality."

"Nobody objects to the public exhibitions showing the female form divine in the nude, and, as far as I can see, no harm has come from it. I venture to say nobody is shocked at seeing a shapely girl in a one-piece bathing suit on the beach, if that girl behaves in a proper manner. America should be proud of its robust, healthy, athletic and beautiful girls."

Mrs. E. Griffith, of First avenue, declares: "These old 'hens' who are raving are the evil-minded. What is more beautiful than a well-formed girl, full of youth, to gaze upon? We have nude paintings and call it art. Why not class the fair bathers as art?"

Captain O. H. Ahrens, Brighton Beach life guard, states: "I favor girls wearing a short suit, as it is essential to have one's leg movements free. How can they swim when weighted down with bloomers, stockings and shoes?"

"The trouble is we have too many narrow-minded old cronies sitting around on the beach that probably never took a good swim in their life, and don't swim and can't see a shapely young girl walking around."

"The Pathe company has announced it will appeal from the censorship board's decision, carrying the case to the U. S. Supreme Court."

DOG IS CALLED HERO.

Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 2.—"Sport" Heaton, a dog, was regarded as a hero recently. He saved the lives of the Heaton family when fire broke out and nearly destroyed their home here. All members of the family were asleep. Hearing loudly "Sport" ran from one room to another until all had been awakened.

Had Close Shave

"My wife and children thought I was dying when, after an attack of acute pains in my stomach, I became unconscious. It was right after our Sunday dinner. They say I looked like dead and guess I had a pretty close shave. I had been having more or less stomach trouble and bloating with gas for just two years and could get no permanent help. Talking with a friend about my attack, he advised me to try Mayr's Wonderful Remedy. I have not had any gas or stomach trouble since taking it eighteen months ago. It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach trouble, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. CARUSO FOUGHT AGAINST DEATH

Noted Dancer Tells of Last Hours of the Great Singer's Life.

New York, Sept. 2.—"Caruso did not want to die. He believed it was the Supreme Will that he should continue to sing. He was broken-hearted and cried like a child when he became aware death was at hand."

This was the information brought by Rosini Galli, premiere dancer of the Metropolitan Opera Company, who has just arrived from Italy. Mme. Galli joined Mrs. Caruso immediately after the death of the tenor, and remained with her and the baby, Gloria, until after the funeral. Mme. Galli continued: "Caruso wanted so much to get well. On his deathbed he called to his wife: 'Don't you think I will recover?' He was quiet then and did not know he was going to die. A little later he felt terrible pains in his chest. He must have suffered awful agony."

"Again he called to Mrs. Caruso in an agonizing voice: 'I am going to die.' She tried to comfort him, saying the pain would soon pass and that he would be better. But it was not so. His eyes closed, his moaning ceased. He was dead."

"The world has lost a voice that will never be replaced and a man of splendid character."

"Mrs. Caruso told me she will return to America as soon as her affairs have been adjusted."

"Mrs. Caruso finds it hard to convince herself that Enrico is dead. She told me she expects him to walk in and greet her any moment. And every time Enrico's brother Giovanni comes before her view her heart almost stops beating. She said to me, 'Whenever I see Giovanni I think it is my Enrico. It is agony for me, I cannot realize he is gone.'"

"Only a few days before his death he was singing. He sang 'Marta' all the way through and asked everybody, 'How is my voice?' Everybody thought it was wonderful, better than ever. Caruso was confident of that. That was his mistake. He did not pay attention to his lungs, which had become affected. He had not the power there."

VOLUME LACKING.

"The voice retained the old richness of tone, but he did not breathe as well, and the volume was lacking. He had lost more than he realized or cared to admit even to himself. I doubt if he would ever have been the same great Caruso had he lived."

"When the abscess began bothering him he made light of it, and Mrs. Caruso did not send for a physician. She was a stranger in Naples and did not know. Someone else should have stepped in and taken the great tenor in hand. Doctors were finally called, but it was too late."

"The Naples physicians would not risk operating on such a man under such circumstances. The abscess had made too much progress. They recommended sending to Rome for celebrated surgeons."

"Nevertheless, Caruso was opposed to an operation. Indeed, he did not want the doctors around. He said to them: 'Tell me what I have, what the trouble is.' They never did so, but kept him in ignorance of the real condition of his illness."

"Caruso will be buried like other illustrious Italians. They are now seeking the place. There will be a suitable tomb or monument."
