BROWNS LOSE ONE.

VANDERBILT MAKES READY FOR PRACTICE.
Nashville, Tenn., Sept. 3.—With initial football practice only ten days off, authorities at Vanderbilt are putting Dudley Field in shape, hauling out the old bucking machine, rigging up the tackling dummy and taking the jerseys and other paraphernalia out of mothballs.

Speaker Converts Indifferent Ball Players Into Champions

Cleveland, Sept. 3.—Some managers develop young ball players very well. They seem to have the faculty not only of discerning the good in the boy who is starting, but of bringing it out. Other managers will take ball players of brilliant individual attainment and will then together so as to get a compact and finished result.

Tris Speaker appears to have a different faculty from any of them. He takes ball players who couldn't get along and makes winners out of them. He is a manager and a coach of temperament as much as an instructor in physical skill and how to apply it.

After all, it is probable that a manager who has most of that type in him is the greatest one. Some tall teams are not hard to make. Some tall teams have been teams which needed the manager only that they might have one upon whom they could fall back for an alibi or an excuse in a while.

There are other teams that have been driven to success. They are comparatively few and they almost always have had to be teams whose physical skill was of the highest type. The manager had to direct it. A team thicker mentally than another may win more games, but they almost always have had to be teams whose physical skill was of the highest type.

with Speaker behind him. Johnston never will be called a star, but he plays a star's part in winning championships.

EVANS A CONVERTED FIELDER.
There was a time when Evans was heard of only as an infielder. No one ever dreamed that he would make an outfielder. Speaker decided, perhaps, that he never would make an infielder, and put him in the outfield. In any event he made Evans part of his plan of using a changed outfield against different styles of pitching, and Evans played left field when the right hand pitchers worked against Cleveland, as Wood played the right field side of the infield at the same time.

steadily against the other fellows, providing, of course, that the other fellow has team and not a scattered collection of stars or mediocrities, as the case happens to be.

Two weather-beaten stars of the old Pittsburgh crew that annexed the last championship won by the Smoky City are whetting up their chops for a share of one more world's series.

inches to fight he will retain his form and as long as he retains his form there is little danger of any one taking the title away from him.

Most of the other champions did not last long. Soft living and idleness made them easy prey for better trained men.

WORLD'S SERIES GREATEST EVENT

Was Strenuously Objected to by Many Owners of Clubs in National.

Starting from nothing, except an overwhelming dousing of public interest and fairly good backing, this series has developed into the greatest money-team-athletic scramble, if that compound descriptive phrase may be permitted to stand, of any event in the United States, probably in the world.

It may be interesting to know that the series was most bitterly fought when it was proposed. The writer's first referring to the refusal of John T. Brush to play a post-season series with Boston in 1904, which was a purely local affair, but to the opposition which came from conservative baseball men in the winter of 1904 and in the spring of 1905, when the world series was beginning to assume a definite orbit in the baseball firmament.

As it became apparent that a world series would be urged by a faction in the National League, John T. Brush, who had a championship team in New York, which was pretty like to repeat in 1905, decided that he would draw up the rules for the competition himself.

CALIFORNIA MAY MEET YALE TEAM

There is magic in that word 'Yale' to us in California. We remember what an influence it had on the old through Lee McCulling, Walter Camp, who gave Stanford the great Yale system, and later Hefflinger and Gill.

Now just a word about the effect this high-class football team is having upon attendance at the university. They had a big football rally out there a short time ago and, when they came to inquire into the prep schools of the men present, they found a wide section of them from California.
