

BEAUTY CHATS

BEAUTIFYING SHAMPOOS.

I sometimes wonder whether every woman who carelessly washes her hair whenever the notion takes her quite realizes the beautifying value of the shampoo. The hair should never merely be washed. It should be prepared for the shampoo by an oil massage and the shampoo itself should be a beauty treatment.

About every six weeks or about every other shampoo time the ends of the hair should be singed and clipped to keep them from splitting. The night before the shampoo a little oil or sulphur ointment should be massaged thoroughly into the scalp. The shampoo itself should vary according to the character of the hair.

A scalp coated with dandruff should be given an egg shampoo or a tar shampoo, the last of course being a shampoo with tar soap. Dry hair should be given an unusually thorough oil massage and should be washed with castile soap dissolved in hot water so it forms a tick liquid.

Very oily hair can be washed with this same liquid soap and should have the soap used three times before the hair is rinsed. Even dry hair should be soaped twice, for the first time is never enough to get all the dirt and grease from hair and scalp.

Lusterless hair will improve enormously with the henna shampoo which adds life and luster and richness of coloring without actually changing the shade of the hair. In any shampoo a valuable thing is to add an antiseptic to the water in which you wash and rinse. The scalp should not only be clean but antiseptically clean at the end of the shampoo. While the hair is drying shake and massage it.

Marian—Massage the chest each day with cocoa butter. Deep breathing is also excellent for building up the muscles of the chest and bust. Cold water dashed over this part of the body each morning, then followed with friction from a coarse towel, will tone the skin, making the muscles firm. Peroxide of Hydrogen is a simple bleach for slight blemishes of the skin.

Anxious—The only way to get rid of this tendency to pimples, is to clean the system and keep it clean all the time. There are a great many young people now effecting this through taking yeast daily, until they have overcome the tendency entirely. Three to four cakes should be taken daily, during the early part of the treatment, after that two cakes will be enough for ordinary cases, until the skin has cleared entirely and the digestive system is normal.

Stout One—Send a stamped addressed envelope and full directions for reducing will be mailed to you.

A. A. W.—Any good cream will built up the tissues, but if you are in doubt about making a selection, send a stamped envelope and I shall be pleased to mail a formula for such a cream.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So if a personal or quicker reply is desired a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the questions.—The Editor.

MAKING MARKET FOR PRODUCTS OF COPPER

Bisbee, Ariz., Sept. 23.—If you can't find a market for your product, make one. This is the underlying principle of a new voluntary organization recently formed in Arizona copper district.

For months copper has been a drug on the market. There is a surplus of metal and the great copper mining industry of this State has stagnated; men have been thrown out of employment; great pieces of expensive machinery lying idle and depreciating in value without producing anything for their owners.

Now comes the Copper and Brass Research organization headed by R. L. Agassiz, president of the Calumet and Hecla Mining company, and numbering among its members virtually all the great copper mining companies of the United States.

The purpose of the organization is to create new uses for copper so that the surplus now on the market may be cleaned up and a demand created for the ore still underground.

One new use for copper is expected to be found in Arizona next year if plans for adapting copper for use in manufacture of automobile license plates materialize. It also is proposed to use copper plates in marking automobile highways.

CHEERING DOES HELP THIS MACHINE SHOWS

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 23. (United Press.)—If you're one of those persons who claim that cheering at a football or baseball game is wasted breath and energy, prepare yourself to be converted to the great throng who do the cheering.

There's a machine out at the University of Pennsylvania that proves, according to psychologists that cheering does help a whole lot and in many cases may be the means of winning the game. Cheering brings out a last, almost superhuman effort on the part of the cheered, according to psychologists. The machine consists of a little drum to which a marker is attached, the other end of which is tied to the finger of the subject. There is a 1,500 gram weight is also tied to the subject's finger and he is instructed to lift the weight up and down until the finger can lift no longer. No urging or cheering is done the first time.

Then, during a second experiment, when the finger shows signs of fatigue the subject is urged to "buck up, old boy, and show some pep" and just hold out for a while longer. The markings on the drum show that the subject has been able to lift the weight many times more in the second trial than in the first when no cheering was done.

CRIPPLED CHILDREN MAY VISIT THE ZOO

Chicago, Sept. 23.—Chicago's crippled children may ride right up to the cages in Lincoln Park zoo and inspect the elephants, tigers, lions and the 300 pound baby hippo at first hand.

The park commissioners recently purchased six wheel chairs and stationed them at the park entrance for free use of crippled visitors. And for those who cannot reach the park the commissioners have provided automobiles, which will call at a selected list of homes daily.

Free peanuts and popcorn and a boat ride are other attractions donated for the crippled by the board.

HEART AND HOME PROBLEMS

By Mrs. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl of nineteen years and have been keeping steady company with a very nice young man for over two years. After I had gone with him for about a year he asked me to be his wife, but I refused as I did not know whether I really loved him or not.

A year has elapsed since then and I find that I love him. He has not asked me since, for when we were talking about it he said, "Anytime you make up your mind just say the word and we will be married."

I am too reserved to do that. How shall I do about it to make him understand that I really love and want him. He often speaks of marriage, but never asks me outright.

ANXIOUS.

The young man is wrong in trying to force you to say that you will marry him. When he sees by your actions that you love him he ought to ask you again. Be sweet and lovable and wait for him to say something further. You are very young and can afford to wait.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have been married about eighteen years to a man who is good and generous to his family, but he is moody and slovenly in his habits and dress. At times it seems as though I cannot continue to live with him and retain my own self-respect.

The children are so sensitive to it that they will not invite their friends to the house. He is a man of means and leisure and has always lived amidst surroundings of refinement, but in spite of my pleadings he is growing worse all the time.

For instance, last Sunday, although we had a guest of distinction for dinner and I asked him to dress an hour before fore-dinner was served, he came to the table with hands and nails so soiled it was nauseating—no collar, filthy trousers, slippers and no stockings; furthermore, as he did not care of dessert, he got up and left the table without even an apology.

The children are losing all their respect for him, and in spite of using all my will power he is growing more and more repellant to me. It is particularly hard on account of the social position we have always held, but which we are fast losing, due, I am sure, to his slovenly habits. When in despair I have tried to point out to him where it was leading us, and the effect it was having on the children, but it only made him very angry. He tells me I know what I can do if I don't like it. I am independent financially.

What shall I do?

IN DESPAIR

Stop nagging your husband and look for his lovable qualities. The most pathetic of all characters is the man who has been driven to slovenly habits because he will not be forced through nagging into habits picked out for him. Praise for one good point goes far in bringing out other good points.

There is just as much chance that you are losing your social position because you are unpleasant with your husband or because the children do not respect him as that he is slovenly. You can do much to keep his clothes in good condition by sending them to the cleaners, putting his shirts in the wash when they are soiled, slipping clean handkerchiefs into his pockets in place of dirty ones and then forgetting all about what you have done and not even mentioning how much better he looks.

Never criticize again, but look for worth and kindness in the man and you will be a much happier and much more popular family.

WOMAN TO PRESIDE OVER POLLING BOOTH

Haverhill, Mass., Sept. 23.—A woman presides over one of the voting precincts in this city at today's special primary election. This is regarded by officials as the first instance of a woman serving as warden at an election in Massachusetts.

The pioneer woman warden, Mrs. Ida A. Stevens, has previously officiated in times of the polls as an inspector. She will receive the usual compensation of 15 for what is normally a ten hour day but which may be much longer as the warden must remain until all votes are counted and tabulated.

The primary is being held to nominate a successor to Congressman Wilfred W. Lufkin, appointed collector of the port of Boston.

RANDOLPH IS GUILTY IN KIDNAPPING HOAX

Erie, Pa., Sept. 23.—Thomas D. Randolph, of Sharon, Pa., who startled his friends late in July by disappearing and sending a letter to his father saying he had been kidnapped, entered a plea of guilty to using the mails to defraud in the federal court here Thursday. He was sentenced to serve four months in the Mercer county jail.

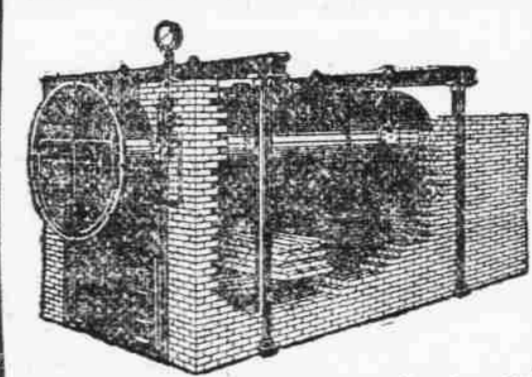

Judge C. P. Orr, in imposing sentence, said that Randolph's punishment was placed at four months because he already had been confined two months in jail and was facing a charge of blackmail at Mercer.
