

EXCITING CHASE OF BOOTLEGGERS

Bud Lippard and Son, Regarded as Notorious, in Party Apprehended.

One of the most exciting whiskey raids, which officers of the county and city have joined in recently, was pulled off Monday night in the former Camp Greene area, when Deputy Sheriff Vice... following a clue that he has been seeking for weeks, led a force of other deputies and city detectives there to await the coming of a big touring car, which was expected to bring a quantity of liquor.

The officers, as a consequence of their plans, placed R. K. Caldwell, white, in jail, where he remains, and released J. A. Queen, white, on bond, until Saturday morning. At that time they will be tried before Justice of the Peace Cobb on a charge of transporting and handling liquor.

What is more important, as viewed by Sheriff W. O. Cochran's office, is that warrants are out for "Bud" Lippard and Carl Lippard, his son, who also are charged with transporting and handling liquor. Although the Lippards got away in this raid, officers expect to arrest them before Saturday, the time for trying Caldwell and Queen.

Deputy Sheriff Fesperman, taking with him City Detectives J. F. Owens, L. E. Moser, and A. A. Owens, went to a point near the former quartermaster's depot, just off the Dowd road, in Camp Greene. They concealed themselves to await the coming of the expected party, anticipating that "Bud" Lippard and his son Carl would be in it.

MANY SHOTS FIRED. The officers had only a short while to wait before they saw the expected car approaching, with apparently five men in it. Before coming up to where the officers were concealed, the car came to a stop in a narrow alleyway and the two men who were in the car and the big car dashed down the alleyway like a shot, but not before the officers had directed a regular fusillade of bullets at it. About twenty-five shots were fired but the car sped away with such speed that there is doubt if anyone in it was hit.

The two men arrested stated to the officers that they were in the car with "Bud" and Carl Lippard and a "prominent man from Charlotte". The officers, as they dashed forward toward the car, flashed their lights on it and recognized the two Lippards by the license plate to identify the other man.

The two men arrested were brought back to the city under arrest, along with four five-gallon cans of liquor. One of the cars was not driven away but the big car dashed down the alleyway like a shot, but not before the officers had directed a regular fusillade of bullets at it.

SILK SHIRT COSTS NEGRO FIFTY BONES

One of the greatest attempts to undo a wrong in the record of the local police court was brought to light Tuesday morning at the session of that body when John Lewis, negro, was fined $50 and costs for stealing a shirt. John's apprehension came after Railroad Detective Carl Johnson had noticed him hanging around a box car on the Southern railroad. Mr. Johnson promptly searched himself and picked an eye for developments.

ROTARY LADIES NIGHT EPOCHAL

Brilliant Evening of Pleasure and Fellowship Crowned Annual Event.

More than 350 members of the Rotary Club, their wives and their guests were assembled at the Chamber of Commerce Monday night for observance of the annual "Ladies Night" event of the club, enjoyed three hours of rare social fellowship, a splendid dinner and a successful concert and movement and melody that was enchanting.

Practically every Rotarian present had his wife along with him and others brought their friends or relatives or neighbors to give the outside world a glimpse into the inner works of the organization. The meeting, for the most part, was a duplicate of the usual weekly luncheon, except enlarged to the 10th degree and drawn out three lengths in point of time. Gathering at 7 o'clock, the guests were held until 10 in the swirl of a program that had no lagging intervals, Mass speaking, stunts of many varieties, speech-making, solos, orchestra music, and a closing with the "Stupendous Panorama of Minstrelsy," the program of the evening was variegated enough to please the most exacting taste.

SCREEN CELEBRITIES PRESENT

One of the features of the evening was the presence of Miss Hope Hampton, the well-known movie star, who was introduced amid a round of applause. Miss Hampton went on the rostrum at the suggestion of President Lewis Burwell an old friend of the Rotarians, after which she sang with her clear, enchanting soprano, "At Dawning" and, as a closing with the popular melody, "That Tucky Home."

Another pleasing diversion was the introduction of little Louis Kaufeld, diminutive screen celebrity of six years, who gave an imitation of Sousa directed by hand and foot. The gala of the bandmaster and followed the with a clog dance which brought the house to its feet.

Drawing of handsome prizes for the night, prizes of whom had been given a red and white ticket as they entered the hall, followed. Those who were not included in the drawing for the special prizes were later given a chance to draw their own tickets, which were 50 beautiful potted plants, which were used as a part of the decorations of the evening. The favored half dozen who were selected by a turn of the Rotary wheel having numbers upon it were as follows:

Miss Ellen Victor, second prize, a hand-some box of stationery; Mrs. Henry McAllen, third prize, a box of candy; Mrs. Todd, fourth prize, a bridge set; Mrs. Rogers Davis, fifth prize, a boudoir electric lamp; Mrs. M. M. Murphy, sixth prize, a potted plant.

WHAT ROTARY IS. Julian S. Miller, editor of The News, in an address of a few minutes, explained the meaning and application of Rotary to modern life and society. "There's nothing difficult to understand about Rotary," he said. "There is nothing intricate about it. Everything there is to it is right on its face. There is no suggestion of Ku Klux Klan, no mystic keys, no different creed, no hidden secrets, no long rituals, no strange paraphernalia. So far as its machinery goes, it is the most unimpressive thing in the world, but away down inside of it, its friends, propelling every energy of its being, vibrant through every unit of its organism, lies the great principle of life as old as the hills of God.

"It is the principle, the simple principle, that no man can live for himself or for himself and that no man is rich except with the wealth of an efficient service to humanity. If that isn't the whole of it, then I have no notion at all of what it means and what it stands for. That's the platform upon which it is erected and that is the message it seeks to proclaim to the world."
