EIGHTEEN LIVES LOST IN STORM

Terrific Gale Off the New England Coast; Many Vessels Destroyed.

St. Johns, N. F., Dec. 8.—Eighteen lives are known to have been lost in the terrific northwest storm off the New England coast that swept a score of vessels from the sea on Monday and Tuesday. Details of the disaster were slowly filtering in to this port today, due to the demoralization of communication service, but a check-up of the facts at hand showed that the property damage along the coast would reach at least $250,000.

Nine men and a woman and a child were reported to have gone down with the schooner Passport at Bayverde. The schooner Jean and Mary parted from her tug, the D. P. Ingraham near Penguin Island and was lost with her crew of seven men. The tug, which was a United States gunboat in the War Between the States, was driven on the island near the lighthouse and became a total wreck, but her crew was saved.

The schooner Vicola out of Lunenburg, N. S., which left North Sydney, N. S., several days ago in company with the Alcaia, has not been heard from. She carries a crew of seven. The Alcaia is safe at this port.

Wreckage of vessels laden with foodstuffs for northern settlements strewn the coast at Conception Bay. Five fishing vessels are known to have been smashed to pieces.

Charles Moore, a master of the Ingraham, brought in the first details of the storm today. His vessel, after losing the Jean and Mary, was blown across Hamilton Sound to the lighthouse at Penguin Island, where she became a total wreck. The gale struck the vessel during a blinding snow-storm, he said. Deckhouses went by the board, running lights were smashed and the towline was snapped. The captain said the master of the Jean and Mary tried to connect with the tug, but the latter was swept away to the island. No ship could live in the sea that was running, Captain Moore said. He added that it was the worst blow in his long experience as a sailor.

Ships for the northern outposts of the colony were carrying a winter's supply of foodstuffs to many families. A list of the schooners reported lost included the Dianthus, Cactus, Jean and Mary, Passport, W. S. Monroe, Drummer's Tax, A. H. Hardy, William Martin, Prospector, Natoma, Pansy, Theresa Stone, George, W. O. Galana, Agnes Downs and Olive Evans.

The schooner Nahada, on a voyage from Sydney to Little Bay Islands, was reported to have weathered the storm in Headman's Bay.

Watchers on the cliffs of Conception Bay saw the schooner believed to be the Passport driven on the rocks. Wreckage that floated ashore bore the name Passport. Through the driving mist they were able to discern the figures of the nine men, and the woman with the child, but before a life-line could be shot over the wreck, the schooner was smashed to pieces, and all on board were swallowed by the roaring sea.
