

RUSSIANS DENY AID OF GERMANS

Karl Radek Recalls the Days of the Bolshevik Revolution.

Riga, Latvia, Dec. 27.—Karl Radek, the Bolshevik writer and propagandist, has published an article in the Moscow Pravda's edition celebrating the fourth anniversary of the Lenin revolution in which Radek denies the widespread story that the Bolshevik revolution in Russia was financed by German gold.

Lenin from Switzerland through Germany to Russia in the Spring of 1917, with the permission of the German Government. This was the beginning of the revolution and of Russia's withdrawal from the war.

Radek asserts that Lenin and his party of 40 sent an emissary to the German minister in Switzerland asking passage for all emigrants who wanted to return to Russia and insisting that during their passage, the German Government should not attempt to enter into communication with them.

"On our side," Radek asserted, "we promised to do everything for lightening the position of German prisoners of war in Russia and also to expedite the return of German invalids from Russia to Germany."

"After a little time, the German Government agreed to our conditions. Of course, it was quite clear to us that the German Government intended to speculate on this episode, reckoning that after our arrival in Russia we would be interested in very little for we knew that if, in Russia, the revolution took a proletarian turn then its influence would tell far beyond the confines of Russia."

The returning emigrants were so hilarious that Lenin had to take over executive authority and bring about some order.

One attempt was made while the train was passing through Germany, says Radek, to sound out the party on the question of working for peace with Germany. This was made, he declares, by a German who said he wanted to greet the Russians in the name of the Central Commission of German Trade Unions but Radek believed he was acting in behalf of the German Government. The Bolsheviks, Radek says, refused to deal with him.

The Russian party then went to Stockholm, where, says Radek, "we received 300 Swedish kroner which was flaunting in all tales of French patriots as German gold funds supplied for the Russian revolution."

BEAUTY CHATS

KEEP THE ELBOWS PRETTY

In these days of short sleeves, the elbows are always needing some sort of special care. They are so much exposed and so much rubbed that dirt and dust is grimed into them and the amount of scrubbing necessary to keep them clean dries them out so that they become chapped and only pick up more grime than they did before.

The elbows must be treated with cold cream or with olive oil. This will keep the skin so soft and smooth that it is less likely to take up the same amount of dirt. If you are stout so the elbows are round and smooth you will never have very much trouble with them. But if you are tall—under-weight—the skin over the elbows will seem to be stretched and loose and to fall into all sorts of ugly lines and wrinkles.

So, if you are thin, you must expect a certain amount of trouble in keeping the elbows pretty. You can make them plump by rubbing them with warm cocoa butter every night. Or if you do not want to do this you can try the old-fashioned method of sitting with your elbows in a saucer of warm olive oil. In about ten minutes the skin will absorb a certain amount of this oil and what remains on the surface can be massaged into the arm or wiped off with a soft old cloth.

After such a thorough massage with oil or cream, the elbows should be rinsed in cold water or rubbed with a little piece of ice if you have any handy. This astringent treatment tends to draw up the loose skin. Then when you dress to go out you will find that you can rub a little powder into the elbows and that will be as soft and smooth and smooth looking as you could desire. An excellent plan is to rub a little cream into the elbows every time you rub any over the face.

Peggy—Using peroxide to bleach superfluous hair on the face will discourage the growth of these undesired hairs. The peroxide is very drying and in many cases has practically killed the roots of these hairs. If you do not favor electric needle treatments you can keep down these hairs by pulling out the most noticeable ones with a pair of tweezers.

Blue Eyes—Alligator pears are not particularly fattening. The most fattening fruits are bananas and grapes.

Makes a Family Supply of Cough Remedy

Really better than ready-made. Easily and quickly prepared.

If you combined the curative properties of every known "ready-made" cough remedy, you probably could not get as much real curative power as there is in this simple home-made cough syrup, which is easily prepared in a few minutes.

Get from any druggist 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with syrup, using either plain granulated sugar syrup, clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, as desired. The result is a full pint of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for three times the money. Tastes pleasant and never spoils.

This Pinex and Syrup preparation gets right at the cause of a cough and gives almost immediate relief. It loosens the phlegm, stops the nasty throat tickle and heals the sore, irritated membranes so gently and easily that it is really astonishing.

A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough and for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma, there is nothing better.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations to break up severe coughs.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2 1/2 ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Gas, Indigestion, Stomach Misery —"Diapepsin"

"Pape's Diapepsin" "really does" put bad stomachs in order—"really does" overcome indigestion dyspepsia, gas, heartburn and sourness in five minutes—that's what makes Pape's Diapepsin the largest selling stomach regulator in the world. If what you eat ferments into stubborn lumps, you belch gas and excrete sour, undigested food and acid; head is dizzy and aches, remember the moment "Pape's Diapepsin" comes in contact with the stomach all such distress vanishes. It's really astonishing—almost marvelous—how the joy is its harmlessness. A large six-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin is worth its weight in gold to men and women who can't get their stomachs regulated. It belongs in your home—should always be kept handy in case of a sick, sour, upset stomach during the day or at night. It's the most efficient antacid and stomach regulator in the world.

Starting Over

And now we start the world all over again, which is the way business has had of doing all these thousands of years since the first "merchandise" swapped beads and fies and things from the backs of camels along the valley of the Nile.

China, silverware, and such lines are very popular just after Christmas," said Mr. W. B. Shockley last week. He added that he is putting on a sale in his department Friday and Saturday of this week, and that the values will be very exceptional.

Getting Good

No doubt in the world about it—we are getting awful good in Charlotte when the merchants use their Sunday space in the papers to tell you to "go to church"—when men sing hymns at a mass meeting, and there isn't enough liquor in town to make more than two tumblers of nog.

Getting Better

Well, it's all over, and we hope that everybody is satisfied. As for us, we came through the busy period better than we deserved, and almost as well as we expected.

The Still Hunt

Recent events in Raleigh and Charlotte to show that the way to put a thing over is to keep still about it. In other words, why stir up your opposition by letting them in on your deals?

What They Got And Gave

By CLARA MEDLIN. Santa Claus worked overtime at Ivey's last Saturday. Holly and poinsetta-covered boxes, tissued and ribbioned, were piled in odd corners about the store, until their givers had time to distribute them and suppressed "ohs" and "ahs" could be heard all down the aisles as one curious feminine person after another, ruthlessly disregarding the "Please do not open until Christmas" tags, untied packages, invariably to find "just what they'd been wanting for the longest time ever."
