UNKINDEST OUT OF ALL

Revelation of Feeling Among the Pan-Americans at Richmond.

RICHMOND, Va., April 22.—The foreign members of the Pan-American Congress who last night refused to return to Washington, but remained here with the intention of continuing on their way South, this evening abandoned that idea. The reason for this action is said to be an editorial which a dispatch from Atlanta says appears in the Constitution today. The visitors tonight, by special invitation, attended the German at Belvidere Hall, and tomorrow they will go to Old Point, remaining a few days, and thence to Washington and New York.

An article in a local paper, describing the effect of the order from the State Department on the members of the party, says: "The disappointment was great. Some of them declared they had started south and would continue their trip. The Brazilian delegate, standing on the platform, declared in broken English that he would have his baggage removed from the special and continue his trip on the first train. 'I started south,' he said, 'and no human power can make me return to Washington. South I am going on the first train if I am a live man.'

The entire foreign element in the party were opposed to returning to Washington, and were not at all pleased with Mr. Blaine for recalling them. They were going to see the South, they declared, if they had to do so at their own expense.

The South American representatives were reasoned with, but to no avail. They ordered their baggage removed from the special train, and when the latter, at 10 o'clock, left for Washington it carried only the American delegates.

When the special train returned to Washington last night, and the State Department learned that the foreign element had not returned, Mr. Blaine sent Mr. Draper to Richmond with instructions to purchase tickets and take the party anywhere they desired to go. Mr. Draper reached here this evening, but the Pan-Americans say they cannot go South in view of the utterances of the Constitution, which, among other things, says that "the crowd from Washington on the Southern Pan-American tour is made up merely of the private clerks and valets of the delegates, and that their failure to come saves the people here some embarrassment." The same journal censures Secretary Blaine for having left the South out of the original programme when the delegates were really in the party.

WHY THEY ARE CHEERFUL.

A Drift of Events Unparalleled in Recent Years.

Springfield Republican: The disposition of the Democratic press to make much of the string of Democratic municipal victories this spring is not without some basis in fact, although it should be remembered that the Democracy is apt to be strong politically in the centre of population. A review of the recent elections indicates a local drift quite unparalleled in recent years. The slide began in the first week of March, when 11 out of 13 cities in New York chose Democratic mayors. At the same time five out of seven cities in Iowa did likewise, while Saginaw in Michigan heralded an almost unexpected success in the Michigan elections last week, when Grand Rapids, for instance, increased the Democratic plurality of 12 one year ago to one of 200. The more recent Democratic successes the past week are a familiar story. It is only necessary to point out that Democrats succeeded Republicans in most of the New York cities, Milwaukee, Helena, Mont.; Kansas City, Mo.; Bismarck, N. D.; in many of the Indiana townships and among the rest, in Cleveland and Dayton, Ohio. In places where the local Democracy already held control, Democratic pluralities were increased. The result in Indianapolis, where a Republican majority of 1,400 two years ago was changed to one of 2,800 for the Democrats, is ascribed by the Indianapolis Journal to the poorest organization the Republicans have had in years; while the Democrats are not slow to make dissatisfaction with President Harrison one of the causes as well. The Rhode Island election also tends to cheer the Democratic heart.

Bullvan's Terms Accepted.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 22.—The California Athletic Club tonight voted to make the Sullivan-Jackson purse $20,000. The fight is not expected to take place before September.

Miss Winnie Davis.

Raleigh Chronicle: It now transpires beyond the shadow of a doubt that the young man whom Miss Winnie Davis is to wed is not a son of a howling abolitionist and South hater, as has been alleged.

The young man is himself a States rights Democrat of the first water, and his father and grandfather were of the same political faith. He is a grand son of Judge Wilkinson, the founder of Syracuse, N. Y., and a man universally beloved and honored.

The Wilkinsons are an old aristocratic family which, from one generation to another, have stood at the top of the social ladder of Syracuse. Miss Winnie's prospective husband is a highly educated gentleman, having graduated among the first of his class at Harvard University. He is a lawyer by profession, and is regarded as one of the most promising and brainy young men of New York State.

The Committee Adjourns.

Raleigh Chronicle: The State railroad corporation investigating committee, which has been in session here for several days past, adjourned yesterday morning, till June 17th. They spent all part of the morning closing up all business for the session just ended, and in outlining work to be done in at the next meeting.

The committee elected Mr. C. M. Busbee as assistant investigating attorney and counsel to the Attorney General.

Sam Jones Tells Why he is a Prohibitionist.

"I want to say to you drinking brethren: If you get drunk, you cannot say that you were overtaken in the fault. No jug or demijohn has got legs, but if you overtake it and pour the contents down your throat, you overtake the fault and swallow it. I am talking along on general principles this morning, and that is the reason I am a Prohibitionist. I will tell you that I am no more to blame for being a Prohibitionist than I am for being a Christian, for I cannot be one without being the other, to save my life. I am talking to you about what I can be, and not what you can be. These old drunkards are all temperance men, because they hate to see a man get drunk. I want to show you the difference between temperance men and Prohibitionists.

The temperance men will gather together on the banks of the river of dissipation, and when a poor old drunkard comes floating along, they will take him in and nurse him back into sobriety. But the first thing you know he will drift back to his old habits. The Prohibitionists go further than that—they go up the river about ten miles, where the stills are located, and shake their fists in the distiller's face and say, 'You cannot push any more of our boys into degradation. As soon as the Prohibitionists get in their work the temperance folks will be out of a job. As soon as we stop them from pushing our young men down, there will be no more drunkards to fall into the river of dissipation.' That will be when we can stand up at the fountain and proclaim that no boy in America can be debauched again. That is what we want. As an unselfish Christian man I say to you that I must be a Prohibitionist. I must be either the one or the other. There is not a bar room, or a lewd house, or a gambling hell, or a still house, or an anti-prohibition vote in Tennessee that is not bottomed on selfishness, and it is utterly impossible to bring selfishness in harmony with Christianity. The man who stills whisky, the man who rents houses to have whisky sold in, the man who sells it, and the man who votes with a party that licenses it, God will certainly put you all in hell together.

Personal Appearance of Rev. Sam Jones.

Jones is a tall, slender, wiry, dark-complexioned man about forty years old. His hair and eyes are very black. He has a splendid voice and most perfect self control. While every word he utters can be distinctly heard by his vast audiences, and he does not appear to speak loudly, he has just enough of the Georgia drawl in his voice to make it natural and spicy. He is irresistibly interesting and people of all classes sit for hours listening intently to everything he says. At times he is eloquent and pathetic.

BURNED TO DEATH.

The Prophecy of a Husband Quickly Fulfilled.

PALMO, N. C., April 15.—Yesterday at 12 o'clock, while fighting a fire near the farm fence, Patsy Morris, wife of Samuel Morris, caught fire. She screamed for help and started to run into the creek, but fell prostrate, and before assistance could reach her all the clothing was burned from her except a waistband. She was tenderly carried to her house, but died during the night. That morning her husband had told her that they would not live together much longer.

The recent persecution of the Jews in Vienna became so dangerous to all shopkeepers that the city recently appeared covered with such signs as "I am a Christian Tradesman," "Christian Bandy Shop," "Christian Cheese-monger," "Christian Old Clothes Shop."

GENERAL NEWS.

Work of Pencil Shears, and Pastepot—Among Our Exchanges.

The Pan-American Congress adjourned sine die last Saturday.

A company capitalized at $1,000,000 has been organized to work the mines of Montgomery county.

Rev. Chas. F. Dooms of New York preached in Wilmington Friday night the 19th inst. He is on his way South.

A dispatch from New Orleans dated April 18th says: One hundred and thirty feet of the levee at Nita Crevasse, St James Parish, were carried away yesterday. The Mississippi valley tracks, several miles away, were five inches under water, and the railroad people have set to work to build a new incline five miles south of Crevasse.

Congressman are everywhere anxiously asking their farmer constituents 'what they want.' And these seekers after re-election are getting right down on their knees and swearing to 'do anything for the dear people'—if they can only find out what the dear people 'want.' In our humble opinion a Congressman who has not been able to find out what his constituents need by this time had better stay at home and try his hand at pounding sand into a rat-hole.—Chicago Sentinel.

John Bull Scoops the Cotton.

From the Atlanta Constitution.

The Courier-Journal refers to a queer situation in the cotton market that has already been foreshadowed in the Constitution's commercial articles—namely, that the American cotton manufacturers have been caught napping by the British buyers and will now have to pay dearly for their snooze.

The American cotton manufacturers have waited too long before laying in their supplies, yet their course has all the justification it can give it. The cotton crop of last year was the largest that has ever been raised, and American manufacturers naturally supposed that the market would be able to procure their supplies at a season when money was easy and the price of cotton lower.

The season has not yet arrived, and their is now no likelihood that it will. Great Britain has been buying heavily of American cotton, and, as a result, prices have been gradually advancing. The stock in Liverpool amounts to 1,075,000 bales, 316,000 more than for the same period last year.

The figures show that there is not enough cotton in this country to supply demands of the American mills, and the probability is that they will have to buy their supplies in Great Britain and have them shipped back here.

It is a cold day when John Bull outwits Jonathan, but it will be remembered that we have been having some peculiar weather lately.

Judge Gilmer Will Accept.

From the Greenboro Patriot.

Judge Jno. A. Gilmer in response to a question asked him by a reporter of the Patriot yesterday said: "If the Democratic convention should nominate me as the candidate of the Democratic party for Congress in this District I should esteem it a duty that I owed my party, as well as a pleasure, to accept and do everything that in me lies that is honorable to carry the District and redeem it to Democracy."

I cannot consent to scheme and plan and plot to get the nomination, for I do not consider that right, and do not know how that sort of work is done, and I would remain forever in private life before I would consent to such methods of securing political honors. As I have remarked, should my people think I could carry the District, and should they nominate me I would deem it a duty and a pleasure to accept."

Judge Gilmer's friends are many and propose to do everything to secure his nomination. He can carry the District by a larger majority than any other man in it, with the exception, perhaps, of ex-Gov. Scales who declines to be a candidate.

Judge Gilmer is known throughout the State as an able lawyer and an honorable, upright, christian gentleman in whose hands the interests of all his people would be safe.

Rebate on Jute Bagging.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—Assistant Secretary Tiebner has written the collector at Baltimore, Md., that on the exportation of bagging manufactured wholly from imported jute, and exported as covering of cotton in bales, a drawback will be allowed equal to the duty paid on the imported jute used in the manufacture of bagging, less ten per cent., provided that the average allowance under any entry shall not exceed 11½ pounds of jute per bale.
