A FAIR EXCHANGE.

You cannot afford to be mistaken in a shoe. It is all right, you can wear it, if it isn't your own. If its unfit to wear you can't make an ornament of it; your only alternative is to throw it away. Don't make a mistake in buying. Get a good honest equivalent for your money in good, honest shoe leather and you will have nothing to complain about. You will like our $3 shoe. For a good many reasons it will please you. It fits well, wears well, looks well, and gives you what you pay for—comfort and satisfaction.

A. E. RANKIN & BRO.,

THE NEW GUNNAN MILLS.

It Contains Over a Million Bushels and Three Miles of Fluting—Manufacturing Pottery About a Big Concern.

The News gives a cut of Charlotte's newest and most extensive enterprise, the Birmingham Mills, reduced by Mr. Chas. C. Hovey, from a photograph by Van Ness. The cut gives a fairly good idea of the exterior appearance of this immense building. The factory is located in the northeastern section of the city, near the Carolina Central passenger depot, and between the tracks of the Richmond & Danville and Carolina Central companies. In the construction of the building, over one million of brick were used. The steam to run the machinery is generated in a 200 horse power boiler. There are 1000 feet of shafting and 10,000 feet of belting, three miles of piping, 24 looms, 2 winding machines, and 10 weaving machines. The floor surface is 2,000 feet. There are 1000 panes of glass in the factory. The main chimney is 133 feet high.

The mills will employ 150 hands and its daily output in manufactured goods, will be 2,175 yards of ginghams.

The Raleigh Fair.

The rainbow fair for the benefit of the Thompson Orphanage promises to be a great success. A variety of articles will be sold at the different tables, viz. candy, fruit, apertures, tea, cream, fancy work, bags of all kinds, tissue paper articles, and a supper of oysters, chicken salad, coffee or chocolate and other nice things. Any persons still wishing to contribute may favor any table he may fancy. Mrs. Liddell, president of the "Thompson Orphanage Guild," will receive at the Central Hotel any assistance with thanks. In connection with the fair there will be a doll show. Dolls of wealth, fame, beauty and fashion are daily arriving to be present at the show. Don't let the children forget that the doll show will be opened on Friday afternoon for the children who cannot come out to see it at night. The children at the Thompson Orphanage are all busy getting their children ready to send as one family, each owner hoping that his doll may win the prize which is to be awarded as before said to the prettiest, the ugliest, the oddest, the best preserved, the worst preserved, and the best dressed doll at the show.

Charlotte Talent at Concord.

A very pleasant and successful tableaux and concert was given last night in Concord. Charlotte talent was represented in the persons of Mr. Dan Summey and Miss Jenkins. A Concord correspondent writes Ten News: "Mr. Summey is an old favorite of Concord audiences and everybody enjoys hearing him sing. All who braved the weather last night felt richly repaid in hearing the delightful renditions of both Miss Jenkins and Mr. Summey. The tableaux were unusually good and entertaining and the concert quite a success in every particular.

THE CONVENTION.

With the backing of St. Louis, the Third Party.

Washington, Feb. 20. The interest of all the reform organizations of the country is centered in the national conference to be held in St. Louis Monday next, and upon the outcome of this conference rests the fate of the national third party movement. It is conceded by the representative of all the industrial organizations, the Farmers Alliance, Citizens Alliance, Farmers' Mutual Benefit Association, Colored Farmers Alliance and Co-operative Loan Knights, Farmers and the patrons of Husbandry, that the predominant issue at the coming conference will be the third party movement. Principles, measures and declarations of war of course will be discussed by the past or more delegates in attendance, but the great question at issue will be, shall all the various farmer, labor and industrial organizations of the country unite in a national independent movement, promulgate a common declaration of principles, nominate candidates for the presidency and vice presidency and contest with the two old parties for supremacy in the nation?

The people's party representatives in Congress generally believe that this question will be answered in the affirmative by the St. Louis conference. Representative Summey of Kansas, goes to St. Louis with a champion of the third party movement and although the right of the regular people's party in the House may not all be in attendance at St. Louis, it is understood they share his views as to the necessity of a national party. The first great dispute, however, is likely to arise over the question of the power of the St. Louis conference to declare a national political party.

The opponents of the independent party movement, including Mr. Livingston, will base their opposition on the claim that the conference was not granted specific authority by the Omaha convention to organize a national political party. Although it is not denied that the Omaha convention adopted a committee report containing language looking to the formation of a third party, it is contended that this language was not a resolution or even an essential portion of the report, but merely one of its incidental phrases designed to quiet the demands of the third party people.

Representative Watson of Georgia, the nominee of the nine people's party Congressmen in the House for Speaker, and consequently the recognized leader of his party in Congress, will not attend the St. Louis conference, but his views will be important, as indicating the line of action likely to be pursued, shall not myself go to St. Louis," said he today, "but will remain here and attend to my congressional duties. I am, however, heartily in favor of independent political action, support of the Omaha platform. I believe that is the only way to get them enacted into law. To have any success we must get southern reformers who are democrats to join in action with the western and north-western reformers who are republicans. We cannot go to their party; they cannot come to ours. The only practical scheme to unite them is to go into a new organization, the basis of which shall be the unity of our demands. In other words we propose to unite by getting together. Mr. Livingston's plan is a proposition that we should solely staying apart. I have no doubt that the St. Louis meeting will either by passing a resolution expressing the views of the members, or by the action of the adjournment of the convention into a new meeting, decide in favor of the independent party action by supporting the platform which they will adopt upon."

Presbyterian Programme To-Morrow.

Rev. K. C. Reed will preside as moderator at the congregational meeting of the First Presbyterian church to-morrow morning, Feb. 21. Dr. McPherson will give the address at the Second Presbyterian church, at 1021 1/2 Dr. McPherson will give the address at the First and Second Presbyterian churches on Monday evening, Feb. 21. The first time in over 20 years, the congregations of the First church will meet to-morrow morning calling a pastor.

The Auditorium.

Just one year ago this month, work on Charlotte's big auditorium was commenced. Since this building was finished, the wonder has been that Charlotte was able to do without it for so long a time. It was dedicated by the great music festival following that were the life meetings, the armory bazaar, the Sam Jones meetings and the political meetings. It proved more than equal to every occasion. It is just the thing for the State convention, no doubt about that.

A Bad Young Man.

A young white man named J. M. Patterson was arraigned before Esquire D. G. Maxwell, this morning, on charge of stealing brandy, pocket watches and cigars from Wm. H. Horah. During the progress of this trial, another charge was made against Patterson that he had obtained board from Mrs. Camp, a widow lady, under false pretenses. He was placed under a bond of $50 in each case for his appearance for trial before Judge Meares at the next term of the Criminal court, and failing to give bond he was sent to jail.
