HILL IN BOLIVIA

The Senator on His Southern Trip is Warmly Welcomed in Roanoke - A Ten Minute Speech.

Roanoke, Va., March 14.—The train bearing Senator Hill and party enroute to the South was met twenty-five miles distant from Roanoke, Va., by a delegation from that enterprising city who boarded the train early this morning to greet the distinguished New Yorker and invite him to address their citizens during the ten minutes stop at the station. The delegation consisted of Hon. Water P. Huff, chairman of the Democratic executive committee, R. A. Bricker, president of the city council, H. K. Trout, president of the First National Bank, W. P. Dupuy, president of the Exchange, and H. J. Brown, editor of the Roanoke Daily Times. Charles M. Fetter, passenger agent of the Norfolk and Western Railroad, was chosen to introduce the delegation to the Senator, and the latter finally yielded to their pressing invitation to make a few remarks when the city of Roanoke was reached. Several thousand people greeted the arrival of Senator Hill, and the Roanoke Machine Works Band played airs of welcome.

Senator Hill's ten minutes speech was devoted largely to the presentation of the Democratic principles and a review of the good work of the Democratic party in the State of New York. He was warmly cheered at frequent intervals.

Local Hipples.—Rev. R. G. Miller, of Sardis, is in the city to-day.

Mr. Beverly J. Hoffman, after several weeks visit to friends and relatives in Charlotte, will return to New York this evening.

Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Dewitt, of New York, who have been at the Central for several days past, left yesterday for their home.

Mr. J. E. Ramaker, of Wesson's, Miss., was at the Central today on the return from Moorsville, where he has been visiting his brother.

Mr. Dossy Battle, the well known journalist and a graduate of the Wesley Institute, at Greensboro, arrived in the city today, and is at the Central.

The farmers of this section today began planting corn, and they are putting in larger acreages than they have done in many years. Five cent cotton has done the work for them.

The report of the New Orleans Cotton Exchange of the cotton movement of the United States from September 1st to March 14th inclusive, shows a total in sight this year of 808,822 bales, against 728,474 bales for the same period last year.

Rev. Mr. Smith, of Columbia, who preached at the Second Presbyterian church to a large congregation yesterday morning, was called home in the afternoon to see a very sick member of his congregation.

Gray Toole's Suit for Divorce.—For several years past, Gray J. Toole, of Charlotte, has been trying to get foot loose from his spouse, and the prospect for his desires being accomplished is now a little brighter than it has yet been. His suit for divorce, upon the only ground upon which that sort of suit can be brought in this State, was heard in the Superior court Saturday, and about two o'clock Saturday night the jury agreed upon a verdict in Gray's favor. His divorce is not yet assured, though, as an appeal will very probably be taken.

The first suit Gray instituted for a divorce several years ago, resulted in a non-suit on account of a lack of sufficient evidence. The suit was brought up at the following term of the court, and Gray was defeated, a verdict being returned against him. An appeal was taken to the Supreme court and a new trial was granted upon the ground that the judge had excluded evidence that was admissible. The case came up for the third time in the Superior court Saturday, with the result stated. The colored population of Charlotte seems to manifest considerable interest in the progress of this case.

The Miners Strike.—LONDON, March 14.—Flintshire, in Wales appears to be the only place where the orders of the Miners' Federation to quit work has not been obeyed by members of that association. The latest estimates of the number of miners who are now idle, place the figure at 350,000, owing to the closing down of other industries because of the strike fully 200,000 men in other employments have been thrown out of work.

INTERESTING SERVICES.

The Methodists of Tryon Street Church Held Their First Service in Their New Church Yesterday.

The first services were conducted in the new Tryon Street Methodist Church yesterday, by the pastor, Rev. W. H. Cressy, D. D.

Large crowds attended both services. The night congregation being the largest that has assembled in this church since Mr. Pearson conducted his union meetings there several years ago.

The Second Presbyterian congregation held its night service in order that they might join with Dr. Cressy's congregation in their special service. There was also a service at the First Presbyterian church.

Dr. Cressy took for his text for this morning's discourse the last verse of the first verse of the eighth Psalm: "Thou that dwellest between the cherubims, shine forth!" Beginning with the first verse of the psalm, he went on down through the ages showing how God had been approached by man.

When the ark of the covenant was built, God promised that he would make that hallowed spot between the cherubims his dwelling place.

He said he wanted to show that God was shining forth. He started with the stars, the sun, the moon and all nature, he shined in and used to point men heavenward. He shined in the intellectual world. The greatest intellects that have blessed this world have acknowledged him.

He shined in the moral world and all that is good in the world is a result of his shining forth in it. Lastly he showed that God was shining in the shining of the spirit in his heart saw his condition and was to see. Christ, the Christian and his presence in his heart through life to encourage him and in death to sustain him.

Dr. Cressy took for his text for his night sermon from Exodus 25:1, and 26:1-17. "And thou shalt make an altar to burn incense upon, and thou shalt put it before the ark that is by the ark of the testimony, when I will meet with thee."

The night sermon was really a continuation of the morning discourse. The speaker showed that as God shined forth in the world, so the altar of the ark of the covenant in the Holy place. This altar of incense being symbolical of prayer.

The two altars in the old temple on which sacrifices were made, and by which the priest must go in order to reach the other, the altar of incense.

So man today must go by Christy before he can offer sweet incense upon the altar of prayer.

A great number of Bible students were led, beginning with the Lord of olden times, to meet him at the altar of prayer, and to realize how man had come to God in prayer and been heard by him. The last St. John had seen the altar in the new Jerusalem from which the veil was removed that had cut off the presence of the Lord from view in the old temple, and now the blood washed through assembled there—was him face to face.

Both sermons were able, full and highly appropriate to the occasion.

A Bazaar in Jerusalem.—A Charlotte lady has received a letter from Rev. Ben Onel, the missionary in Jerusalem, stating that they are arranging to give a church bazaar there to raise funds in aid of the mission. The last aid they received from this country was a check sent by the late Dr. A. W. Miller. The check got the reader Dr. Miller's death. Miss Sallie Dixon, of Winston is preparing a box to send to Mr. Onel's bazaar, and she has been suggested that the ladies of the Presbyterian churches in Charlotte do likewise, making up a box of fancy articles and sending it to Jerusalem.

A Plot to Assassinate the Sultan.—LONDON, March 14.—A Constantinople dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph company says: Great excitement caused there by what the police call a discovery of a plot to assassinate the Sultan. Two men have been arrested.

Without still going lower and lower. The New York market today was off twenty points from the low market of Saturday, and by 10 o'clock it was considered a mighty good price for even the best grade of stock. A falling under the best grade may be considered doing well when things are less than five cents.

Mr. W. F. Christian, formerly associate editor of the Charlotte Democrat, but who has since been connected with several prominent Northern publications is in the city with his two little children, the grand children of Stone-wall Jackson. Mr. Christian is now connected with the North American Review and is enroute to Texas to prepare a series of Texas letters for the Review.

A breakfast table.—Yesterday was the first pretty sunny day we have had in many weeks. It was a bright, sunny, springlike day and the churches where services were held had large congregations. During the afternoon the electric cars carried crowds to the park. The walkways around the lake and through the building woods were thronged with people. The park presented an exceedingly attractive appearance during the sunny summer months and if it does not prove a blessing to the town, then the town will be a blessing to the park.

Mr. Wilson gains his point.—In the Superior court today, Mr. W. M. Wilson, of the Wilson Fire Co., gained a suit against the Phoenix Fire Insurance Co. for $100. Mr. Wilson had taken out a policy for that amount in that company on all of surgical instruments sometime before the fire that destroyed the store, and had paid the premium. It was a regular insurance transaction, but after some haggling the company refused to pay the loss. Mr. Wilson instituted suit and was promptly awarded a verdict for the full amount of the policy.

An Old Landmark Going by the Board.—Workmen will this week begin tearing out the front of that well known business stand, "Jas. Harty's China Palace." A new and modern front will take its place. Mr. Harty has carried on a china business there ever since the war. When he bought the building during the latter days of the war, it was used as a hospital and many a Confederate soldier had a leg or arm amputated under its roof. The patients were laid out on the counters, and at the time Mr. Harty took possession, the counters were stained with blood. They were massively constructed affairs and have been in use by Mr. Harty from that day to this.

The Hope and the Bicycle Rider.—It was a very pretty sight that a bicycle rider all shined up in Trade street in his white coat, the glittering spokes and lights and the gleaming of the machine reflecting the rays of the bright spring sunshine. He was peddling a crate of 15 Indian ponies when he turned into Church street. Then something unexpected occurred. The rider was suddenly lifted from his machine and thrown backward and about ten feet in the air, while the rickety machine went screeching along like a run down top to the curb. The rider had simply run against the row that is stretched across the street there and which he had failed to notice.

Burning of the Charleston Military Academy.—CHARLESTON, S. C., March 14.—About ten o'clock this morning, the South Carolina Military Academy in this city caught fire from a defective fuse in the officers' quarters. The fire spread with great rapidity and the roof and rooms of the main building was badly burned. The fire at 12 o'clock was under control. Loss probably fully covered by insurance.

A fire at Bloomfield, Pa., Friday night, had burnt the entire south side of the public square, including the opera house and many fine store buildings. The loss will probably reach $200,000.
