DAINTY SHOES FOR DAINTY FEET.

It ill pay you handsomely to buy a pair of our fine new shoes. Just as sure as you wear them long enough to wear them out, and you'll have to wear them long to do it, you'll come back for another pair. If you want to know what comfort in foot wear really means, these are the shoes for you. They'll fit as snugly as an easy fitting glove and there are plenty of gloves not half so becoming. As to the price, if they are not worth what we ask and a little more, no shoes have ever been worth what you paid for them. You certainly would not blame us if we asked a larger figure. A large stock of Hats and Umbrellas, Trunks, Valises and Handbags at lowest prices.

Local Weather Report.

The following is a synopsis of the weather prevailing at 8 a. m. today. The low pressure has continued its northeasterly progress, and this morning is located around the the Upper Lake region. Precipitation has continued to occur along its track, and very generally to the east of the Mississippi river, and at a few points to the west of it. The center of the high pressure remains nearly stationary out west, but its influence are beginning be felt east of the Mississippi river, which will result in clearing and warmer weather over this section during the day. Over this immediate section the temperatures have risen during the past 24 hours; elsewhere, they have remained stationary.

Beginning of the Suit of Mr Davidson Against the Virgin Mills in Which Section 660 is Involved

Esquire D G Maxwell today rendered his decision in the case of Mr E Constantine Davidson against the Virgin Cotton Mills of Huntersville. He dismissed the case at the cost of the plaintiff and an appeal was taken. This case gives every promise of becoming a lamb's one. Mr David[illegible] and his partner W H Allen supplied an amount of lumber for the villages of the Virgin Mills and they claim an unpaid balance of $[illegible]. Col H C Jones appeared for Mr Davidson and Mr Heriot Clarkson for Mr Derr.

Some interesting points of law are involved. Mr Davidson claims that Mr A J Derr gave him a verbal order for [illegible] saw lumber for 2 houses for which one feet of lumber would be required. He declared at $15 per feet to Derr at 90 cents per hundred. Derr which he signed a paid in full receipt for the [illegible]. He claims that he delivered the balance of 11 [illegible] but that Derr refused to accept them.

Derr claims that he did not give Mr Davidson an order for the lumber but only wanted a house built and that the parties would [illegible]. He further claims that in the settlement on September [illegible] which was required to sign was passed to Mr Davidson 150 feet more than he had delivered. Nothing was paid for this and Derr refused to pay for it. Derr after the settlement of the account was informed by Davidson that he [illegible] and Derr refused to pay for it. Derr claims that he did not receive the cash. Derr further alleges that the contract was not to be reduced to writing as to give the provisions of the laws of the State but it was not as Davidson alleges and that it had been paid in full according to receipt. He pleads general denial, of issue, accord and satisfaction. In replication, the plaintiff alleges that the contract was executed in part and need not have been in writing and avers further that the alleged accord and satisfaction was without consideration. The receipt and was obtained by fraud and undue [illegible].

A Court of Inquisition.

Since the return of the delegates to the late Republican convention at Raleigh it has been intimated almost daily that full details of its proceedings [illegible] be given but they did not. At a late hour last night, a number of inquisitive men met in the office of Col A B Stewart to get the story of the convention. Col Stewart [illegible] and began to tell the story. Then [illegible] Stewart [illegible] and began to tell the story. Then [illegible] Stewart [illegible] and began to tell the story. Then [illegible]
