CHARLOTTE, N. C., MONDAY EVENING, MAY 2, 1892

NUMBER 1139

What on the Moon Away There've got a bad thing to handle.

On teams are almost as thick in Mecklenburg County as they are in some of the most populous towns down there you never hear of them running off because the road is so deep, but along the well macadamized roads of Mecklenburg and the paved streets of Charlotte, they not infrequently make things rattle. A farmer and his wife came into town this morning in a wagon drawn by an ox that had the reputation of being a family beast, but as soon as they got to Independence Square they heard the whiz of an approaching electric car and saw a flash or two of blue light, and he lit out down the grade from the Central Hotel to the Carolina Central depot. The draymen and truckers down the street saw him coming and gave him a wide berth. The farmer held on to the rope and his wife held on to his arm and away they went. A freight train pulled up and stopped on the cross tie just ahead of the ox and the beast had sense enough not to try to go through it. After the ox stopped and the farmer had got things adjusted again, he said he was mighty glad that train pulled up in front. "For," he explained, "maybe you don't know it, but when a bull starts to run away with you, you've got to do to clip your teeth shut and hold tight until he stops. He was going straight away from home, and if that train hadn't stopped him, maybe me and my wife wouldn't have got back to life to-morrow."

More About the Ox.

Mr. Joseph Harrah will make an appeal on the part of the people to the Board of Aldermen at their regular monthly meeting this afternoon for the erection of a temporary arch for the election of a permanent arch for the Young Men's Christian Association. She brought it up at the Association because it is a friend and helper in its meetings, the spirituality of its members had been fostered and developed, and it now has become accustomed to the sound of their voices, and when before-hand it is to be present with testimony in the church, it is with much unfeigned interest that the church has been known and popular from rough timber buildings built supporting the church work. It has united Christians and broadened their views. If you are interested in only one denomination or church close your pocket books, but if you are interested in the great moral and spiritual kingdom of Jesus Christ contribute liberally to this work.

Rev. Dr. Creasy said it was always an honor and pleasure for him to speak in behalf of young men, because they are the bone and sinew of the nation's life, that he believed in the Young Men's Christian Association, because it was of young men, because in association is strength, as the old fable teaches, one faggot is easily broken, but the bunch is resolute, the attempt to break the Association is bound together with the ties formed by the word "Christian". He uses it as a symbol, the book of books. He did not believe the people of Charlotte or of Mecklenburg county, the birthplace of American Independence, would suppose for a moment by permitting the Association to be crippled for want of sufficient dollars when she will get $10,000 on the celebration of May 20th. He said that if Charlotte is like other places he had lived, the young men have social clubs, and if they are as much to the Association as they do to clubs the Association would not want for money.

Prof. G. B. Hanna read the report of the committee of citizens who had investigated the financial workings of the Association and found them satisfactory.

Dogs That Travel.

The boys about town remember Baxter Myrick's old dog, Dick, who used to go to the depot occasionally board the trains, and make visits to Columbia, Atlanta and other places, always coming back safely. Dick sometime since went to join John McWhorter's dog, but now Charlotte has another traveling canine. He belongs to Mr. M. P. Pegram. This morning he went out on the north-bound train, got off at Greensboro, boarded the return train to Charlotte and got back here for dinner. He made the trip all alone and the train men were so interested in his safety that even though he didn't have a ticket he was not bouned.

An interesting meeting of the trustees of Charlotte township was held to-day. Mr. D. P. Hutchinson was re-elected chairman and Mr. W. W. Pfifer secretary. The reports of the supervisors were received.
