The Peripatetic

After all, society has its means of defence against the chronic distur ters of the social peace. And this community knows how to gend a body and Coventry well enough. The chilliness of studied silence will after a while freeze the very fire of the

The report is hereby denied that a norty of Charlotte citizens, who went shing together off the Wrightsville coast the other day, had any conersation at all about the next Mayor of Charlotte. The facts are that the andflies at first precluded the formme of any effective conspiracy and the topic of sea-sickness was uppermost in the minds of the party, once the breeze freshened and they were the breeze freshened and they were able to get "outside." One of the lights Charlotte bar began simultaneously to wish that he had not moked two cigars and that he had eaten just a little breakfast. Then one the leading manufacturers and exparters of the city of Charlotte lost ad nterest in the fish and stretched appine upon a bench. He was followed by one of the best known merchants Co. says: There is really very little of the Queen City who left his line to add to what was said on the cotton suddenly with a fish on the end of it, having had his sympathy excited for and admiration to the lawyer's recounting of his tried superiority to sea-sickness, was the only one who kept after the fish. The party caught over seventy-five fish, how much over it is not known at this writing, and It has been forgotten just how large

Speaking of preachers, the last time the Peripatetic was in Asheville h heard a story on a once prominent di vine of that city. In fact, parts of hi anatomy were very prominent. H soon established a reputation for his opposition to the deadly cigarette There was nothing to be said too bad about the cigarette fiend and the deviwho sold the fiend the cigarettes. I came to pass that Cato's "Carthage Delenda Est" was a tame repetition as compared with the endless iteration as to the curse of the cigarette. But i happened that the preacher's church court met in Asheville and a misguided young zealot proposed a resolution condemning the manufacture and sale of cigarettes, whereupon the boss of the religious convention pulled a string and the prominent preacher was the puppet at the other end of it. He arose and moved-he of all others -that the resolution be laid upon the table. And all Asheville wondered. From which it appears that a man's principle is sometimes in proportion to his interest.

And that reminds the Peripatetic of another preacher whose degeneracy from independence to toadyism has been a sad spectacle for the observant. When we first met him he was rather noted for his mapliness and the strength with which he would express his sentiments. But the trial of poverty and the temptation of making a living through expedients overcame him. He has become the apologist, even for the saloon, and the defender of abuses he once would have condemned. Such a degeneracy from manhood is pitiable. The people who understand his case pity him too much to give him the scourging he deserves It is bad enough to be of the earth, earthy. It is worse to be of the toad,

Captain Bason, of Charlotte has long been famed among his friends for his sturdy denial of the fact that a baseball could be made to curve. He has taken a seat directly behind the home base and derided the spectators who talked about in-curves and out-curves and down-curves. He always saw straight when the ball was sent from the pitcher's hand and all balls looked alike to him. But the Captain has been converted, and Capt Jesse Oldham was the man who persuaded him. The captain told the story this way: "I told him that if he would set three stakes in a straight line, and make the ball go to the right of the first stake, to the left of the second and to the right of the third, that would be an ocular demonstration. And you know, he did it. At first I accused him of fudging and I made him stand where his arm couldn't reach around the first post. And he did it then. I wouldn't let on about it and I keep on guying them, but he did curve that ball." Captain Bason is a last ditch-fighter and he still has the alternative of denying this interview, following some august examples.

Do not be discouraged if other remedies have failed. RHEUMACIDE has made its reputation by curing alleged incurable cases. Does not injure the organs of digestion. Gentlemen—Some six years ago I began to have sciatica, and also a chronic case of muscular rheumatism. At times I could not work at all (my business being baggage master on Southern R. R.). For days and weeks at a time I could not work. My suffering was intense. Physicians treated me, without permanent relief, however. Tried a number of advertised remedies without permanent benefit. Finally I tried "RHEUMACIDE." It did the work, and I have had excellent health for three years. I can cheerfully say that all rheumatics should use "RHEUMACIDE," for it is by far the best remedy.
