THE RISE AND FALL IN PRICES TODAY

WHAT THE BULLS AND BEARS DI IN NEW YORK, LIVERPOOL, CHI CAGO AND OTHER TRADING CENTERS-THE QUOTATIONS.

(Private wire to Howell & Dodsworth

Brokers.) New York, July 15 .- C. W. Lee & Co. say: The weeks cotton market has proved a surprise to a great many professionals. There has been settled conviction on the part of a majority of those operating in the market, that as long as crop news continued good nothing but sagging prices was in sight but for four days this week the market has gradually hardened, gaining a few points, each day. This advance has taken place in the fact of strenuous opposition, on the part bear element, and with very little assistance on the part general public. There has been change for the worse in the nature of advices from the cotton belt, and the rise is generally attributed to the technical portion of the cotton situation rather than to any change in crop news. The simple fact is that there has been too much company on the bear side. Everyone has been short of cotton and no one dares to buy, and as a result there has been o speculative long interests and one of the most extensive short intents that market has seen in some years. Now when a few shorts attempted to convert paper into real profits the process proved disturbing. Sell as they would bears could not supply cotton enough to prevent a reaction. Day after day the traders would ask what it all meant. A careful review of all the factors failed to furnish the real excuse for the rise, and the moropposition there appeared to be the stronger the undertone of the market became. As far as the week is con cerned, these who played the long sid obtained the money. There is still as extensive short interest that may o may not be induced or frightened to cover. This depends much on nature of weather next week. Should anythin unfavorable turn up it will be quit impossible to prevent a further rise. moment there are evidences of so extensive a short interest and resulting Turkeys .... 13@18 nervousness on every little advance Onions ...... 75 80 be different. It will be some weeks before new cotton is available and until this time arrives it looks as though buyers on any decline, would be able to find a market to sell on at a profit.
