WHAT IS BROMONIA?

Read the following carefully: If you have consumption or some of the contagious forms of blood poisoning we cannot cure you. We don't pretend to cure you. You need the individual treatment of some skilled specialist; but if you are run down in general health, if you have dyspepsia, are subject to fainting spells, a victim to insomnia, biliousness, kidney or liver trouble, catch cold easily, if your system is in that condition that you may become an easy prey to the disease germs of pneumonia, la grippe and the various epidemics, if you are bothered with constant headache, loss of memory, generally impaired vitality, we can help you, and, if you follow our directions, render you immune against sickness. Most skin disease can be cured by the use of "Bromonia."

"Bromonia" is to the human system what the scrubbing brush and soap are to the dirty washbowl. It aids Nature to resume normal action. It increases the strength, the fighting ability of the phagocytes of the blood; it promotes the healthy flow of the salivary and gastric secretions. If your stomach is in good condition, you are well. The Chinese are a wise people. They accost each other with, "How is your stomach?"

R. H. Jordan & Co. guarantee that, if you will write to the Bromonia Co., New York, giving your full name and address on the coupon at the bottom of this column, you will receive a full size package without any cost to you whatever.

COUNT BONI COST JUST $2019 A DAY

IN THE ELEVEN YEARS OF THEIR MARRIED LIFE ANNA GOULD'S FRENCH COUNT HAS COST HER OVER $9,000,000—SOME DETAILS.

Paris, Feb. 8.—Even if Count Boni de Castellaine affects a reconciliation with the Countess his income will be so cut down as to practically extinguish one of the greatest spenders that even prodigal Paris has ever known.

Of all the American investments in Old World titles Anna Gould's has probably been the most costly. Reduced to cold figures, the price of her title has been approximately $2,017 each and every day for the eleven years they have been married, or the equivalent every four weeks of President Roosevelt's salary for a year.

Recently Frank Work, the New York millionaire and his daughter had a dispute that led Mrs. Roche to leave his home because for a time she spent about $350 a day, one-sixth of the daily expenditures of the Count. Furthermore, Mr. Work permitted his daughter's extravagance for only a few weeks, while George Gould's titled brother-in-law has hammered away until he has made the record of $9,000,000 for the eleven years of his married life.

Gives $4 for a Cherry.
The Count has smilingly spent $4 for a cherry and cheerfully gives enough to pay the bonded indebtedness of a small city for a piece of bric-a-brac. He has made for himself a reputation as a spender that caused the famous literary men of this and other capitals to write about him, and he has inflamed the Parisian populace more than once so that he has to placate the city by great gifts to charity.

One of his little follies was a vaudeville performance given at Auteuil when for 350 guests he presented an all star bill, no act of which cost him less than $500.

Eclipse! That has been the one idea of the Count from the moment he got his hands on the Gould fortune. He wedded for others to give fetes or to buy jewels or antiquities only that he might eclipse them and generally he has succeeded. He has lived to hear his praises sung, and the Countess paid the cost.

For his world-famed mansion on the Avenue Bois de Boulogne, known as the "Red Palace" Boni spent more money than he can ever accurately tell. He liked the location so well that he paid $740,000 for the land alone, and before he got through he had produced a palace that any king in Europe might envy.

He was told when he started to duplicate the historical Trionan at Versailles in which Mme. Pompadour once lived, that it was going to cost tremendously, but he smiled and showed his bankbook, and for spite planned to spend an additional million in furnishing the place.

One of the details of the palace is a set of fountains built in the garden which he could run for ten minutes at the trifling cost of $1,000. Then he got the idea that he wanted a yachtman, so he bought the yacht Valhalla for $200,000 and planned to sail her on a scale that totalled $150,000 a year. Later he had to sell this toy, but that's another part of the story.

Gives a $200,000 Banquet.
When he was elected to the Chamber of Deputies he felt so good-natured that he gave a feast that would have made Lullulu turn green. The bill was $200,000. He seemed to like that amount, for it figures frequently in his accounts.

At another time he got the idea that modern dress was all wrong and that it only required a daring individual to revive the styles of past centuries. Toward this end he gave a flower ball and all men appeared in the costumes of the Louis XVIII period. Bill $125,000. But then his ideas were always costly.

While his palace was building some of the lots needed were occupied and although it was altogether unnecessary he impatiently bought the inhabited houses and evicted the tenants. That cost a pretty sum.

Sometimes the Count's methods were what might be questionable and in the light of the recent scandal, it is probable that one of his little mysteries is revealed. About six years ago he presented to his wife a necklace that he had paid $100,000 for. Anna Gould realized how he was draining her fortune, and when she looked at the babble she didn't think it was worth the money, so she hurried to the jeweller. She found that he took a lofty attitude and insisted that his business was with the Count.

"You have cheated my husband," she declared hotly, "and you must take this back."
Then the secret was let out, the jeweller lost his temper, and, taking the necklace in his hand, said angrily: "If you think, madame, I have cheated, you are wrong. When I sold this necklace to M. Le Comte it had four rows of diamonds. It has but two rows now. Can Madame tell me where the other two rows are?"

Then Anna Gould went home and thought it over. Possibly she knows now where the other half of the necklace went. Perhaps it may be mentioned when her divorce comes to trial.

Buy a $600,000 Clock.
The costly addition to the Gould family thought it might be useful to know the time occasionally, and he decided to have one of the finest clocks in France. When the art dealers heard of this they started to procure what he wanted. In the end he paid $600,000 for a Sevres creation, and it is said that for a clockmaker had the task of making it keep time.

For his Countess he bought a tortoise shell wardrobe in which Louis Seize once kept his royal robes. About $280,000 is said to have been the cost of this. In his honor he has had the bed used by Napoleon on the night of his coronation, and the rest of his private quarters had decorations in keeping with the bed. One of his bills was for

DANGER SIGNALS.

No engineer would be mad enough to run by the flag which signaled danger. It is different with the average man or woman. They attempt constantly to run by the danger signal.

Nature and that attempt costs thousands of lives every year. When the appetite becomes irregular or entirely gives out, when sleep is troubled and broken, when there is a constant feeling of dullness and languor, Nature is hoisting the danger signal. The stomach and its allied organs are failing in their work and the body is losing the nutrition on which its strength depends.

Such a condition calls for a prompt use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and enriches the blood and builds up the body with sound, solid flesh.

"I have had so much benefit from your medicine I had to say a few words that you may use for consolation," writes Mrs. J. R. Downes, Crystal Lake, Conn. "I had been troubled with a complication of diseases for over two years, and my liver and stomach were both so bad that I could not eat anything. My hands and feet were cold nearly all the time, and I had such chilliness that I could not get out of bed. I had tried everything, but I had not received any benefit. Bought a bottle of Golden Medical Discovery, and after taking it I felt so much better that I determined to give it a fair trial. Appetite soon improved and I gradually the disorders disappeared."

$10,000 for a small set of tapestry furniture.

One of the greatest extravagances was the purchase of the Palazzo della Scala, in Verona that he might get the eleven ceilings painted by Tiepolo. Scarcely had he written his check for a gigantic sum to secure the palace when he made the artists of the world gasp by putting a force of men at work tearing it down. Tiepolo was a native Venetian who died in Spain nearly 150 years ago, and his mural decorations are of enormous value. The Count had the ceilings cut out intact and then set up in his palace in this city.

For three Caladon vases with old French mounts he gave $16,000; for a set of two Rose du Barry jardiniere and two plates of the same pattern $10,000; and for two pairs of Louis XV. gilt candlesticks $4,000. One bill he received for $104,000 covered a Lapis XVI table in dove marble, a pair of old Sevres vases, a Louis XVI Entree-Deux, a pair of old French silver vases and several mirror articles.

Another bill for $180,000 represented among other things a wardrobe cabinet, small and large writing tables of the Louis XVI period. Two of his other large bills for antiques were contracted, one for $85,000 on May 27, 1896 and another for $200,000 on June 18, 1897. The Count could show innumerable bills for $10,000, $20,000 or $30,000, for the little odds and ends.

For the pleasure of insulting President Loubet, he paid $100,000 to engage Montjarret, once the postilion of the French Republic. Montjarret became the little Count's outsider, simply because Boni didn't like the Republic or the President, and he was willing to pay Montjarret's price. The outsider led the procession of all the French presidents since Grevy, and he was always cheered when he appeared at the head of the State procession.

These are some of the things Anna Gould has had to pay for to be a Countess. Given in detail the list would fill seven or eight columns of a newspaper.

—Dear Sirs: It is with the greatest pleasure that I write to tell you that your Compound for Bright's Disease has saved my life. I had dropsy. Was tapped twice, last time just as I started on the Comp. I read your pamphlet about 100 times. When discouraged I would read it again to give me hope. It was slow, but I am now on my third row, and consider myself well. I am just today back to business. Every one will tell you my recovery was a miracle. Without this Comp. I'd have been dead.
Yours,
ANDREW C. LARSEN,
Of Sorensen & Larsen,
145 West South Second St.
P. S.—My partner Sorensen wants to add this line: "I telephoned the doctor daily. He said you had no chance to recover and for me to arrange your business. When you showed improvement under the Comp., I telephoned the Dr. He replied 'It makes no difference; it is impossible for him to recover as to empty the ocean.'"

FINDING REVERSED BY CIRCUIT COURT

Defendant's Attorneys are Notified that U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals has Reversed the Decision of the lower Court in the Breese Case.

Special to The News.
Asheville, N. C., Feb. 8.—Attorneys for William E. Breese, who was indicted and has been repeatedly tried for alleged embezzlement in connection with the failure of the First National Bank of Asheville, about nine years ago, were this afternoon notified that the United States Circuit Court of Appeals at Richmond, has reversed the decision of the lower court in this case, the ground of the decision being that one of the grand jurors who indicted Breese had not paid his taxes and therefore was not qualified to sit on the jury. This, in effect, quashes the bills of indictment against Joseph E. Dickerson, a director, and W. H. Penland, cashier of the failed bank, of which Breese was president, and it is the opinion here that this is the end of this long sensational trial, in which the government in its effort to convict these men has, according to the statement of Bank Examiner Hull, of Asheville, who helped to work up the case against them, expended the sum of at least $100,000. According to the statement of lawyers, District Attorney Holton is stopped by the statute of limitations from further proceedings, and as further appeal was made to prosecute these three men on this charge.

It is stated that in every previous trial a motion has been made to quash the indictment on the ground that the grand jury was not legally constituted, and on every occasion this has been overruled by the judge presiding. The interest manifested in the matter here this afternoon recalls the intense feeling when the banks closed their doors with a shortage of hundreds of thousands; when bank experts were put on the case, and when as a result Messrs. Breese, Dickerson and Penland were indicted for the alleged embezzlement of $117,000, $80,000 and $87,000 respectively. Messrs. Breese and Dickerson were brought to trial and given ten years each in the penitentiary, from which Breese was taken. A new trial was granted by the Appellate Court, which was held in Asheville and resulted in a mistrial. The case against Major Breese was then brought up in Charlotte, whether it had been removed on the ground of local prejudice, and again a mistrial was had. At the fourth and final trial Major Breese was convicted and sentenced to the penitentiary for seven years. Dickerson and Penland were in the meantime out on bond. The case against Breese, Dickerson, having been tried only twice, and the case against Penland never having been brought. The case throughout has been a great and spectacular legal battle and some of the ablest lawyers in North Carolina have fought for and against these men. Judge Jeter C. Pritchard was then United States Senator, was leading counsel for Breese, an associated counsel were J. D. Murphy, Charles A. Moore and other counsel. Judge Pritchard, however, later withdrew from the case. Aligned with District Attorney Holton for the prosecution were Congressman Blackburn and later A. H. Price, Judge Bynum and others.

The jury in the case of John Smiley, charged with the killing of Rudolph Caldwell on Christmas day last, which case was on trial in the Haywood County Court for some days, this morning returned a verdict of murder in the second degree. A message from Waynesville this afternoon said sentence had not been imposed.

The remains of L. S. Aldrich, who died recently in New York city, arrived here this afternoon and the interment will be in Riverside cemetery tomorrow.

Before the time of his retirement several years ago, Mr. Aldrich was one of the most valued and one of the oldest engineers in the employ of the Southern Railway. His hand was on the throttle of the first engine that ever crossed the Blue Ridge Mountains and he is known as the man who guided the first railway locomotive out of Salisbury. At the time of his death he was 87 years of age, and he served as engineer 33 years.

Dr. Clifford Henderson, of Boston, the well-known educator and author, has arrived here for the purpose of looking over the situation with a view to establishing a large preparatory school for boys in this vicinity. The proposed school will draw the most of its student body from the large cities of the East, and will make a major feature of outdoor work and athletic sports. In this respect the present Asheville School for Boys, which draws largely from the sons of the wealthy in the Middle West.

General Superintendent of the Postal Telegraph Company E. J. Naly and Frank J. Loesch, general counsel of the company, are expected to arrive here tomorrow for a somewhat extended stay, and there is no doubt but that an effort will be made to get these prominent officials to consider favorably an entrance into this city of the Postal Company and, indeed, it is stated an object of their visit is to look over the ground with that view. Several times during the past few years efforts have been made to induce the Postal people to establish an office here, thus giving Asheville competing systems.

The term of Superior Court, which was to have convened here yesterday morning for the trial of civil and criminal causes, was postponed on account of the absence of Judge W. R. Allen, the judge presiding, who is seriously ill, at his home in Goldsboro.

Washington Day by Day.
Washington, Feb. 7.—George Ham, the general press man of the Canadian Pacific Railroad, who was here last week, used to be a reporter in Ottawa. He worked on a morning paper for years. Naturally he had no evenings to spend with his family. Finally Mrs. Ham protested. She said she had lived practically alone long enough, and she insisted that Ham should get some employment, that would allow him to remain home at nights.

Ham asked her what he should do. She told him that Sir William Van Horne had often said there was a place waiting for him at the Canadian Pacific. Ham wrote to Sir William, and received a reply telling him to come to Montreal at once.

He showed the letter to his wife. She was delighted and was certain that Ham would have more time to himself than his newspaper work allowed.

"I thought so, too," said Ham, "but I went down to Montreal to see Sir William about the place and I didn't get home for three years."

Opie held his luncheon with the President a few days ago and told him this story about a recent horseback trip he took through Arkansas. Reid rode up in front of a building and found a native sitting on the end of a log in a broiling hot sun.

"Why in the thunder don't you move in the shade?" asked Reid.
"Tain't time yet; fever ain't come on," answered the wracker.
"What's the matter?"
"Chills."
"How long have you been living here?"
"Bout thirty year."
"How long have you had the chills?"
"Bout thirty year."
"Why in the thunder don't you move if you have chills that bad?"
"And catch some other disease I don't know nothin' bout? Not much, mister. When you've got the chills you know what they are. I want to tell you something, mister. I've had chills so long and shook so much I ain't fit for nothin' 'cept to sift meal and shake down persimmons."

Senator Carmack has gone to Tennessee to look after his campaign for re-election. His principal opponent is Gov. "Boss" Tate.
At a discussion at one of the small villages in the State an orator announced: "I am for Carmack because he is a temperance man."
"Huh!" shouted an orator on an opposite stump, "I am for Bob Taylor. He's a temperance man, all right. He done took the cure."

Senator Pettus of Alabama was told by a friend today that he is being counted among the "White House Senators."
"I've seen things written about White House Senators," the Senator said, "and about penitentiary Senators. I don't want to be classed with either."

BRUCE AND THE SPIDER.
(BY BERNARD BARTON.)
For Scotland's and for freedom's right The Bruce his part had played. In five successive fields of fight He'd been conquered and dismayed; Once more against the English host His hand he led, and once more lost The need for which he fought; And now from battle, faint and worn The homeless fugitive forlorn A hut's lone shelter sought.

And cheerless was that resting place For him who claimed a throne; His canopy, devoid of grace, The rude, rough beams alone; The heather couch his only bed— Yet well it seemed him slumber fed From couch of elderdown! Through darkness night till dawn of day, Absorbed in wakeful thoughts, he lay Of Scotland and her crown.

The sun rose brightly, and its gleam Fell on that hapless bed, And tinged with light each shapeless beam. Which roofed the lowly shed; When, looking up with wistful eye, The Bruce beheld a spider try His grimy thread to fling From beam to beam of that rude cot; And well the insect's toilsome lot Taught Scotland's future king.

Six times the gossamer thread The wary spider threw; In vain the filmy line was sped, For powerless or untrue Each aim appeared, and back recoiled. The patient insect, six times foiled, And yet unconquered still, And soon the Bruce, with eager eye, Saw him prepare one more to try— His courage, strength and skill.

One effort more, his seventh and last— The hero hailed the sign!— And on the wished-for beam hung fast That slender silken line! Slight as it was, his spirit caught The more than omen, for his thought The lesson well could trace, Which even "he who runs may read," That Perseverance gains its meed, And Patience wins the race.

A busy man has but little time in which to act mean.

BLOOD POISON THE BLACK FLAG

The black flag is an emblem of horror and dread. When it is hoisted by an army, the order has gone forth that "no quarter" will be given, everything must be destroyed. Helpless women and children, as well as young soldiers, meet the same fate, and a trail of desolation, suffering and death is left behind. Contagious Blood Poison is the black flag of the great army of disease. This vile disorder is known as the blackest and most hideous of all human afflictions, overthrowing its victims and crushing out the life. It is no respecter of persons; no matter how pure the blood may be or how innocently the disease is contracted, when this awful virus enters the circulation the hideous, hateful and humiliating symptoms begin to appear, and the sufferer feels that his very presence is polluting and contaminating. Usually the first sign of the disease is a little sore or ulcer, but as the blood becomes more deeply poisoned the severer symptoms are manifested, the mouth and throat ulcerate, the glands in the groins swell, a red rash breaks out on the body, the hair and eyebrows come out, and often the body is covered with copper-colored spots, pustular eruptions and sores. In its worst stages the disease affects the nerves, attacks the bones and sometimes causes tumor to form on the brain, producing insanity and death. Not only those who contract the poison suffer, but unless the virus is driven from the blood the awful taint is handed down to offspring, and they are its innocent victims. Blood Poison is indeed a "black flag." Mercury and Potash, so often used, never can cure the trouble. These minerals merely drive the symptoms away for awhile and shut the disease up in the system, and when they are left off it returns worse than before. This treatment not only fails to cure blood poison but eats out the delicate lining of the stomach and bowels, produces chronic dyspepsia, loosens the teeth and frequently causes mercurial rheumatism to add to the patient's suffering. S. S. S., the great vegetable medicine, is the conqueror of this vile disease. It goes down to the very root of the trouble and cures by cleansing the blood of every particle of the poison. S. S. S. does not hide or cover up anything but clears the entire circulation of the virus and puts the system in good healthy condition. It cures safely as well as certainly, because there is not a particle of mineral in it. We offer a reward of $1,000.00 for proof that S. S. S. is not purely vegetable. When the blood is purified and strengthened with this great remedy the symptoms all pass away and no sign of the disease is ever seen again; nor is there left the least trace to be handed down to posterity. Special book with instructions for self-treatment and any medical advice desired will be sent without charge to all who write.

Several years ago I had blood poison and my flesh was in a awful condition. Great sores would break out and nothing I put on them would do any good. My hair and eyebrows fell out and I was a fright. My mouth was so sore I had to live on milk and water. I took Mercury for a long time and instead of getting better I continued to grow worse and my arms and hands became solid sores. My legs were drawn so I could not walk and I felt that my time was short here if I did not get some relief. I began to use your S. S. S. and it helped me from the start. After taking it awhile the sores all healed, my rheumatism was cured and to-day I am a strong, well man. I got all the mercury out of my system and it cured me sound and well.
