OTHER PRIVATE AND CHRONIC DISEASES CURED BOOKS FREE. 25 YEARS' EXPERIENCE.

Thousands of people everywhere make a great and sometimes disastrous mistake in believing that patent medicines can cure Kidney and Bladder Diseases, Rheumatism, Diabetes, Blood Diseases, etc., etc., for it is not reasonable to believe that a medicine can be of any permanent benefit to every person afflicted, because each case must be treated according to its requirements and condition of the patient, and patent medicines treat each case exactly alike, regardless of the cause of the disease or condition of the patient.

RESIGNATION OF DR. RAINSFORD

A Great and Beloved Man, 23 Years Rector of St. George's Brief Sketch of his Life and Work. Once Preached in Charlotte.

Correspondence of The News.

New York, Feb. 11.—The resignation of Rev. Dr. Rainford as pastor of St. George's is of interest to the Episcopal world of the entire East.

Dr. Rainford became rector of St. George's parish in 1883. He was 32 years of age, of fine physique and in robust health.

His name is written large in the annals of our religious and civic life, and he will be followed in his retirement by the affectionate solicitude for his welfare of the congregation that he gathered, and by the respect of the many who profited by his teaching and by his personal ministrations.

The Evening Sun says of Dr. Rainford: "Long before people had begun to talk of the 'strenuous' and the 'simple life' he had combined the two in a notable degree. Muscular theology has always appealed to the popular imagination. Dr. Rainford has been a muscular Christian. He carried into the pulpit and upon the platform a good deal of the breeziness of the man who was as much at home with a gun under his arm and a dog at his heels as when he was in his own study.

Another very interesting sketch is that of Thomas B. Reed, the "Czar of the House," by A. Maurice Low. Nearly all the sketches are good and fairly accurate.

North Carolinians will regret that the book contains no separate sketch of Senator Vance, though Mr. Stealey frequently mentions him favorably in the reminiscences.

It is easily seen that Mr. Cleveland was not a favorite of Mr. Stealey's. He speaks of Mr. Cleveland as "aggressive, self-willed, dominating, and charges him with ingratitude.

Dr. Rainford was known personally to many in Charlotte. He was heard once in St. Peter's Episcopal Church, accepting an invitation to preach there, from Rev. Mr. Hoffman, then rector of the church. Dr. Rainford had preceded him and the building was packed.

Dr. Rainford was famous for the boldness of his utterances and for the manner in which he denounced the indolent rich and the wasteful extravagance of the wealthy classes, although he preached to the wealthiest congregation that worship within the four walls of any church in New York.

Out of Taste. It sounds a little strange that a dignified and austere congressman should choose to give his fiancée a poodle dog as a present, and that a president's daughter should be inclined to idolize one. But there's little difference in the makeup of folks after all.—Charlotte News.

Or pay a glowing tribute to her in a speech before an audience of which she formed a part. We can forgive him for the poodle dog affair but this other conduct was extremely out of taste, to say the least of it.—Wilmington Messenger.

BOOK REVIEW.

"Twenty Years in the Press Gallery," by O. O. Stealey—A Very Interesting Book.

A most interesting book lately from the press is "Twenty Years in the Press Gallery," by Mr. O. O. Stealey, Washington correspondent of the Louisville Courier-Journal.

The book is written in the concise admirable style for which Mr. Stealey is characteristic, and is withal, instructive and very interesting.

Mr. Stealey has been correspondent in the National Capital for his paper since the early Eighties, and this fact together with his intimate acquaintance with the able men of his term, has given him unusual opportunities to note the goings-on in Congress, and to study the character and peculiarities of the men sent there during the past twenty odd years.

His early career was during the time when the great struggle between the two wings of the Democratic party—differing on the tariff—led by Carlisle, Randall, Mills and Crisp was in full blast.

And the account of the making of the "Reed Rules" and the long, harsh struggle following the "Counting of a Quorum" by Mr. Reed, is cleverly written and cannot fail to be of much interest to the reader.

Very entertaining and valuable are the chapters on the duties, worries and pleasures of the Washington correspondent and the member of Congress. The woes of the new member are depicted in Mr. Stealey's catchiest style.

Appended to Mr. Stealey's story are numerous "Characteristic Sketches of Prominent Men," by the author and other correspondents at the capitol. These sketches contain some very fine pen pictures of the men of the times—the public men of the last two decades.

The sketch of Senator Joe Blackburn, recently defeated for re-election, is one of the best. This sketch is by Watterson Stealey. Two incidents are given illustrating Blackburn's unflinching cordiality and great popularity.

The defeated Senator, heartsick and weary with the struggle, was walking toward his hotel in Washington, when a man passed him, paused, turned and said: "Is this Senator Blackburn?" The Senator looked around, "I have never met you," continued the stranger, "I simply want to express my regret at your defeat."

Another very interesting sketch is that of Thomas B. Reed, the "Czar of the House," by A. Maurice Low.
