

S.S.S. DRIVES OUT RHEUMATISM

The cause of Rheumatism is a sour, acid condition of the blood, brought about by indigestion, chronic constipation, and the accumulation in the system of refuse matter which the natural eliminative organs have failed to carry out. This refuse or waste matter ferments and sours, generating uric acid which is absorbed into the blood and distributed to all parts of the body, and Rheumatism gets possession of the system. One may also be born with a predisposition or tendency to Rheumatism, because like all blood diseases it can be transmitted from parent to child. The aches and pains of the disease are only symptoms which you may scatter or relieve with liniments, plasters, blisters, etc., or deaden with opiates. As soon, however, as such treatment is left off or there is any exposure to cold or dampness, or after an attack of indigestion or constipation, the wandering pains, sore muscles and joints, and tender places on the flesh return, and the sufferer finds that he has merely checked the symptoms while the real cause of the disease remains in the blood. Rheumatism can never be cured while the blood remains saturated with irritating, pain-producing uric acid poison. S. S. S. cures Rheumatism by driving the cause out of the blood. It thoroughly cleanses the blood and renovates the circulation by neutralizing the acids and expelling all foreign matter from the system. S. S. S. stimulates and invigorates the blood so that instead of a weak, sour stream, constantly depositing acid and corrosive matter in the muscles, joints, nerves and bones, the body is soothed and nourished by rich, health-sustaining blood, which completely and permanently cures Rheumatism. S. S. S. is composed of roots, herbs and barks which possess both purifying and tonic properties—just what is needed in every case of Rheumatism. Book on Rheumatism and medical advice free. DORMITORY PLANS FOR WAKE FOREST

Special to The News.

Wake Forest, N. C., Sept. 17.—At a joint meeting of the executive committee of the board of trustees and the building committee held here Thursday afternoon, plans and location for the new college dormitory were considered. The plans of Messrs. Rose & Weston, of Greensboro, were adopted. The building including the plumbing will cost thirty thousand dollars. A general heating plant has been determined upon for all the college buildings but for the time being only so much as will suffice for this new building will be constructed, the other buildings to be supplied later.

This new building is to be known as the Jesse Jackson Hall, in honor of the father of Mrs. Jacob F. Parrott, of Kinston, who donated property to the college which makes the erection of the building possible.

A sub-committee was appointed to select a location for the building on the college campus, which will be done at once. Work on the building will be begun as soon as the plans and specifications are completed and contract let. The contract will probably stipulate the completion of the building by August the first.

At the meeting of the law class Friday evening the following officers were elected: J. Oscar Sikes, president; T. N. Hayes, vice-president; W. W. Leggett, secretary; David Bland, proctor; Thomas M. Daniels, poet, and P. T. Collins, historian.

Mrs. Charles E. Brewer, who has been very low with fever for several weeks, has suffered a third relapse and continues to be critically ill.

Gymnasium director, Mr. J. Richard Crozier and family are back from Augusta, Ga., where they spent the summer. "Dick," the fast left fielder as he is popularly known in the base ball world, played with the Augusta nine during the summer.

Anniversary marshals were elected Saturday by the Euzelian Literary Society. Those who shared the honors were: J. A. Patterson, of Cleveland

WHERE THE HOLY CLUB USED TO MEET

Mr. C. W. Tillett Enjoyed Seeing at Oxford the Sacred Ground Where John Wesley Began His Great Career.

"There's all the difference in the world between the out-going and the in-coming voyage of a European trip," said Mr. C. W. Tillett, who has just returned from a delightful visit abroad.

"On the way out everybody on board ship got acquainted with each other, never hesitating to butt in and introduce themselves. Everyone was constantly on the qui vive. We wanted to know where the other fellow came from and what he counted on as being the best part of the trip. We wanted to swap experiences. If a ship was noted passing ours we got our glasses and ran to the side of the deck and tried to make out the name of the passing ship, counted the masts, and looked her over thoroughly. Anticipation was quickened, and we shared our anticipations with every one else who had any."

"Coming back it was very different. The voyage eastward across the Atlantic was hardly long enough. The return voyage was too long. With the mind stored with rich new experiences in the various countries of Europe, there was little on ship board to arouse interest. Was another liner passing? Let her pass. We had seen more interesting things than big ships. Thinking over the various sights and experiences of the trip, and already beginning to take up the dropped thread of the avocation to be followed at home, we were not now making any new acquaintances. All we wanted was to get home and get home quick."

Mr. Tillett was in the same party with Misses Julia and Violet Alexander, who remained a little longer than he in order to see something of Scotland, where the clan of Alexander originally began. The party went from New York to Gibraltar, Naples to Rome, to Florence, to Venice, to Vienna, to Geneva, Berlin, Paris, the Hague, London, and elsewhere.

"The Misses Alexander were delightful traveling companions," said Mr. Tillett. They had read of the points of interest we were to visit much more thoroughly than I had, and I was fortunate to get the benefit of their knowledge and intelligence. I got more out of the trip than I otherwise would have done for their being in our party."

The holding up for tips was bothersome in most of the European countries. There was a delightful divergence from this when Mr. Tillett got to Oxford, the famous old English University. A courteous old gentleman, snow-haired and well acquainted with all the ancient and modern history of Oxford, met the party at the depot, and showed them all about the University. "After putting in pretty much the entire day with us," said Mr. Tillett, "this venerable and Honorable Chairman of the Board of Visitors would not take a cent for his services."

"It would be difficult for me to describe my feelings as I stood in the room of the Holy Club, which John Wesley founded," said Mr. Tillett. "It was at my personal request that I was admitted there. I had often heard my father (who was a Methodist minister) speak of Wesley and the Holy Club and all that I ever heard him say seemed to come back to me with peculiar force as I stood upon this holy ground."

Mr. Tillett and members of his party had to learn the art of "jewing down," especially in the lower continental countries, whenever they desired to purchase anything.

"What's the price of that?" he would ask a dealer.

"Four franks."

"I don't want it."

"How much you give?" cries the fakir, running along by the side of the carriage.

"I don't want it."

"You give me three franks, four franks?"

"No."

"Well take it for one franc."

In Switzerland, however, he found things different. He at first thought that he had to try the bargain racket there, too, as a everywhere else, but soon found that the Swiss were honest folk all, and that they put a just value on all things that they made and you could buy at their first prices without getting cheated.

Mr. Tillett was about to tell something else interesting when his partner, Mr. Guthrie came in, and said: "In regard to that case of so-and-so's, we have to do thus and so."

And Mr. Tillett, rousing himself, realized that the days of the journey were ended.

The Story of a Medicine.

Its name—"Golden Medical Discovery" was suggested by one of its most important and valuable ingredients—Golden Seal root.

Nearly forty years ago, Dr. Pierce discovered that he could, by the use of pure, triple-refined glycerine, aided by a certain degree of constantly maintained heat and with the aid of apparatus and appliances designed for that purpose, extract from our most valuable native medicinal roots their curative properties much better than by the use of alcohol, so generally employed. So the now world-famed "Golden Medical Discovery," for the cure of weak stomach, indigestion, or dyspepsia, torpid liver, or biliousness and kindred derangements was first made, as it ever since has been, without a particle of alcohol in its makeup.

A glance at the full list of its ingredients, printed on every bottle-wrapper, will show that it is made from the most valuable medicinal roots found growing in our American forests. All these ingredients have received the strongest endorsement from the leading medical authorities, and are recommended by the very best physicians for the diseases for which "Golden Medical Discovery" is advised.

A little book of these endorsements has been compiled by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., and will be mailed free to any one asking same by postal card, or filling out the address to the Doctor as above. From these endorsements, copied from standard medical books of all the different schools of practice, it will be found that the ingredients composing the "Golden Medical Discovery" are advised not only for the cure of the above mentioned diseases, but also for the cure of all catarrhal, bronchial and throat affections, accompanied with catarrhal discharges, hoarseness, sore throat, lingering, or hanging coughs, and all those wasting affections which, if not promptly and properly treated are liable to terminate in consumption. Take Dr. Pierce's Discovery in time and persevere in its use until you give it a fair trial and it is not likely to disappoint. Too much must not be expected of it. It will not perform miracles. It will cure consumption in its advanced stages. No medicine will. It will cure the affections that lead up to consumption, if taken in time.

The first trial resulted in a verdict of guilty and a sentence of death. At the second trial last July the jury was unable to agree.

One application of Doan's Ointment stops any itching. Short treatment cures eczema, itching piles, salt rheum—any skin eruption or skin itching. It is the cheapest remedy to use because so little of it is required to bring relief and a cure. Here is Charlotte testimony to prove it:

My foot was very badly swollen and burned like coals of fire and I could not get my shoe on. It itched so I did not know what to do with it. I applied to Doan's Ointment and the very first application removed the swelling, stopped the burning and itching. It has not bothered me since. I procured Doan's Ointment at R. H. Jordan & Co's drug store."
