Splendidly.

One of the prettiest little tableaux presented at the Kirmess last night. which gave great delight to the audience, was the presentation of Psyche and Cupids by Mrs. Frank Jones and little Misses Laura Tillett, Mary Keesler, Margaret Garrett, Rutledge Dudley and Elizabeth Fore.

Psyche stood with all her Grecian radiance, and held in tow by ribbons the six little cuplds, and the little tot: were greeted with enthusiastic ap

The other Grecian scenes were good such as the dance of the garland girls and the cymbal and tambourine girls The Holland scene, which was repre sented by a Dutch dance by twelve young ladies, dressed with all the againtness of the country of the cana boats and wooden shoes thoroughly manifested that the scenes and dance

were carefully chosen and worked out The Scotch scene which was a High land fling dance by Misses Mariot Washburn and Annie Burkheimer, two beautiful young girls, was very pretty indeed, and the little Scotch Highland lassies with their warm-colored plaids came in for a good share of applause. The radium dance, as given by Ma Wrenn and Miss Bessie Burkheimer was very pretty, and delighted morthan any other one number presented during the evening.

In this entrancing number the ra dium light fell only upon a section o the stage, which threw the rest of i into deep shadow. The actors in this living picture, thus somberly framed were shrown out into the lime light The Incornation of lissome grace, Mis-Burkle later suddenly flashed upon the stage, shapping the brilliance of the and light by her own radiance. A T's quarrel ensues, after Mr Wienn, in Knickerboeker garb, ha or me upon the stage. In the course of the affair a posy is dropped upon the floor and these two in the role of lovers flit about it, pensive, or pouting or pleased, as the moods change, and stage, should do. The scenes which gave the younger members of the cast a chance to shine and earn their portion of the praise were the Indian dances, the moth dance and the six little wives. These scenes were very realistic.

In the French scene was a minuet that stately, graceful and charmingly inadequate dance, from a modern standicint, of the sixteenth and seven teenth century, given by twelve yours iadles and gentlemen. The costumes in this scene, with both dames an beaux with powdered hair and dresse. with ail the antique quaintness of the courts of another century, gave a pic ture raplete with history of other times and custems

Miss Hazel Brown, dressed as a Mex ican senerita, who sang a pretty and catchy song, came in for her share of the applause

One of the scenes, which deserve special mention was that of Egyp which was led by Mrs. Walter Watt as Cleopatra. The costumes in these dances were rich and brilliant as the should have been to portray the scene from this ancient luxurious country or

Mrs. Walter took the place of Mrs James Moore, of Salisbury, who was unavoidably absent, and while she had not practiced the part, the audience would not have known but that, from the magnificent manner in which she played, that it was an understudy. Mrs. Watt's dancing was superb, an gave great delight to the audience.

Another dance, which greatly pleas ed, was that of the moths, led by Mis Bessie Burkheimer, as the moth queen This dance was originated by Miss Anna Held and is considered one of the most artistic dances which has ever been seen on the stage.

Although some of the dances and scenes seemed to be too lang drawn out, the second presentation of the Kir mess was greatly enjoyed.

The scenes, the dances and the drills perfectly portrayed the countries sur posed to be represented in both dres and manner, and these scenes provenot only pleasing to the eye, but educational as well. Mr. James Wrenn, of Salisbury, the manager who drilled the children, so skillfully, and the Daughters of the American Revolution, are to be con gratulated in presenting a series of scenes, which have given so much pleasure and profit to those who saw The characters in last night's per
