Vivid Pen Picture Of Fearful Disaster In The School Building

Up to This Morning 165 Bodies Had Been Taken From Ruins - Several Children Missing - Cause of Fire Mystery.

Graphic Description of Panic That Followed Outbreak of Fire And of the Terrible Loss of Life.

By Associated Press.
Cleveland, O., March 5.—One hundred and sixty-five lives, all but two of them were children between the ages of 6 and 15, are known to have been lost in the fire which yesterday destroyed the public school in North Collinwood.

Several others still are missing and their bodies may possibly be in the ruins.
Identifying Bodies.
Probably will be several days before the exact number of the dead is accurately determined.

Of the 165 bodies recovered, 108 have been identified. The remaining bodies are so blackened by fire and so battered and bruised by trampling feet that it is only by means of some article of wearing apparel that their identity can be ascertained.

The cause of the fire, which, aided by a frantic panic, narrow hallway and doors which it is claimed, by many, were made to open inward, still is a mystery.

It was at first supposed it came from an overheated furnace or an exhaust boiler in the basement. It has been established there was no explosion.

Was It Incendiary?
E. R. Gardner, member of the school board, is positive in his assertion that the fire was of incendiary origin. There were no electric light wires in the portion of the building where the fire started. There were between 310 and 350 pupils, the school was overcrowded.

The teachers retained their self-possession and showed great courage in the face of imminent death.
Horrible Sight.
The extreme horror, the scenes staged around the rear door of the Eagan school house had few parallels. Little school children lay sick and faint, while men and women struggled with desperation to rescue them until they were compelled to give way before the flames and smoke.

Watched Children Burn to Death.
One woman found her daughter in this press and tried to keep the flames away, but the child was burned to death while the mother looked on.

The front door never was fully opened, but a dense pile of little bodies lay in the blackened wreckage beneath this point.
When the fire broke out the teachers promptly formed the pupils in columns of march, according to the fire drill, but when the head of the column was near the front door a rush of flames met it and some of the children dashed at the door in an effort to open it, while others turned and fled wildly up stairs.

The column above kept pressing down and within a few seconds there was a full panic and struggle on the stairway and behind the hall closed front door that nothing could stop, which cost the lives of all caught within it.

The Worst Tragedy.
A far worse tragedy was enacted at the door in the rear. This, it is claimed, opened inward like the front door. In order to reach this entrance the pupils were compelled to march down the stairway, make a sharp turn in the narrow hall and so to the door. It was the lack of space in the hall and the sharp bend at the foot of the stairs that cost so many lives at this point.

Bodies Trampled.
Fleeing from the fire in front, the children came rushing and tumbling down stairs in a frenzy of terror. At the bottom of the stairs somebody tripped and fell. In another instant others were down and in less time than it can be told the doorway hall and foot of the stairs were packed with little bodies, wedged so tight that the rescuers struggled and fought until their own hands were severed almost to stumps and still could save no child from out of the pile and could save no lives beyond a few that they lifted from the top.

All the while, until death closed their lips, the children were shrieking for aid.
A few of the women stood by holding the hands of the little ones until the flames drove them away.
While agonized men were struggling at the doorways and frantic mothers were standing by, they could not smoke rising up from the floor and floating away above the heads of the children. Outside women dropped to the ground in swoons.
So great was the mass of children at one point that when the floor fell through the top of the heap of blackened bodies reached from the basement floor to the level of the ground.

Dead May Number 180.
As the day wore on the belief became general that the number of dead will reach 180.

Second Tragedy Was Threatened

By Associated Press.
Grand Rapids, Mich., March 5.—Grand Rapids was threatened with a repetition of Cleveland's tragedy of yesterday, on even a larger scale, when fire broke out in the Central High School, while 1,200 pupils were in midst of their morning work.
The signal for the fire drill was given as the children marched out in perfect order, the building being emptied in two and one-half minutes. The damage by fire was light.

Greensboro, N. C., March 5.—The republican factions here are hard at work this week, getting things in shape for the primaries Friday, and the county convention Saturday. These meetings are to select delegates to the state convention and interest attaches by reason of the split on Cannon and Taft.

The Cannon boomers declare that they will have Guilford delegates instructed for Uncle Joe, while the Taft element say that by Saturday there will be no Cannon men worth speaking of. The practical fight here is the old one on State Chairman Adams, the line-up being just as it was two years ago, except that Blackburn is not permitted to do any leading.

Light Thrown on Black Murder

By Associated Press.
New Orleans, La., March 5.—According to a telegram received here by the police, George Hamilton and Charles Weatherbee, the young men who were recently arrested here on the charge of smashing show windows, are wanted for murder in Norfolk, Va.
Following is the message: "Rome, Ga.—George Hamilton, alias W. Wall, and Charles Weatherbee, alias T. C. Folker, wanted for murder. Large reward. Let me know on way. (Signed) G. E. Berry."

The arrest of Hamilton and Weatherbee came as a sensational climax to a series of daring robberies perpetrated in the heart of the business section by persons who selected jewelry windows as the scene of their crimes. Several hours after receiving the message from Rome, Inspector O'Connor was called up by R. B. Berry, of Chattanooga, Tenn., who, through the long distance said he positively identified the published pictures of Weatherbee and Hamilton as the men who murdered his brother, A. H. Berry, in a hotel in Norfolk, October 20th, 1907, and robbed him of $2,500 in money, and a valuable diamond ring and some small trinkets. Hamilton and Weatherbee deny the charge.

Cottages For Reformatory

Superintendent Thompson and Mr. Cook, of Concord, Consulting With Local Architects Over Proposed new Buildings

That work is soon to begin on the Stenwall Jackson Reformatory and Manual Training School at Concord, Mr. Walter Thompson, who will be the superintendent, and Mr. J. P. Cook, of Concord, who is really the father of the reformatory idea in North Carolina, having advocated it for years before there was the slightest hope that the state would establish one, were here yesterday on an important mission. They consulted with two of the city's architects about bids on two cottages to go up at an early date.

Mr. Thompson in speaking of the matter to a News man last night, said that the cottages, which would really be large dormitory buildings, would be of brick. They will be three stories high, counting the basement as one story. On the first floor there will be a large dining room, kitchen, reception or sitting room, and living rooms for the superintendent and his family.

On the second floor will be dormitories for 20 boys—for the reformatory is to begin with that number. In addition two rooms there will be set apart for officials of the institution. The basement, which will be entered from the rear, will contain shower baths, toilets, wash rooms, each boy to have his own spigot and towel. Military order will be enforced.

The superintendent and boys will go into the first cottage until the second one is erected, when there will be more room. The cottages will be just alike. The reformatory has 227 acres of the finest kind of land, picturesquely situated just south of Concord. Mr. Thompson and Mr. Cook have planned far ahead, and the earliest buildings put up will be so situated as to harmonize with those designed for later building. An old house now on the place will be used temporarily for school purposes. It is expected that at least one of the cottages will be ready by September or October.

Stock will be raised on the plantation and a large dairy maintained to supply pure milk to the children. The cottages will be assured from all over the state of hearty sympathy in this great cause. Mr. Thompson is enthusiastic in this great life-work ahead of him and the state is fortunate to have a man of such ability at the helm.
