

WHERE THISTLE AND THE HEATHER GROW

Miss Alexander Concludes Her Travel Talk With a Description of a Visit to Scotland—Miss Wade Sings and Miss Porter Recites at Y. W. C. A.

The little lecture room of the Y. W. C. A. was well filled last night by those who had come to hear Miss Julia Alexander's concluding "Travel Talk," as well as the solos and recitations of a Scotch program.

Miss Alexander is a charming speaker. What she didn't see on her jaunt across Europe was not worth seeing. The hours of her journey were packed with observation, and she has the rare gift of being able to make others see through her own eyes.

Edinboro was explored in a two-weeks delightful stay. As she unwove the thread of her narrative, one could see with the eye of the mind the hills as they came down from the big castle that frowns with watch-dog jealousy over the city.

Contrasts between the Scotch and the continental peoples were brought out. One of these was the difference in the treatment of dogs.

The largest merchandise store in all the Willamette Valley is that of James Craig in Silverton, Oregon. And Mr. Craig is not only a big merchant, he is a genuine philanthropist as well.

Office of James Craig, General Merchandise. Silverton, Ore., Oct. 16, 1905. JNO. J. FULTON CO.—Gentlemen: I would like you to send me a bunch of your pamphlets.

Not the least interesting part of the narrative was the description of John Knox's home and the way in which his memory lives in the mind of the Scotch people even unto this day.
