RESTORATIVE TREATMENT FOR NERVOUS MEN

Coming from a source of unquestioned authority on the ailments of men it is presumed to be infallible, while the profession generally endorse the ingredients and prescribe them in many different forms of various diseases. The following formula is highly efficient in quickly restoring in nervous exhaustion, melancholia, anxiety, timidity in venturing, dizziness, heart palpitation, trembling limbs, insomnia, thinness, cold extremities, tired-all-in feeling and general inability to do those natural and rational acts upon which depends a man's success and happiness in social and every-day life.

The instructions for mixing at home secretly so that no embarrassment may be felt, are as follows: First get three ounces of syrup sarsaparilla compound and one ounce compound fluid balsam; mix and let stand two hours. Then add one ounce compound essence cardiol and one ounce tincture cademene compound (not cardamon), and mix all together. The directions are to take one teaspoonful after retiring, until bounding and full strength are restored. Even a few weeks will witness most wonderful results.

Astonishing nervous force and equilibrium follow the treatment, no matter how serious the case. This contains no opiates whatever and may also be used by women who suffer with their nerves with absolute certainty of prompt and lasting benefits.

Wallace: Authorize commissioners of Currituck county to build bridges, issue bonds and levy special tax therefor.

Weaver: Authorize appointment of women as notaries public.

Linney: Exempt brandy from the operation of the prohibition law. Allows citizens of Alexander county to sell brandy made from fruit grown on their own land.

The following bills were among those passed on third reading: Incorporate Asheville & East Tennessee Railroad Company.

Senate bill to authorize board of education of Wake county to borrow money.

Allow Hot Springs to issue bonds for waterworks and other purposes and levy a tax.

Abolish office of county treasurer of Swain.

For relief of Mrs. Emma Alice Howard, widow of ex-Sheriff Eugene K. Howard, of Granville, allowing her to collect back taxes.

For relief of clerk of court of Montgomery county.

Senate bill to allow register of deeds of Durham to appoint a deputy and to validate acts heretofore performed by quasi-deputies.

He was persistent and confident. Finally he was permitted to make a trial. All openings to the yard but one were tightly closed. The tramp entered and sprinkled throughout the premises a mysterious white powder, his secret, tasteless and odorless. Then he emerged to await results. Long and impatiently he, with the supervisory officials and the assembled and curious crowd, waited and watched.

Wait a moment. A squeal! Another instant a great potent powder, with age, came out. No one molested him. Off he moved, followed by another and another—faster and faster. For four days and nights, incessantly, the rats poured out and marched away in single file. Whither they went no one knew. At last the long procession ceased. A moment more, a little scratching, then emerged two young rats with a straw in their mouths leading an old blind rat between them. Never again was a rat seen in the yard. The tramp vanished and with him his secret.

But, back to the tall timber; it seemed to inspire him. Standing in the midst of some magnificent pines in the Windriver country reminded him of being in southern Russia with his father, who had become a trusted and highly esteemed forester in the employ of the czar. There had just been felled a superb walnut. From it a log over a hundred feet in length without a knot or twist had just been cut. So perfect was the tree that the log was the same diameter at the top that it was at the bottom. But his father was deeply chagrined that in felling it, a sliver was sprung out at the base of the trunk. He thought to break it out, but so straight was the grain that the sliver ran on, and so clear to the top, and there it lay, perfectly square and exactly four inches on each side through its entire length.

Passing Of Annie Yeomans

New York, Feb. 5.—So far as her professional career is concerned the curtain has been rung down for Mrs. Annie Yeomans, the veteran actress, who since the death of Mrs. John Gilbert, has held the undisputed title as "the grand old lady of the stage."

Mrs. Yeomans has been a favorite with two generations of playgoers. To the older generation she is best remembered for her impersonation of Irish characters in the Harrigan and Hart successes. This has led many people to think her an Irish woman, with a native brogue. In point of fact she is nothing of the kind. She was born in the Isle of Man and has always been very proud of being a Manx woman. When a child she was taken by her parents to Australia and it was there that she began her professional career as a performer in a circus. At 18 she married Edward Yeomans, a circus clown.

The early experiences of Mrs. Yeomans were many and varied. In 1862 she left Australia with the circus for a long tour. They went to Java, Singapore, to Shanghai and to Yokohama, and were to have proceeded to Manila when the manager fell ill in Shanghai and the circus disbanded. Mrs. Yeomans, always indefatigable, together with her husband and a few colleagues, gathered together other stranded actors in Shanghai and went all through possible China, giving dramatic performances with their own little company.

After settling in the United States, in 1868, Mrs. Yeomans sent for her father and mother, with whom she had left her two eldest children in Australia. They came to New York and settled here, a family of stage folk. Mrs. Yeomans is the sole survivor of the family. Her father and mother and her two daughters have passed away. One of the latter, Lydia Yeomans-Titus, was herself a well known actress.

Upon arrival in New York Mrs. Yeomans found employment in the stock market. A short time previously her husband had fallen a victim to cholera in Leavenworth, Kan. At the Park Theatre, Mrs. Yeomans played leading parts with such stars as Maggie Mitchell, Lotta, John Brougham, John E. Owens and J. Sleeper Clarke.

With her daughter, she played in Augustin Daly's Grand Opera House Company in 1872 and 1873. She made her debut in the first memorable production of "The Two Orphans" at the Union Square Theatre, in 1874 and 1875. In that company were McKee Rankin, Kate Claxton, Charles Thorne, Jr., and Ida Vernon.

On and off from 1877 until the dissolution of the firm, nearly twenty years later, Mrs. Yeomans played Irish character parts with the famous Harrigan and Hart combination.

A later event in the career of the veteran actress was her appearance in "The Great Diamond Robbery," in 1895, with Blanche Walsh, W. H. Thompson, Catharine Grey, Orrin Johnson, George Boniface, Sr., and the great Mme. Jansscheck.

Just Plain Lies

Nothing the long law is confined to a single class, says Army and Navy. The Army is no exception, and the same of some of the racketeers who are the subject of the bill. The bill is not intended to license their activities, but to make them subject to the same laws as the rest of the community.

As a matter of fact, there was one particular racketeer who was mentioned in the bill. His name was Murchison. He was a well known figure in the city, and his name was mentioned in the bill as a typical example of the racketeers who are the subject of the bill.

Though he was not old, he had seen a great deal of the time he had spent in his various experiences. He had been in the city for many years, and he had seen many things. He had seen the city grow from a small town to a great city, and he had seen many changes.
