Cherry, Ill., Nov. 19.-The dark tomb of the Cherry mines conquered, after an all night battle in clearing shafts in a burning mine; three bodies were first recovered, through the main shaft, and brought to the surface at o'cleck this morning.

Inspectors and geological experts, penetrating the dismal depths and fighting the smouldering fire in the coal veins, caught sight of piles of other charred bodies, but passage was hampered by the fire.

At 6 o'clock this morning a group of miners and railroad men entered the mine, working without oxygen helmets but there was no suffering from noxious gases.

Struggling through the dark tomb the firemen discovered in a second vein a pile of bodies from which three were recovered.
